KIRKLAND BLAMES HIS PALS

EXTRA SESSION TALK IS WASTED, PRESIDENT SAYS

Does Not Intend to Call One, He States.

ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.]—President Hoover today put an end to all talk of an extra session of congress this summer to deal with the present depression and other matters as he is being variously urged, implored, and demanded by the Republican radicals, by church organizations led by pacifists.

It is presumed that he does not intend to call one. For one thing, he thinks it would give ailing business a relapse just when it is beginning to show signs of recovery. For another, Mr. Hoover is at odds with congress in its schemes to legislate relief out of hard times, being convinced that we can and will work out our economic dilemma without the aid of congress.

Having occasion to say these things rather emphatically at his semi-weekly meeting with the newspaper correspondents, Mr. Hoover returned to the subject of ways and means to relieve the distress of the federal government. The most to come under his scrutiny will be the postoffice department. Drastic economies in which the president will discuss with Postmaster General Walter Brown at his Rapidan camp tomorrow.

Answer to La Follette, et Al.

Mr. Hoover prefaced his announcement that he would not call an extra session with the explanation that it was based upon facts set forth by petitions from business and other organizations and by statements appearing in the newspapers. The President was referring evidently to a cry for an extra session raised yesterday by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.] as a result of the recent conference of radicals.

"I do not propose to call an extra session of congress," said the President. "I know of nothing that would assist the healing processes now constantly going on in the economic structure. We cannot legislate ourselves out of a world economic depression. We must and will work ourselves out. I am full of the members of congress that would show that a large majority agree with me in opposing an extra session."

In refusing this position the President is unanimously supported by his cabinet. This was disclosed at the cabinet meeting today when the matter was up for somewhat extended discussion.

Senate Republican leaders are unanimously opposed to an extra session and they are joined in this view by the conservatively minded leaders.

"Could Only Rock the Boat."

The opinion expressed at the cabinet session, particularly by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Commerce Lamont, is that congress is unmistakably on the mend and that a session of congress would only rock the boat.

Senator La Follette demanded an extra session on the strength of a report of a committee appointed by the senate to study unemployment. The committee reported that six million persons would be out of work next winter and that they with millions of others on part time employment would be facing dire conditions."

"Such an extra session is called unnecessary," said Senator La Follette, "will be a delay of months before action can be taken."

Labor organizations have been urging the White House with petitions for an extra session of congress and a resolution of the senate to vote on putting America into the world court under the Root formula. Although President favors the world court plan, he evidently has no intention of bringing the question before the regular session of congress next December.

To Cut Postal Expenses.

The cabinet conference on postoffice department economies will deal with a reduction in the operation of the postal service. In the last fiscal year there was nearly $2 millions. One of the causes of the deficit is the volume of mail matter carried free for congress and congressmen under the franking privilege. It is believed that all officeholders fears to lay the axe hand on that perquisite of office. It has been estimated that the postal service costs about $10 a year.

Because of business depression, the revenue has fallen off to such an extent that the deficit for the current fiscal year may go to 140 millions.

Postmaster general favors raising postage to 2½ cents. In his report but December Mr. Hoover declared that congress might some time extend the postal rates," but he fought shy of the proposition when President did not press it.

CHARLIE DOES HIS BIT FOR CITY OF HIS BOYHOOD

Old Desert Rat Gives $5,000 to Poor.

In a registered envelope yesterday Mayor Cermak found a letter and another envelope containing $5,000 in $100 bills. The letter was signed by a man who called himself "Good Time" Charlie Dawson, asking the mayor to give the money away to the poor.

It took a 12 page letter, written in a painful scrawl, for Good Time Charlie to explain why he had sent this money to the mayor. He wrote on stationery of the Drake hotel, where he was registered from San Francisco.

The mayor said he would have to think over the problem of distribution of the $5,000, for the donor seemed to have in mind "some young fellows that need a new start," and wrote a story of his own early troubles in Chicago and of his going west in 1880 to find his fortune.

Almost Reached Waste Basket.

"It's lucky I opened the envelope containing the money before I read the letter," said the mayor. "I might have thrown it all in the waste basket."

The affair was a puzzle last night, for the man who signed the letter, and sent the money was not visible all evening at the Drake, though registred there. Reporters made every effort to reach him, but he seemingly disappeared as mysteriously as his money had appeared. The bizarre nature of the proceedings cast a mystery over the affair; yet there was the $5,000 in real money in the hands of the mayor to confute the skeptical.

Donor Wears Sombrero.

The registered envelope had reposed on a secretary's desk all day. It had been mailed from Chicago and bore $1.08 in stamps. At the Drake hotel the clerks and bellboys recalled Dawson as an oldish fellow who wore a sombrero, very quiet in manner, and liberal with his tips. It seemed that here was an instance of a man trying to give money away and appealing to the mayor after he found he did not know how.

"I am an old fellow that the boys out west call 'Good Time Charlie Dawson' because I was always pulling for good times even when things looked dark," said the letter. "Well, they sure broke good for me in the long run and that is why I am writing you.

"I have been back in Chicago this winter for the first time since 1880, when I went west to get that fortune every young fellow wishes for, and I got mine and want to help some other people now and want you to advise me.

Tells About Himself.

"I better tell you first about myself so you can see what I am thinking about. Hope you can take a few minutes to read this letter as I read in the paper where you was once a poor boy in Chicago, only it was a little bit later than my time.

"My folks died when I was a shaver and I was shipped out here to live with an uncle. Chicago was in a big building boom then, a few years after the fire. My uncle put me to work and took all my money I earned so I broke away and left him and have been by myself since.

"I was at the Tremont house as a bellboy, but did not like that job, as I always liked horses and wanted to get out on the plains and this hotel life wasn't no life for me.

"So I got a job at Little's livery barn in the rear of 195 Clark street. I got a chance to know horses and get outside and I put a little money in the Dime Savings bank on Clark street.

"In them days I was always reading about the Indian wars in Colorado and Utah and the wild life out there was what I wanted. They was wondering whether Jesse James was alive or dead and the railroads were pushing west all the time. I lived cheap and saved my money. Got room and board at the English house at 31 Washington street for $4 a week.

Finds Old Landmarks Gone.

"I see some of the old buildings is still up, but I didn't know the town when I landed. Hooley's theater is gone and Hamlin's theater on Clark. Piper's restaurant was the "tony" place in them days and the city ended at Fullerton avenue, north, and about 39th street, south. I hear the same talk now I did then about how the city was sure to be the biggest in the world and I believe so.

"But it wasn't cities that interest me then or now. From what I seen this winter a lot of young fellows

PEDESTRIAN SHOT AS POLICE BATTLE THEFT SUSPECTS

A pedestrian was shot and slightly wounded late last night while a police squad was fighting a running gun battle with two auto theft suspects. The innocent victim of the chase is A. L. Sherman, 6225 North Irving avenue, a brokerage employé.

The revolver battle started when Sergt. William Cox and Detectives Don Roberts, Frank Dietz, and George Harney interrupted two men working on a car at Devon and Sacramento avenues. The suspects leaped aboard their machine, started east in Devon avenue, and opened fire.

Because of the crowds in Devon avenue Cox and his men withheld fire except for occasional shots. After they had passed Western avenue the police opened fire in earnest. A stray bullet struck Sherman. The fugitives abandoned their machine at Oakley avenue and disappeared in an alley. In the rear of the car was a bullet pierced hat stained with blood.

PEDRO BELIEVES IN DREAMS; HE'S RICHER BY $14,000

ARACAJU, Brazil, May 22.—(AP)—Pedro de Alcantaras, a laborer, had a dream. He dreamed he saw three times a Jesuit father who described to him the location of a treasure buried by Jesuits when they were expelled by the Dutch in the first half of the 17th century. When he awoke he took a friend to the place indicated. Digging, he found two tablets.

This much he told officials when he came here today from Jaboatao. He displayed the tablets, but was silent as to whether he found the treasure.

Curious officials, however, found that Pedro now possesses about $14,000, and also that at least one person saw him handling ancient gold pieces.

LOMBARD BOMB WRECKS GARAGE OF CONTRACTOR

A powerful bomb late last night wrecked the garage of Harry Lever in the rear of his home at 354 North Charlotte street, Lombard, damaged the near-by garage of William R. Plum, president of the Lombard park board, and shattered windows in neighboring homes. The blast did damage of about $1,000 and was heard five miles distant.

Lever is a plumbing contractor, and an investigation is being made to determine if labor troubles are responsible for the bombing. The Du Page county plumbing contractors have not, it is said, signed a contract with the journeymen plumbers.

Russia to Open 6,000 Mile Air Line Over Siberia

MOSCOW, May 22.—(AP)—Civil aviation authorities today announced the intended opening on Aug. 1 of one of the longest passenger and mail air lines in the world, extending more than 6,000 miles from Moscow to Irkutsk and Vladivostok.

Gas Gives Out, Aerial Bandits, Loot Seized

TORONTO, Ont., May 22.—[Special.]—Two lads of 20—the first pair of international airplane bank bandits in Toronto police annals—were in custody tonight, awaiting in deep chagrin the arrival of American police.

Tomorrow they will be returned to Pontiac, Mich., the scene of their adventurous début as robbers, their $12,800 loot will be replaced in the vaults of the Pontiac Commercial and Savings bank, and their ambitious attempt to set a new style in high speed piracy will be written down as a failure.

From admissions made by the prisoners, who gave their names as Louis Kish, 20, of Detroit, a student flyer, and Adam Morgan, 20, a motor mechanic of Pontiac, the police reconstructed the story of the pair's crowded day. It was a tale of three cities.

Kish and Morgan went into action at 4:30 a. m. at Gratiot airfield, Detroit. They broke the window in the cabin of the first ship in the line of parked planes. Kish took the controls and the two were on their way.

Pontiac First Stop.

They flew to the outskirts of Pontiac in the early dawn, cached their stolen plane in a field and waited for the bank to open.

They had laid their plans carefully. For a month they had been getting ready to "knock over" the Pontiac bank—the largest in town—and Kish three weeks ago had started taking flying lessons as part of the preparations. The rest consisted of guns, masks, and a good knowledge of the bank's layout.

Shortly before 9 o'clock the two surprised the watchman on the door, forced him to admit them and after donning their masks rushed downstairs to the vault room, where seven clerks were getting cash ready for the day's business.

The two youths, brandishing pistols, forced the clerks and watchman to lie on the floor, grabbed all the cash they could carry, and closed the vault room doors on their eight victims.

They're Off Again.

From the bank they rushed to the waiting plane and took off for Canada, object Montreal. All went well until over Lake St. Clair a sudden fog blew up. Young Kish's three weeks' air experience hadn't included fog flying, so the pair nosed to earth at Leamington, Ont., a few miles with in the Canadian border, to let the mist blow over. At Leamington they aroused the suspicions of a Canadian airman, who intimated his belief they had stolen the plane. So, fearing detection if they stayed, the two young bandits, not nearly so airminded by this time, took off once more. But young Mr. Kish had made one of the novice flyers' mistakes. he had forgotten to see to his gasoline supply. So a few miles from Chatham, Ont., the adventurers came to earth with empty tanks in an open field.

They abandoned the plane at this point and walked into Chatham, where they put up at the leading hotel and prepared to take the next train for Toronto.

It was here that mistake No. 2 occurred. The boys decided to divide the money in the privacy of their room, but in their excitement they dropped unnoticed a fat roll of United States currency and some canceled checks bearing the imprint of the Pontiac bank.

After their departure on the train for Toronto the hotel manager at Chatham inspected their room and found the checks and money. He promptly reported to the police, who already had been apprised of the Pontiac holdup.

The police here were notified and at 9:30 tonight, when the train from Chatham pulled in, detectives were waiting.

MR. FRISBIE'S PHONE CALL STARTS SOME VERY PHONEY DOINGS

Several days ago Frank L. Grant, owner of a rooming house at 1339 Washington boulevard, received a telephone call from John Frisbie, 54 years old, of 2342 Monroe street, a former roomer.

"A gang from Kansas City is going to rob a jewelry salesman here," Frisbie said. "The mob wants to hire your machine to drive back home. They'll split with you."

Grant told Police Lieutenant Frank Johnson and Sergt. Andrew Aitken of the phone call. He was to meet Frisbie Friday night, he said, at 18th street and Wabash avenue.

Last night at the appointed hour and place Frisbie met Grant and exhibited a handful of sparkling stones. The gang did not want Grant's auto to return to Kansas City, Frisbie said, but they needed $110 for railroad fare. Grant could hold the stones as security.

Grant drew from his pocket a roll of yellow backs, bound by a band, on which was printed $500. "I'll have to make change," said Grant. "Come on to the drug store here."

Frisbie went. At this moment Lieut. Johnson and Sergt. Aitken stepped up. They took Frisbie's diamonds. They were phoney. Grant smilingly handed back to Lieut. Johnson his $500 roll of yellow backs. They, too, were phoney.

Does His Bit for Wheat; None on His 95,000 Acres

New York, May 22.—(AP)—Thomas D. Campbell, owner of a 95,000 acre ranch in Montana, said today that, as a temporary solution of the wheat problem, no wheat had been sown on his ranch this spring. He suggested farmers should raise flax instead of wheat, pointing out that there is not enough flax to meet requirements.

20 U.S. Mayors Down Glass of Wine; 1 Flees

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 22.—The first official reception to the 21 visiting American mayors was thrown into a furore at Havre this morning when, in the midst of the traditional French vin d'honneur tendered by Mayor Leon Mayer at the city hall, John C. Porter, mayor of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Porter refused to drink toasts in old champagne to the presidents of France and the United States, and abruptly left the room.

The mayor of Havre had just raised his glass and begged his guests to drink to the health of the chief executives of the two republics. All the other American mayors, their wives and daughters were on the point of responding when Porter and his wife were seen to leave their places and hasten toward the door. Porter, in leaving the room, exclaimed he could not permit himself or his wife to be photographed in the midst "of such lawbreaking" as photographers with flashlights stood ready to take the picture.

Rest Drain Glasses.

A buzz of excitement went around the room and then the mayor repeated the toast. To a man the remaining 20 mayors, as well as their wives and daughters, drained their glasses and the tensity of the incident was at once relaxed.

Outside the assembly room Mayor Porter and his wife explained in detail the reasons for their action.

"Yes, we are dry," said Porter. "We believe in following the American constitution even when on foreign soil. We have not taken one drink since we left the United States and we don't intend to touch alcoholic stimulants while in France. We do not think liquor will ever be legally sanctioned again in the United States and we shall exert ourselves that it does not."

Refuses Drinks on Boat.

The heartiness with which Porter's colleagues and their families downed the champagne may be taken as an accurate reflection of how nearly all of them feel about Porter's dramatic protest.

It developed soon after Porter's withdrawal that the atmosphere of Franco-American friendship with which the promoters are trying to surround the official voyage was disturbed during the crossing on the Ile de France by the manner in which the Porters refused to accept cocktails from the captain. Several times during the crossing Capt. Blancard invited the mayors to his suite and served the usual prelunchеon cocktail, and each time the Porters refused, and according to those present, scolded their colleagues for accepting the drinks.

Provokes Rows on Prohibition.

Besides this Porter is understood to have provoked numerous and lively, if not heated, discussions upon the question of prohibition. It was remarked that Porter and his wife in acknowledging the toast need not have touched the champagne in their glasses, as frequently happens in the case of Americans who, for reasons of principle or otherwise, do not drink.

The mayors have come to France as guests of the city of Paris and the directors of the French Colonial exposition. The purpose of the French invitation was to reply to the cities they represent for the warmth and extent of the receptions accorded to the French trans-Atlantic flyers, Coste and Bellonte, during their American tour.

ATTACKS PAST OF DEAD GIRL ON THE STAND

Asserts He Did Not Strike Victim.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., May 22.—[Special.]—A hushed courtroom and jury heard from the lips of Virgil Kirkland this afternoon a cold recital, the purport of which was to tear every shred of reputation from Arlene Draves, the 17 year old girl for whose rape and murder he is on trial.

The 20 year old defendant first made a devout avowal of his love for the dead girl. Then, with composure, he began to picture her as a liquor addict, who was his willing mistress for over a year before her death.

He described in detail a strip poker party which he said he and Arlene and another couple had attended six weeks before the murder. He told of scores of occasions, at parties, dances, and roadhouses, when Arlene had been intimate with him.

Stopped by Judge.

Finally Judge Grant Crumpacker, turning away from the witness, addressed the lawyers grouped before the bench.

"Gentlemen," he pleaded, "is this necessary? I think it will be enough for him to make a general statement."

Kirkland thereafter confined himself to a complete denial of the state's charges. He remained calm. Once he gulped as he described the startled silence among four boys as they looked down upon a girl's body and heard a doctor say, "She's dead." Again he flared up petulantly at Prosecutor John Underwood when he interrupted his testimony. But for the most part his voice was even and his eyes level.

The attitude of the jury, all of them fathers and several of them grandfathers, attracted attention. Three jurors looked steadily ahead, never even glancing at the witness. The others started at him with a sober intensity.

Denies Striking Girl.

The youth denied firmly that he had attacked Arlene on the night she died, struck her, or invited his boy companions to assault her. He declared false the testimony of the two boys, Paul Barton and Henry Shirk, who turned state's evidence against him.

Arlene was drunk at the party in the David Thompson home in Gary last Nov. 29, he declared. In rising from a chair she fell forward, striking her head upon a porch floor.

Cross-examination of the youth by Prosecutor Underwood was short but bitter. The state's attorney was savagely ironic as he lashed the witness with short, cutting queries. Kirkland showed his first signs of strain toward the close of this examination. He was on the witness stand exactly two hours.

A Letter from Iowan.

Just before the youth took the stand defense attorneys showed a letter to the judge signed by one R. A. Manning, giving his address "General Delivery, Davenport, Ia."

Manning wrote that he had been passing the hamburger stand the night Arlene died and saw her fall on her head from a parked automobile. She was helped back into the car by a youth who was not Kirkland, according to the letter writer. The attorneys said they were seeking to find Manning.

Kirkland's story on the stand was practically the same as the one he told at the first trial which ended in a sentence of life imprisonment.

He testified that he had been intimate with Arlene on the night she died, but with her consent. He said he had never left her in an automobile stripped of her clothing, as the state contends.

Puts Blame on Others.

"I didn't know any one else had attacked her that night," he testified in answer to questions by Defense Attorney John Crumpacker, son of Judge Crumpacker, "until after leaving the home of Dr. Wharton, who said Arlene was dead. Then Barton and Leon Stanford told me they had attacked her in the car and that Shirk and David Thompson had also attacked her."

Kirkland put the entire blame for the death upon the shoulders of his four companions, also under indictment for the murder, although he, on occasion, made an effort to shield Thompson in his testimony. Thompson refused to turn state's evidence against Kirkland, together with Stanford.

The young witness painted himself as a solicitous escort, much perturbed when his sweetheart remained unconscious. He told of efforts to revive her. He slapped her gently, rubbed snow and ice on her head, and held her in his arms while another boy drove the car around, he testified. Mrs. Myrtle Kirkland, his mother, wept quietly as he testified. Attorney Crumpacker questioned the witness as follows:

Q.—Did you escort Arlene to the party at the home of David Thompson? A.—I did. Dick Sturtridge invited me.

Q.—Who was there? A.—Shorty Thompson and his wife. The others came soon after. (He named others of the party of 17 who were present.)

The First Drink.

Q.—What did you do? A.—Talked, listened to the radio, and so on. Then some of the boys suggested getting some drinks and they went for them. While they were gone Evan Madera and I were rummaging around in the pantry and we found about three-quarters of a pint of alcohol. Four of us drank it.

Q.—How much did Arlene drink? A.—I mixed a highball, alcohol and water, and both of us drank from it. She drank as much as I did, I guess.

Q.—It was straight alcohol? A.—We had to mix it with water.

Q.—What happened then? A.—The fellows came back with a gallon of wine and a gallon of alcohol and put them on the kitchen table. Madera was bartender. They brought ginger ale, too, and we drank out of mayonnaise bottles.

Q.—Tell the jury what followed then. A.—Arlene and I danced around a while. Then we laid down on the davenport with our arms around each other. We weren't there very long until we went out on the porch.

At this point Kirkland told of an intimacy with Arlene.

Q.—What next? A.—We went back to the kitchen. I had another highball and she had some wine. We talked a while, then danced some more. I don't know whether it was the heat or the mixing of drinks or what, but Arlene started staggering. I took her to the front porch and kind of slapped her face on both sides to bring her to [illustrating the slaps]. You know what I mean. She was sitting in an arm chair and she started to get up and fell forward on her head—her face. I didn't realize what had happened. Sturtridge was at the other end of the porch and he came over and picked her up. I told Dick to give her to me and said: "She's drunk." We sat down in the chair again.

Tells Him She's "All Right."

Q.—Did you talk to her? A.—I asked her if she was hurt and she said no. I felt her head. She said she was all right. I didn't think any more of it. She suggested going outside and getting some air. I got her raccoon coat and put it on her. We went out and got into Paul Barton's car, rolled the windows down, and sat there. Pretty soon Barton and Thompson came out and got into the car. They said they were going to get some sandwiches. We went along.

Q.—Did you stop anywhere on the way and did you then attack Arlene, as testified by Barton? A.—Absolutely not. We didn't stop anywhere.

Q.—What happened at the hamburger stand? A.—I went inside and ordered fifteen hamburgers. I washed my hands and face there.

Q.—Was there blood on your hands? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you or any one of the boys leave the place to go out to the car? A.—I didn't. I saw Barton go out once. I don't think Thompson went out.

He further testified that when the party had driven back to the Thompson home, Arlene mumbled that she wanted to stay in the car and sleep. He left her there, went into the house and had a few more drinks, he testified.

Q.—Was she sober or intoxicated? A.—She was intoxicated.

The Party Breaks Up.

Q.—What happened next? A.—Well, the party started to break up. I got into the automobile with Arlene and fell asleep on her shoulder. When I woke up I couldn't awake her. I shook her, but she wouldn't come to. We drove around a while, then I said we had better get a doctor. I even got some snow and ice from the street and put it on her head, but it was no good.

At this point, Prosecutor Underwood objected to a portion of the testimony. Kirkland turned to him impatiently and said, "Wait a minute; I'm coming to that."

The youths in the car finally became frightened and called a physician, Kirkland testified. They then went to the physician's home and carried the girl's body in and laid it on a davenport.

"He pronounced her dead," Kirkland told the jury and hesitated, clearing his throat before proceeding.

"The boys started going out and the doctor said they must wait for the police. They didn't stop and I went with them, meaning to get Arlene's coat and slippers. When I got in the car they drove off with me."

Repudiates His Confession.

Kirkland declared that he then went straight to the home of Murrel Clemens, a brother-in-law of Arlene, and notified him and his wife of the death. He waited for the police to come and submitted to arrest without protest, he said. He described his questioning at the police station.

"They tried to make me say I attacked her," he testified, "and they put things in my confession that I never said."

He denied having told one policeman that he had struck Arlene with the heel of his hand, knocking her to the floor. He also repudiated that part of his confession which asserted that he had seen his four friends attacking Arlene.

The details of the alleged strip poker party were brought out by Attorney Crumpacker as follows:

Q.—Tell us about the party you and Arlene, Dorothy Holmes, and John Churchill were on. A.—Well, Arlene called me up and invited me over. Churchill and I got a pint of gin and we drank it. Then we got another pint of gin and started playing poker. Some one suggested strip poker and we started. We played until the girls were down to their stepins.

Q.—They wouldn't bet their stepins? A.—That's right.

Q.—What happened after that? A.—Churchill came to me and asked me to leave him alone with Dorothy. So Arlene and I went downstairs to the car.

Kirkland then testified to a number of other intimacies with the girl at parties, dances, etc., until Judge Crumpacker stopped his testimony.

Cross-Examination Merciless.

Prosecutor Underwood began his cross-examination of Kirkland by saying tartly: "So Arlene raped you instead of you raping her?"

Defense attorneys shouted objections.

Q.—You say you loved Arlene? A.—I did.

Q.—Yet you let her play strip poker in front of others? A.—There were only four of us.

Q.—Why did you put alcohol into the wine you gave Arlene at Thompson's house? A.—I never said I did that.

Q.—We'll leave that to the jury. Why didn't you have relations with her in the living room at the Thompson home? A.—I didn't think it was the proper place.

Q.—The porch was proper, was it? A.—It was better.

Q.—Why were you telling Arlene you loved her, on the front porch? A.—[Shrugging]. No particular reason.

Q.—She said she wanted to go home, didn't she? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you take her? A.—No.

The Bruise on Her Jaw.

Q.—Do you know how she got that bruise on her jaw? A.—No, sir. I wish I did.

Q.—When she fell on the porch, Strutridge, not you, picked her up? A.—Yes, I couldn't realize what happened.

Q.—You didn't pick her up because you had knocked her down, wasn't that it? A.—That's not true.

Q.—Did you invite any of the others to attack her? A.—No. I certainly did not.

Q.—You weren't so drunk you didn't know what you were doing that night, were you? A.—No, sir. I wasn't that drunk.

The entire morning session and part of the afternoon session was occupied by the reading of the testimony at the first trial of Dr. Joseph B. Springer of Chicago. Dr. Springer, a witness for the defense, said that Arlene had not been a virgin for more than a year and that her body showed no evidence of rape.

IN ROOM WHERE 2 MET DEATH, CLARK ADMITS

Ex-Prosecutor Held as Hollywood Slayer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., May 22.—[Special.]—David H. Clark, 33 year old candidate for Los Angeles municipal judge, and recent deputy district attorney of Los Angeles county, was arraigned before Municipal Judge William Baird this afternoon charged with the double murder of Charles H. Crawford, politician, and Herbert Spencer, newspaper man, here Wednesday afternoon. Clark will face preliminary hearing next week.

Clark voluntarily appeared and surrendered at midnight last night to his personal friend and former superior, District Attorney Buron Fitts. Fitts ordered a double charge of murder to be sworn out against him and today secured authority from the county supervisors to engage a special attorney to prosecute Clark for murder.

"It would be too difficult for any one at present on our staff to handle the case," he said.

Clark Breaks Silence.

Clark did his first talking this afternoon.

"Yes," he said, "I went to that office (Crawford's Hollywood real estate office where the two men were shot) Wednesday afternoon. But I will not talk about what took place until I am on the witness stand."

He declined to state his whereabouts from last Tuesday at noon, when his wife reported him missing, until the time of his surrender. He refused to discuss his purchase on Tuesday of a .38 caliber revolver and fifty rounds of ammunition.

Clark seemed worried when questioned about his reported friendliness with June Taylor, former secretary for Albert Marco, Los Angeles "vice king," sent to San Quentin prison on a murder charge.

Shortly after orders were issued to bring in the Taylor woman for questioning she was reported to have applied at San Quentin prison, under the name of Mrs. M. Donovan, to see Marco. When found she will be returned to Los Angeles to be questioned. Police declare Miss Taylor has been operating many of the activities of Marco while he is in prison.

Many Others Accused.

Clark is the sixth of the twenty-one deputy district attorneys appointed to office by District Attorney Asa Keyes [1924-1928], himself now in San Quentin, to face trial on grave charges. Keyes was convicted on Feb. 8, 1928, of conspiracy to give and receive bribes and was sentenced to one to fourteen years in San Quentin.

Harold (Buddy) Davis, who served as chief assistant district attorney under Keyes' régime, was tried and convicted July 12, 1929, of accepting bribes to go easy on prosecution of men accused in the Julian Oil company's $30,000,000 case. Howell Richardson, deputy district attorney, was ordered disbarred for bail bond frauds. Forrest Murray, deputy district attorney, was mentioned in the same charges as Richardson, but was exonerated.

SEIZE 1,000,000 GALS. OF ALKY IN RAID ON STILL IN NEW YORK

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—One of the largest alcohol distilleries uncovered in the east for years was found today by a squad of department of justice agents on Sutton place in the five story old building formerly occupied by the Consumers' brewery.

The main floor of the ancient structure contained a garage as a blind. In this garage many of the rich of Sutton place keep their cars.

A million gallons of alcohol and molasses in ferment were found in fifteen vats in the place. Two great stills were in the basement, with the "worms" traveling upward through the first, second and third floors. The control room of the distillery was on the fourth floor.

Back of the dark garage space into which brewery trucks used to drive to be loaded with kegs of beer the new occupants had constructed a movable brick wall which provided a perfect blind.

Five thousand one gallon tins were stacked up on the third floor, with 150 steel drums about the size of ordinary ash cans, ready for filling.

SECOND PANEL SWORN IN JORDAN MURDER TRIAL

CRIMINAL COURT.

Roy Neilson, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Charles A. Williams.

Minor Winston, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Joseph Sabath.

Four more jurors qualified to inflict the death penalty if the facts warrant such punishment were sworn in late yesterday afternoon in Judge John Prystalski's Criminal court where Frank Jordan, paroled bank robber, is on trial for the murder of Policeman Anthony Ruthy. The first panel of four jurors was sworn in Thursday.

Judge Prystalski told the attorneys for both sides that he expects the jury to be filled when the trial is resumed Monday morning. No session of court will be held today because of the lack of veniremen to examine. A special panel is called for Monday morning.

Jordan, who not only killed Policeman Ruthy but also Policeman Patrick Durkin on April 30 when he tried to escape at Michigan avenue and Randolph street, seemed much amused when the attorneys joked over the names of some of the veniremen called into the box. Attorneys Michael Brodkin, George Bieber and Dan Wolf refused to admit that insanity is to be the defense, but Jordan, so the court attaches say, is acting up in the courtroom to give the impression that he is "not all there."

Summer Season for Lake Passenger Ships Begins

The summer season for passenger steamships on the great lakes opened yesterday. Substantial reductions in passenger fares have been effected for the new season, according to Park Robbins, passenger traffic agent of the Goodrich lines, who said the rates are lower than they have been in many years. Spring sailing schedules provide over night passenger, freight, and automobile shipping service to and from Muskegon, Grand Haven, Grand Rapids, Whitehall, Montague, Pentwater, and Ludington.

CHARGES FLY IN PHYSICIANS' BALLOT BATTLE

Ochsner Faction Calls Foes "Dictators."

The forces supporting Dr. Edward H. Ochsner for president-elect of the Chicago Medical society held an old fashioned campaign rally last night at the society's headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue. The election, to be held on June 16, marks the first hotly contested battle for ballots in a number of years among the city's 4,300 organized physicians.

What purported to be the inside story of the nomination of Dr. Ochsner's opponent, Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, was affirmed by several of the score of physicians addressing the meeting. All of the society's fifteen branches from Evanston to Calumet and South Chicago were represented.

Assail "the Dictators."

Without disparaging the scientific attainments of Dr. Kretschmer, the speakers asserted he was the hand picked candidate of a clique of autocrats who, their power having been smashed by the society's council several years ago, had duped Dr. Kretschmer into running in order to regain their distatorship.

According to the speakers, the dictators are Dr. William Allen Pusey, Dr. J. W. Vander Slice, Dr. John S. Nagle, and Dr. G. Henry Mundt.

"I'll tell you just how Dr. Kretschmer was named and how the autocrats double crossed Dr. Ochsner to name him," declared one speaker, a member of the council. "About six weeks ago," he said, "Vander Slice and his group called a caucus in the west side branch. Twelve of the fifteen men present agreed on Dr. Ochsner, who was notified of the attitude of the branch. Nagle, Vander Slice and one other man stood out against him.

Ochsner Stays in Race.

"A few days later the three got together, decided that Dr. Ochsner was of a character who would not submit to dictation, and called another caucus. Meanwhile they had approached Dr. Kretschmer, telling him if he stood for nomination Dr. Ochsner would withdraw. Well, Dr. Ochsner did not withdraw, and now Dr. Kretschmer has a fight on his hands."

Advocating Dr. Ochsner's candidacy, Dr. J. R. Harger, who is now president elect and automatically succeeds to the presidency, pictured him as the nominee of democracy, a man of sufficient character to "resist the whip of the autocrats."

Bandits See Cop and Flee from Loop Store Holdup

The sight of a policeman passing on his beat yesterday prompted two gunmen to release a victim and flee after an attempted holdup of the Hanan & Son shoe store at 1 North La Salle street. The pair were threatening Charles Parkinson, a clerk, with revolvers when the policeman passed the show window of the store. Fearing that they had been seen, the robbers pushed Parkinson down the stairs to the basement, took a freight elevator to the alley entrance, and fled. Central police were called.

Army Aviator Is Killed; Chicago Cadet Is Injured

Riverside, Cal., May 22.—(AP)—Second Lieutenant Ralph A. Murphy of Kansas City, army air corps instructor at March field, was killed and Cadet Lawrence Welch, student pilot, seriously injured in the crash of an army training plane today. Welch's home is at 1201 Beacon street, East Chicago, Ind. During a training flight the wings of another plane touched Murphy's ship and it nose dived 500 feet to earth.

Fire Causes $25,000 Loss in Lead Company Plant

Fire, for which a 3-11 alarm was sounded, last night attacked the National Lead company plant at 916 West 16th street, a three story brick building, causing about $25,000 damage, according to Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan. The fire was confined to the upper floor where most of the white lead was stored. Fifteen fire engine companies extinguished the fire within a half hour.

SPAIN DECREES FREEDOM TO ALL RELIGIOUS CREEDS

Omits Compulsory Catholic Training in Schools.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, May 22.—The grand inquisitor probably somersaulted in his graves tonight, when the provisional government of the Spanish republic, taking advantage of the absence of Alfonso, his most Catholic enemy, blithely decreed religious liberty throughout the land.

Protestants, who had been thus far not tolerated, can at last show symbols outside their churches. They can hold assemblies without encountering the hostility of authorities, egged on by the clergy. The Salvation Army can hold parades. Aimee Semple McPherson can run revivals if she is not enough for Spanish taste. For the Jews, of whom there are only a few dozen and those rich, who have lived about, it means that the expulsion order of Ferdinand and Isabella is now definitely quashed.

Is Compulsory Religious Training.

In another decree, the government announced that the public schools will not be compelled to teach the Catholic religion. When parents demand it the children will receive religious instructions, otherwise not.

Times have changed, for there has been a murmur against the advent of religious freedom, which, except for the notorious period between 1568 and 1781, has been militantly denied by this country during all its history. Strange sights were seen today at Palos, near Palos, whence Columbus sailed for America. Catholics on an annual pilgrimage to the shrine of La Virgin Mary above the town turned out as usual with masks and paper caps, but carried along the line of the republic, cheering as they walked along.

Want to Hush Church Bells.

Barcelona, historic center of anti-clericalism, but where no churches, convents, or monasteries were burned at the recent outbreak, a group of citizens has petitioned the city council on church matters, probably emboldened by the resolution of an alderman asking the expulsion of the Jesuits. They are asking for a law stopping the ringing of church bells by early risers.

The Vatican's refusal to accept the republic's duly accredited ambassador, Luis de Zuruete, has caused a shock as it is believed that Papal Nuncio Tedeschini had supported Zuruete as a good Catholic. Government officials take this to mean that the holy see will adopt an attitude of intransigeance toward new Hispanic relations.

Provisional President Alcala Zamora has announced that Minister of the Interior Miguel Maura is preparing a law whereby authors of rumors against the republic will be arrested "as endangering the safety of the state." The government considers almost all of the rumors, which have blamed the wealthy bluebloods out of the country, are spread maliciously. The latest rumor is that Indalecio Prieto, socialist minister of finance, has forbidden currency to bankers of the Catholic church and the monarchists, who are virtually the only people with money.

The march of fleeing aristocrats at the frontiers continues. Arrests are made daily and cash to the excess of $1,000 allowed is taken as a fine.

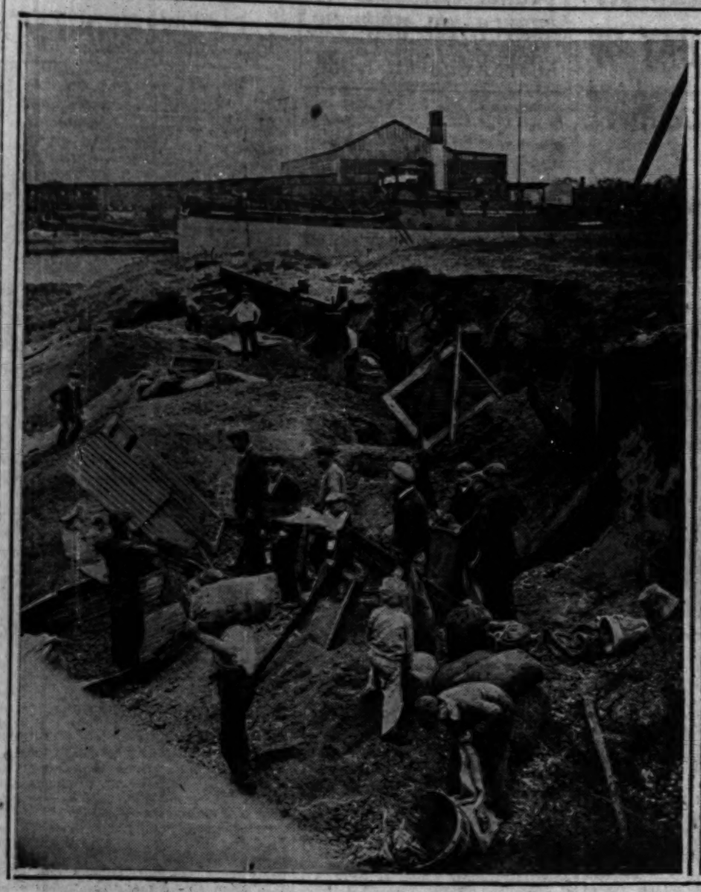
Fifteen Raiders Loot Bakeries.

GUILLENA, Spain, May 22.—(AP)—Reports from the village of Coria say that 11 persons were arrested and other rioting and attacks on bakeries and stores by hungry unemployed men. The rioters looted supply stores and fired shots into the air, but there were no casualties.

Home of Late N. B. Ream is Last Sold for College

THOMPSON, Conn., May 22.—(AP)—Loring Hall, show place here of the late Norman B. Ream of Chicago, was sold today to the Marian Fathers, a Roman Catholic religious order of priests, for establishing an eastern branch of a Lithuanian boys' college. The estate comprises a mansion with garage and service cottages, ten miles of highway, and 305 acres of land. The estate was owned by four heirs of Mr. Ream and has been unoccupied for six years.

MINING ANTHRACITE COAL WITHIN CHICAGO'S CITY LIMITS



Searching for coal in the abandoned yards of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal company at 100th street and the Calumet river, where fire occurred in 1906. The coal that was not consumed in the fire was buried under dirt and debris of 25 years and its existence was only rediscovered recently. The picture shows the screens which are used by the amateur miners to separate coal from dirt.

Loading the coal found at 100th street and the Calumet river after it has been screened. The picture shows coal in bags, ready for delivery and, in the background, the improvised machinery which is used to lift it to the level of 100th street bridge approach. Other sets of block and tackle are shown along the railing and on the bridge approach a wagon is waiting to be loaded.

PROSPECTORS STRIKE IT RICH IN CALUMET COAL

Find Pay Dirt Buried After 1906 Fire.

In November, 1906, fire swept the docks of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal company on the bank of the Calumet river at the 100th street bridge. The docks collapsed, buried under hundreds of tons of anthracite coal, and the blaze smoldered nearly two months.

The loss was adjusted so far as could be learned, and the spectacular fire was forgotten. Forgotten too, was the mountain of coal which, when the blaze had ended, resembled a huge mound of ashes. A quarter of a century passed, and the intervening years laid a crust of dirt over the ashes hill. Weeds and rank grass added the final burial touch.

Boys Dig and Find Coal.

Several weeks ago two boys hauling a little wagon strayed on the hill. They had done so dozens of times before. Hundreds of other boys had likewise used the mound for a playground. But this time the two boys with the little wagon dug around. One of them came upon some pieces of coal, good anthracite. In this neighborhood coal is a precious commodity.

The boys dug deeper. More coal! Piles of it! They rushed home, their wagon loaded. "We've discovered a coal mine," the boys shouted.

The coal rush began.

That night the boys' family, their relatives, and close friends moved on the mine. They carried shovels, picks, and bags. They pushed wheelbarrows and dragged wagons. The discovery seemingly had not been exaggerated, for at every tap of the pick, every poke of a shovel, a miniature avalanche of anthracite was loosened.

Rush to "Coal Field."

The news spread, and the rush recruited amateur miners from every section of the east side district. The coal "mine" seemed inexhaustible.

Every day hundreds of persons, among them many boys and several women and girls, marched to the mine. They staked claims, and numerous fights resulted over encroachments. In one claim an entire family mined one fuel of chestnut size. In another claim a family was mining range size, in another buckwheat, and so on. Six families pooled their finances and hired a 10 ton truck to carry away their coal. In one day this truck hauled away eight loads of coal.

Yesterday noon forty persons were engaged in obtaining their winter's fuel supply. Two blocks and tackles were attached to an upper level and scores of 100 pound bags of coal were hoisted to the top. Some of the more adroit miners employed bed springs as sifters. At one end of the mine two boys and a girl manned an improvised rope hoist with which they lifted coal to the street level. Several dilapidated automobiles and wagons were also used. Wheelbarrows were abundant.

John Koesak, 10129 Escanaba avenue, and his brothers, Michael and George, of 9936 Exchange avenue, have worked five days on the mine and stored more than seven tons of anthracite. Eli Yrgovick, 9732 Houston avenue, helping his father, Steve, and his uncle, Nick, announced that they had taken four tons home.

EX-COBBLER TO CZAR GETS DIVORCE AT 73 FROM HIS WIFE OF 68

Charles Brod, 75 years old, a cobbler who once fashioned shoes for Czar Nicholas and the Russian royal family, was granted a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Bessie Brod, 68 years old, 1124 North California avenue, in Superior Judge Rudolph Desort's court yesterday. Brod charged cruelty and desertion.

Bowed down by 57 years before his cobbler's last, Brod left the courtroom stating that he was on his way to Oak Forest, where he planned to spend his remaining years. The machine age, he said, had ruined his trade and his ten children have refused to provide a home for him.

The couple were married in 1886 in St. Petersburg, Russia. Brod came to this country in 1910. Two years ago Brod appeared before Superior Judge John J. Sullivan as a defendant in a suit for alimony following temporary separation from his wife. Brod was awarded a divorce after he told Judge Desort that seven years ago his wife beat him with a broom, broke several of his ribs, and threw him out of his house. He lived in the rear of his little cobbler's shop at 3152 West 13th street.

COPENHAGEN, May 22.—The identity of a world-famous yacht is hidden behind the name of the ketch-rigged craft Noeddeskallen [Nutshell] on which a young Danish author, Kai Elbo, and his artist companion, Aage Lassen, will start from here Thursday on a trip round the world. The boat is the Shamrock I., which Sir Thomas Lipton sent across the Atlantic as his first challenger for the America's cup thirty years ago. Among the crew of three men is "Greenland" Jensen, a sailor who accompanied Jack London around Cape Horn.

WIFE WILL ASK DIVORCE TODAY, BRUNKER SAYS

Albert R. Brunker, wealthy Lake Forest resident, chairman of the civic safety commission and comentator on Chicago crime, yesterday made a public announcement that his wife will file suit for divorce today in Reno, Nev., on the grounds of desertion.

Mr. Brunker also disclosed the terms of the divorce bill. There will be no lawyers' fees provided for in the bill, he said. The bill would grant him custody of the two Brunker children eight months of this year and nine months of next year, Mr. Brunker announced. Beginning Jan. 1, 1933, Mr. and Mrs. Brunker will share them equally, each having them for six months a year, according to Mr. Brunker's announcement.

Last March Mrs. Brunker started out for Reno accompanied by her two small children. The taxicab in which they were riding from Lake Forest to Chicago was stopped by the Highland Park police and Mrs. Brunker was returned to her home. Several conferences of attorneys followed this incident and two weeks later Mrs. Brunker started again for Reno, but without the children.

Mr. Brunker stated yesterday that the children are now en route to Reno.

Woman Held as Suspect in Inquiry on Poison Deaths

Mrs. Margaret Summers of 632 West North avenue was taken into custody last night by Hudson avenue police on orders of Coroner Herman N. Bundesen in connection with the suspected poisoning of her nephew, Thomas Meyers, 17 years old, who died on May 14 at Mrs. Summers' home.

Four other deaths are under inquiry, among them that of Thomas Summers, Mrs. Summers' husband. According to complaints, she was the beneficiary on their insurance policies. Summers died on Aug. 9, 1930.

Detectives took Mrs. Summers to the women's annex at the North Racine avenue station after a brief questioning at the Hudson avenue station. The questioners were Assistant State's Attorneys E. A. Ferrari and Capt. Thomas W. Condon of the Hudson avenue police. Mrs. Summers will be questioned again today, and will be held until a report is made today on a chemical analysis of the vital organs of young Meyers.

Question Dead Man's Sisters.

Mrs. Summers' arrest followed interrogation of several witnesses. They are Mrs. Mathilda Kuhn, 1643 Sedgwick street; Mrs. Mayme Mills and Miss Agnes Summers of 1959 Seminary avenue, sisters of Summers.

Mrs. Kuhn told Capt. Condon and Assistant State's Attorney Ferrari that she met Mrs. Summers a month after the death of the latter's husband. At that time Mrs. Summers remarked, according to Mrs. Kuhn, that she had "got rid of Tommy," and that she "had poisoned him herself." Mrs. Summers told Mrs. Kuhn, the latter asserted, that she had found Summers and Anna Kuhn, a daughter of Mrs. Kuhn, together. The name of another woman was also mentioned by Mrs. Summers, the investigators were told.

Tells of Fatal Illness.

From Mrs. Mills, investigators learned that Mrs. Summers refused to call a physician when Summers was fatally ill. Miss Summers declared that during Summers' illness, Mrs. Summers threw an article of his clothing at the nephew, Meyers, saying: "Tom won't need that any more."

The charges of the women were related to Mrs. Summers last night. She denied them, but admitted she had knowledge of her husband's alleged affairs with other women.

Springfield, Ill., May 22.—[Special.]—A somewhat more cheerful view of the financial stringency at the statehouse was taken today following an announcement from Garrett D. Kinney, director of finance, that $3,000,000 has been received this week from Cook county on the 1929 taxes. The amount, Mr. Kinney remarks, is enough to take care of the general revenue fund for 60 days or more.

It dismisses the talk at the capitol in the winter that the departments would be faced with a shutdown for lack of pay roll money by the end of May unless emergency measures were taken.

The legislature passed the act allowing the state to issue tax anticipation warrants—the first time the state has been reduced to such extremity—the Supreme court held the act constitutional April 30, and the outlook now is that the state will be able to buy its own anticipation warrants out of its own unused funds without selling them to the bankers.

May Avert Warrants Sale.

A bill now on the governor's desk authorizes the state to purchase its own anticipation notes whenever there is a surplus in any of the funds in the state treasury not needed for current expenditures due or about to become due. The notes bear 2 per cent interest, which goes into the general fund.

"The prospects," said Mr. Kinney, "are that the state will not have to sell any of its anticipation notes on the market, but will be able to take them up itself."

During the senate debates it was declared by Senators Richard R. Meents [Rep., Ashkum], Thomas J. Courtney [Dem., Chicago], and others that there is a present balance in the motor fuel tax of $8,226,000 and accumulated allotments to counties of $9,189,000 which cannot be paid until contracts are in and work under way, making a total of $17,000,000.

Before the 3 million dollars came in this week, Cook county owed the state about 17 million dollars, of which about 3 million is balance due from 1928 taxes and about 14 million from 1929 taxes.

Present Shortages.

Considering the 1928 and 1929 taxes the shortage in the general revenue fund, in round numbers was 6 million, in the school fund over 5 million, the university fund 1½ million, and soldiers' bonus bonds about 2½ million. The blind relief fund was short about half a million and the Illinois waterway bond fund $700,000. Normally all of this money should have been in the state treasury before Jan. 1, and the shortage is attributed to the tax muddle in Cook county.

The 1930 Cook county taxes are giving the statehouse most concern, as there is a probability they will not be paid into the state treasury until the middle of 1932.

Downstate Also Delays.

Reports here are that many downstate counties are facing shortages in funds, and in one or two regions reports are being received of taxpayers' strikes. One effect has been to revive the talk of a constitutional amendment that would permit two or more contiguous counties to merge under one set of officers without losing their identity as counties.

More than half the county officials in the state, it is urged, might be wiped out with great resultant economy and with a probable betterment of local government itself, to say nothing of lessening the tax burden.

CUBA OPENS HUNT FOR ORIGINATORS OF REVOLT STORY

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, May 22.—The fog of uncertainty which has overhung Cuba for the past few days while rumors of revolution have been pouring into the capital was dispelled tonight with announcements by both the government and the opposition that all is quiet throughout the island.

The government's announcement said there had not been any disorders and announced there will be an investigation to discover the source of reports of insurrection in Oriente province, in the extreme western part of the island.

Leaders of the Union Nacionalista, an organization opposed to President Machado, was equally insistent that stories of an insurrection were totally without foundation. Indeed, the Nationalists openly charge that reports of a revolution were deliberately started by the government forces in order to precipitate trouble and give Machado an excuse to stamp out opposition at a time when he is strong and prepared and the opposition unprepared.

DEMOCRATS GET BEHIND BILL FOR NEW TAX BOARD

Hope Plan Will Bring Financial Relief.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Democratic leaders decided yesterday in Mayor Cermak's office to support house bill No. 28 which would revamp the county's taxing machinery, unless some added objection is disclosed. They will meet on Monday with a state legislative committee at the Hotel Sherman to receive all the criticisms possible and decide upon an effective method of advancing the bill.

At the conference yesterday were Mayor Cermak, who has indorsed the bill on recommendation of his advisory committee; Patrick A. Nash, county Democratic chairman; Michael L. Igoe, national committeeman; Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the county managing committee; and Judge John J. Sullivan.

Back Bill in Hope of Relief.

It is gossiped that none of the leaders enthusiastically favor the bill, but are supporting it as a hope of financial relief. The bankers have declined to buy 1931 tax anticipation warrants until they have more assurance of the prompt assessm nt and collection of taxes, and they believe that house bill No. 28 is a step in that direction.

House bill No. 28 would abolish the present elective board of assessors and board of review, and substitute one board of tax assessment and revision, to be appointed by the county board. One member would be the assessor upon whom large powers would be conferred. He, with the other two members of restricted powers, would review tax complaints. This is said to be not politically palatable to the leaders, but the Democrats are preparing to swallow it.

County Starts After Taxes.

The county board adopted a resolution to hire Attorney Henry M. Ashton to go after taxes due on forfeited real estate. The board said the amount due is $16,500,000, but the records show only $15,738,533. Mr. Ashton is to be paid 15 per cent of collections or settlements where the property has on year of penalties, 20 per cent when there ar two years of penalties, and 25 per cent for three or more years of penalties.

The county commissioners say in the resolution that "a large portion of the money is due on forfeited real estate in the hands of owners well able to pay." The board took no steps to make delinquent owners of personal property pay their taxes.

City Gets $10,000,000 More.

County Treasurer McDonough yesterday remitted $10,000,000 of the 1929 tax collections to the city, making a total of $57,000,000 that he has turned over to the city and the board of education. The money is being used to redeem 1929 tax anticipation warrants which are held by bankers and investors.

N. F. Balter Is Appointed Clerk to City Prosecutor

Nathan F. Balter, who was secretary for eight years to City Collector Edward J. Kaindl when the latter was an alderman and chairman of the city council railway terminals committee, was appointed chief clerk in the city prosecutor's office yesterday by Corporation Counsel Busch. Mr. Balter, who is 32 years old, lives at 2601 Iowa street.

MRS. EVA HAMILTON RESIGNS FROM ZONE BOARD AFTER HEARING

Mrs. Eva Holland Hamilton, who since 1927 has been chairman of the zoning board of appeals and against whom charges were heard early this week by Mayor A. J. Cermak, announced her resignation yesterday. Attorney Samuel Golan, who defended her during the hearing on charges of favoritism, presented the announcement, together with a statement by Mrs. Hamilton in which she denies "granting variations contrary to the spirit of the zoning ordinance of the city."

Mayor Cermak had demanded the resignations of all the members of the board who were holdovers from the former administration. The others, with the exception of Mrs. Hamilton and John J. McKeon, complied with the request, but Mrs. Hamilton chose to fight for her position, and the mayor ordered charges preferred against her.

"I can now see it would be distasteful for me to remain," she said.

The way is now clear for Mayor Cermak to appoint new members of the commission.

Two Tall Bronze Statues Placed in Elks Memorial

Two bronze statues, each 12 feet in height, yesterday were placed in position in niches at the entrance to the new Elks Memorial building at 2750 Lake View avenue. The statues are named "Fraternity" and "Patriotism," and were modeled by Adolph A. Weinman. It is expected that unveiling ceremonies will be held on June 1. The memorial structure was completed about four years ago at a cost of $3,500,000.

$10,000 LOSS IN FIRE.

CERMAK SEEKS RAILROAD HELP ON BIG PROJECTS

Asks Co-operation in Address.

Mayor Cermak, in an address before the Traffic club at a luncheon yesterday, pleaded for a renewed coöperation between railroads and the city hall in opening streets, in the consolidation of terminals, and in the development of air rights over tracks. His audience included a score of railroad presidents and vice presidents.

"In the administration of the late Mayor Dever," said Mayor Cermak, "the city received splendid coöperation from rail transportation agencies, which made it possible to straighten the river. We now want to open streets through this area to relieve the traffic congestion to the south of the loop.

"This construction can be greatly hastened and accomplished with much greater efficiency and economy if we can again have that same hearty coöperation from the railroads. The straightening of the river was considered a necessary preliminary step to the consolidation of railway terminals and the development of the vast potential air rights in this district."

The mayor recited some of the difficulties he is facing in getting his administration through its temporary financial troubles so as to start constructive activity.

"The city is like a private business improperly financed," he said. "The taxpayers are spending a million dollars a month for interest on borrowed money. We are paying six per cent interest, whereas New York City pays one and one-half per cent on its short term municipal borrowings.

"The solution lies not in a tax rate increase. Taxes are already too high. My administration is working to solve the problem through a reduction of waste in municipal affairs."

1,100 SEIZED ON SECOND DAY OF LICENSE DRIVE

Motorists Crowd Courts; Fees Pour In.

More than 1,100 motorists were arrested yesterday by police in the second day of the campaign against drivers who have failed to procure state licenses or city vehicle tags. The first day resulted in 1,552 arrests.

JUDGE EDELMAN.

Delinquent automobilists were taken to the nearest police station, booked, and released on personal recognizances of $100 each. They were ordered to appear in court today.

The various police and traffic courts will again be crowded today with the rush of arrested drivers. Yesterday all courts were swamped. More to the point, from the standpoint of the city treasurer, hundreds of delinquent drivers thronged into the office of the city clerk to provide themselves with 1931 tags. These drivers won freedom in court.

Others who lacked state licenses were likewise liberated when they showed receipts indicating they had sent for the plates. Generally all motorists won continuances. One result of the campaign was an increase in thefts of tags and plates, 164 of which were stolen during the day.

All Licenses Involved.

Every form of city license is involved in the drive, and consequently seventy-one business owners and merchants who had failed to license themselves or their businesses joined the motorists in the courts and in the city clerk's office. The police have orders to close business houses unless they turn their license fees into the city treasury.

The effect of the drive was seen in the announcement of City Collector Kaindl that while license fee collections have averaged $20,000 a day during the last month the collections are expected to jump to $70,000 or $100,000 a day during the remainder of this week and for next week.

The police, however, did not escape unscathed. They were criticized by Judge Leon Edelman in the Town Hall court for requiring $25 cash bonds until late Thursday, when an order was issued permitting the posting of personal bonds.

Judge Criticizes Police.

"While the citizens should obey the law," he said, "I want to call the attention of the police to rule No. 32 of the Municipal court. If a person is arrested for a traffic violation, other than one involving an accident or reckless driving or driving while intoxicated, he is to be served with a summons. If he can identify himself, he does not have to post bond. I apologize for the action of the police in failing to observe this rule."

Similar rulings were made by most of the Municipal court judges. Those who had no tags had their cases continued for a week or so to give them an opportunity to procure licenses.

The frankest expression from a motorist was heard by Judge John J. Rooney in Fillmore court. Before him was Joe Gentile, 21 years old, 1020 South Hermitage avenue, who stated that he had been waiting until June 15, after which he could get a tag for one-half price. He was given until May 29th to pay the fee.

COUNCILMEN HOLD UP SURVEY ON UNIFYING GOVERNMENTAL WORK

Members of the city council committee on efficiency and consolidation yesterday decided to find out from Mayor Cermak what his advisory commission is doing about governmental consolidation before appointing a subcommittee to delve into the same subject.

The action was taken despite the protest of Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], chairman of the committee. "The aldermen are elected and have a duty to perform," said Cronson. "We should pay attention to every important municipal activity including proposals to reduce taxes."

The committee adopted a different attitude on the proposal of Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] for a subcommittee to survey the personal property tax situation. The committee voted for this plan without first learning what the advisory commission is doing in connection with the situation.

City Leaders Swing Into Job of Getting 1932 Conventions

BY PARKE BROWN.

Appointment of a committee of 120 outstanding Chicagoans to act to bring the Republican and Democratic national conventions of 1932 to this city was hailed yesterday as the best sign of success for the effort possible at this early date.

The two national committeemen for Illinois, State Representative Michael L. Igoe, Democrat, and Roy O. West, Republican, who was secretary of the interior under President Coolidge, both said that the opening move made by the Association of Commerce "looked like business."

In addition Walter J. Malatesta, named as treasurer of the committee, was optimistic about meeting the financial phases that will come before it.

Malatesta Is Optimistic.

This attitude was considered particularly significant as Mr. Malatesta for years was an associate of the late Fred W. Upham, who was credited with bringing five successive Republican conventions—those from 1904 to 1920, inclusive—to Chicago.

"Chicago has never fallen down on anything that it has undertaken," said Treasurer Malatesta when he was asked if he believed the committee could cope with other cities in competing for the conventions.

He also said that while the committee membership is about equally divided between Republicans and Democrats its operations will be strictly along nonpartisan lines.

Seek Both Conventions.

"Under the energetic leadership of Chairman Edward N. Hurley," Mr. Malatesta said, "there is no doubt that the committee will concentrate all its forces on the effort to bring both conventions to Chicago.

"It has been a long time since Chicago has had the Democrats as its guests. The last convention of that party here was the famous one of 1896 when Bryan made his 'cross of gold' speech. But we had all of the Republican conventions from 1904 to 1920 and everybody who came to them was delighted.

"Memories of these conventions will help us and we are much better equipped for such big gatherings than we were then. We now have a wonderful convention hall in the Stadium and there have been many other big improvements in the city."

West Pledges His Aid.

"I am for Chicago for both conventions," said Republican Committeeman West. "I shall work to bring them both here, and as a member of the Republican national committee I certainly vote for Chicago above all other cities.

"The nation recognizes the superior advantages here, the better transportation, the large number of fine hotels centrally located, and the fine climate that has been so much missed in some of the recent conventions of both parties.

"And Chicago is in better condition financially to handle the national meetings than are other cities that have been mentioned as wanting to get them. There will be no gloom or pessimism on that score in the committee that has been named."

Igoe's Work Already Begun.

The Democratic committeeman, Mr. Igoe, said that at a meeting his party's national committee held in Washington, he had made the first overtures toward bringing the 1932 convention to Chicago.

"And they were well received by members from all parts of the country," he said. "The immediate response was comment on the central location of Chicago and the universally excellent railroad facilities for reaching the city.

"Then discussion brought out recognition that we have an unequaled convention hall that we did not have before, that the climate is most desirable for meetings in June or July, and that the convenience and excellence of our hotels and other facilities cannot be approached elsewhere."

President of Notre Dame Honored by King of Italy

South Bend, Ind., May 22.—(AP)—Notre Dame university announced today it had received word that the insignia of chevalier of the Order of the Crown of Italy has been conferred upon the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university, by King Victor Emmanuel. Father O'Donnell received official notification of the honor yesterday from the Italian ministry of foreign affairs, with congratulation from Sig. G. Castruccio, Italian consul in Chicago. The priest said the honor was a surprise to him and that he regards it not as a personal distinction but as a recognition of Notre Dame in view of the large number of Italian-American students enrolled.

HENRY R. PLATT, NOTED LAWYER, TAKEN BY DEATH

Practiced Here for Nearly Half Century.

Henry Russell Platt, a leading Chicago attorney and a member of the law firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian and Platt, died last night at his home, 1001 Asbury avenue, Evanston, after a lingering illness. He was 65 years old.

Mr. Platt practiced law in Chicago for forty years. He acted as counsel for a number of pioneer Chicagoans and has represented many large corporations.

He was born March 4, 1866, at Plattsburg, N. Y., the son of Theodorus and Frances Platt and a descendant of Thomas Platt, who was in charge of the colony recruited from Long Island and Poughkeepsie that settled Plattsburg in 1784 and in whose honor the town was named.

Admitted to Bar Here in 1891.

Mr. Platt attended the schools of Plattsburg and later entered Williams college, where he was graduated in 1887. He began his career as a lawyer in 1889 at Rutland, Vt. Shortly afterward he came to Chicago and was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1891.

His earliest association in Chicago was with the law firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale. Some years later he became a partner of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, which was his law connection until his death.

He has been general counsel and director of the National Life Insurance Company of Vermont for more than 30 years. He was confidential adviser of Levi Z. Leiter and later was counsel for the Leiter estate. He represented Joseph Leiter in the long litigation recently ended over the management of the estate. He was general counsel for the John R. Thompson company, director and counsel of the American Water Works company; the West Penn Railways of Pittsburgh; Albert Pick & Co., Chicago; counsel in the merger of the two packing companies, Armour and Morris, and counsel for the Continental Illinois bank and the various consolidations leading up to the formation of this company.

Injured on Golf Links.

Mr. Platt took a great interest in golf and in the winters when in the city and the weather at all permitted he played, enjoying the open air. Three years ago last March he slipped on the ice on a tee at the Glen View club and broke one leg, which some years before had been broken. He was in the hospital several months, suffering pneumonia while still crippled.

Health Improves on Trip.

Later he went abroad with Mrs. Platt and showed improvement in health, but for the last two years his condition has been failing. For several weeks he had been confined to his home and failed gradually until the end.

He was a member of the University, Tavern League, Mid-Day, Skyline, and Ivanhoe clubs, of the Glen View Golf club, of which he was ex-president and director, and of the Evanston Country club. He was also a member of the American, State, and Chicago Bar associations.

Mr. Platt is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen Sherwood Platt, and three children, Theodora, Henry Russell Jr., and Sherwood Kellogg Platt.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at Rosehill cemetery chapel. Interment will be private.

CHICAGO POSTOFFICE WORK MAY NOT GET STARTED UNTIL FALL

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.]—Failure of the plans and specifications for the new Chicago postoffice to reach the treasury today raised the possibility that the new federal structure may not get under way before late summer or early fall. Officials today said that it will take probably two weeks to check the specifications here after they are received from Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, the architects. In case the specifications are delayed until June 1, as now appears probable, they would not be in the hands of bidders before June 15.

If the contractors are given five weeks to submit bids, as is now planned, the bids would not be opened before the last week in July. Another week or ten days will be consumed in studying the bids before the contract is awarded. Before work will begin it will be necessary for the contractor to get a bondsman and to have the bond approved in Washington.

The specifications were promised in January for April 15.

TOSCANINI WRITES APPEAL TO DUCE; STILL 'PRISONER'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 22.—Arturo Toscanini, conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, today appealed to Premier Mussolini, setting forth his side of the case in an incident last week in Bologna, when the maestro was slapped while in front of the Community theater there by Sig. Longanesi, editor of the Bologna newspaper Assalto. In his letter to il duce, who is also an amateur musician, Toscanini explained why he could not play the Fascist hymn "Giovinezza" and the "Royal March." Meanwhile Toscanini is staying in his house in Milan, still awaiting the return of his passport.

LOWELL CHAPIN SUES HIS WIFE FOR DESERTION

Son of Late Capitalist Seeks Divorce.

Lowell Mead Chapin, wealthy business executive, son of the late Charles Chapin, capitalist, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Superior court against Mrs. Elizabeth C. Chapin of New York. Through his attorneys, Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, Chapin charges his wife deserted him in January of 1929.

MRS. LOWELL CHAPIN.

The Chapins were married May 11, 1911, at Lowell, Mass. Before her marriage Mrs. Chapin was Miss Elizabeth Chalifoux, member of a prominent Massachusetts family. They have two children, Elizabeth, 19 years old, and Coolidge, 16, who are living with their mother.

Asks Custody of Children.

Chapin asks that the court award him their custody, as he is well able to provide for them.

Chapin is treasurer of the Indiana and Michigan Electric company of South Bend, which was founded by his father, and president of the Zouri Drawn Metals company of Chicago.

The elder Chapin, who came to Chicago in 1900, built up a fortune in various industrial interests. He was also a large holder of Chicago real estate.

$4,560,000 Estate to Family.

At his death in 1913 his estate was valued at $4,560,000, most of which was divided among members of his family. For years the Chapin home was located at Goethe street and Lake Shore drive.

Lowell Chapin is 46 years old. He is a member of the University, Saddle and Cycle, Casino, and Onwentsia clubs, and of the Yale club in New York. He resides at the Ambassador hotel.

FINDS HEIRESS TO ESTATE OF CAPT. MORRISON

Waives Her Claim, Says Lawyer.

After years of inquiry in Chicago's courts there came an answer yesterday to the question: "What has become of Mrs. Margaret Bernstein-Morrison-Beers, adopted daughter of Capt. Edward W. Morrison, the millionless millionaire?"

"She is now Mrs. Margaret Brown and she lives in Dearborn, Mich., and she has signed a waiver of her claim to a portion of the $3,000,000 estate of Capt. Morrison," Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson declared.

Attorney Jacobson, who represents the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee of the Morrison estate, made the announcement in court yesterday. Jacobson said the waiver was obtained a year ago on payment of $5,000 and Probate Judge Henry Horner, who is conducting the hearing said, with some asperity, that Attorney Jacobson should have informed him at the time that the missing heir was found.

Action Begun Last Fall.

The proceedings before Judge Horner yesterday are the result of action begun last fall by Joseph Bernstein, junk dealer, whose two daughters were adopted by Morrison. Bernstein filed a petition with the court in the name of his two grandchildren, daughters of Mrs. Brown by a former husband, Le Roy Beers, war veteran and son of a Chicago architect.

The mother was believed to be dead, according to the petition, so a claim was made for a share of the estate in the names of the Beers children. This was in conjunction with the action of Mrs. Alice Schenker of Hammond, Ind., a sister of the former Mrs. Beers and also an adopted daughter of Morrison. Capt. Morrison's will left the adopted daughters $5,000 each, $100,000 in trust for relatives, 1/3 of whom have appeared, and the rest of the estate to found a home for the aged.

Seeks to Break Will.

Mrs. Schenker is seeking to break the will and get a share of the estate as an heir at law.

Attorney Jacobson is contesting the legality of the adoption of the two Bernstein girls by Morrison. Judge Horner will hear arguments on that subject Monday. Attorneys John D. Black and James Rosenthal served notice yesterday that the alleged waiver by Mrs. Brown, in which she gives up possibly $1,500,000, will be contested on the ground that she was not aware of the meaning of her action.

Meanwhile there was another claimant, Capt. William Edward Foulkes, 71 years old, 4216 Langley avenue, who asserted he is a son of Capt. Morrison and Mary Prange, a former domestic in the Morrison household.

Twenty-two fifty is quite a well known clothing price ... almost a common clothing price today... but these Stewart McCrays are the most uncommon suits you've ever seen ... tailored by hand instead of machine ... quality worsted woolens instead of the ordinary soft kind. Keen, live, expensive styling ... expensive patterns ... expensive, unconditionally guaranteed celanese linings. They're such wonderful suits and such wonderful values that they're startling the clothing world as well as the public

60,000 PARISIANS CHEER AS BRIAND RETURNS A HERO

Crowd Beats Up His Foes —Cafes Are Wrecked.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 22.—Fully 60,000 admirers, yelling in a mighty rhythm, jammed the environs of the Lyons railway station tonight to greet Foreign Minister Briand upon his return from Geneva. It was a triumphant welcome, contrasting mightily with the different "Vive Briands" by a pitiful handful of admirers when he left for Geneva a week ago, discredited by his defeat for the presidency. The crowds were still parading the boulevards at 2 o'clock this morning, shouting "Vive Briand."

ARISTIDE BRIAND.

About 1,000 hot headed young royalists dared the enthusiasm of the surging pro-Briand throng outside the station, swinging their heavy canes, their traditional weapon, and precipitating a bloody riot in which upwards of 100 were injured and scores arrested.

Several Cafés Wrecked.

Several cafés were wrecked in the whirl of fighting. The proprietors of others managed to close their iron shutters in time to avoid damage. The royalist attack, too, was considered a tribute to the veteran foreign minister, for they were contemptuously absent a week ago when he departed for Geneva, fully convinced that he was through.

Obviously uncertain of the nature of the welcome awaiting him from the tremendous throng, Briand looked nervous and pale as he stepped off the train. For several moments he was tossed about like a cork, despite the best efforts of scores of policemen. Glass was shattered within a few feet of him as the pressure of the crowd burst the station windows. A great bouquet of roses was thrown at him as his admirers realized that it was hopeless to think of getting near enough to hand them to him. He was hustled into an automobile, supported on both sides by secret service men.

Dozens Are Beaten Up.

Dozens of luckless royalists, caught in side streets by aroused Briand partisans and beaten, were rescued by police and taken to hospitals.

Briand will go to his farm at Cocherel, in Normandy, tomorrow morning. On Tuesday he will offer his resignation at a cabinet meeting. In view of the veteran foreign minister's new successes at Geneva, the general opinion tonight is that he will almost certainly be asked to keep his portfolio until June 13, when the entire cabinet will automatically quit to allow the new president, Paul Doumer, to appoint his own premier. It was predicted tonight by observers at the Quai d'Orsay that Briand will stay.

GENEVA TAKES STOCK

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, May 22.—While Foreign Minister Briand was being greeted with a wild partisan riot on his arrival in Paris tonight, Geneva was taking stock of what it considers to be his greatest diplomatic triumph since his historic interview with the late Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany. There was almost a riot at the station here, too, when he left this afternoon. Hundreds of enthusiastic admirers fought to get a glimpse of their idol, shouting "Vive Briand" and "Long live peace."

How all this came about none can say. Six days ago Briand arrived here a broken old man, discredited by his country. He sat listlessly through the open sessions of the league of nations council, expressing mechanically the official views of his government. His friends came around to bid him a last farewell and his enemies came around to pay their deference to one who has been a gallant foe and who now could do no harm. It may be that they swallowed too quickly the general theory that Briand was finished.

Wins Many Triumphs.

In any event, Briand as a private individual was talking man to man, and he accomplished in six days what he had been unable to accomplish for the last three years.

For in that time he had shelved the threat of the Austro-German customs treaty, he ended the cold relations with Italy, which had turned the balance of power on the continent against France, and he changed the Pan-European commission from a burial club into a construction gang. As a final triumph he brought about at a private committee meeting today a compromise on the ticklish question of the questionnaire on armaments which had threatened to block the disarmament conference.

Spurns Wine Toast to Presidents

He explained later he would not permit himself to be photographed in the group of twenty other American mayors as "a lawbreaker." The picture was taken in Chicago when the mayor was greeted by Col. Robert I. Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce.

Gandhi Upsets British Plan for Round-Table on India

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SIMLA, India, May 22.—All India and Great Britain, too, tonight awaited word as to whether Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, would attend the meeting of the federal structures committee called in London on June 29.

But the crafty little saint in his mountain retreat at Naini Tal would not say yes or no to that date or any other date, or, in fact, whether he was going at all. His silence has thrown the Indian political situation into a worse muddle than at any time since the first round table conference adjourned, inasmuch as the British government, after setting the June date, is now in the awkward position of having to await Gandhi's pleasure, whatever that is.

Insists Date Is Too Early.

Gandhi did telegraph the viceroy today that June 29 was too early, since it gives him only three weeks before sailing time to settle the Hindu-Moslem communal problem and all the difficulties regarding the Delhi truce, not least of which is the matter of releasing several hundred prisoners who, Gandhi insists, should be freed before he negotiates with London.

Gandhi told newspaper men he would announce definitely his decision as to whether he would go to London or not on June 3. He said he was leaving Naini Tal tomorrow for Gujarat, where, his followers insist, the government has not returned confiscated property nor otherwise honored the truce terms.

The government today reserved cabins for the Indian delegates on a London-bound steamer, which leaves Bombay on June 13.

Suggest Postponing Parley.

Most of the other Indian members of the federal structures committee plainly declared, however, that it would be no use of their going to London without Gandhi. Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, one of the leading members of the committee, wired from Allahabad that the conference would be futile without the all-India congress leader, and suggested a postponement, if necessary, to suit the "holy man."

Most of the Indian leaders agreed that three weeks would not be enough to settle the centuries old Hindu-Moslem dispute. Pundit Malaviya, high priest of the Hindus, dissented, declaring:

"If we cannot settle the question in three weeks we cannot do it in three months."

"Would you go to London without a communal settlement?" he was asked.

"No, it would be too humiliating to air such family troubles before the English," he replied.

Pundit Raps Government.

Pundit Malaviya accused the Indian government of holding up the constitutional work by its failure to observe the peace pact.

"Gandhi and the government could settle the whole question of the truce obligations, such as the release of certain political prisoners, and the return of confiscated property within 24 hours," he said. "This would give Gandhi a chance to devote his labors to settling the Hindu-Moslem question. But the niggardly spirit of the government prevents this, and Gandhi has to spend all his time in seeing that the truce terms are carried out. Until he is satisfied that they have been carried out, he will not consider the London trip."

ENCYCLICAL ON LABOR GOES OUT VIA RADIO TODAY

ROME, May 22.—(AP)—Catholics and the world at large tonight awaited Pope Pius' encyclical on labor, to be issued tomorrow, on the fortieth anniversary of Rerum Novarum, Pope Leo XIII.'s encyclical on the same subject.

The pope will extend the views of his predecessor still farther by applying them to changed modern conditions and will lay down the church's views on the relations of capital, labor, communism, and socialism.

It will consist of about 15,000 words, and will be broadcast by the Vatican in the original Latin at 7 p. m. Greenwich time (2 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time), on a wave length of 50.26 meters. It will be read by Father Fianfranceschi, director of the Vatican radio station. The English version may not be issued before Monday.

CHARLIE DOES HIS BIT FOR CITY OF HIS BOYHOOD

Back from West, Sends Mayor $5,000 for Poor.

would be better off out west where there is room and fortunes still in the ground.

"I thought some of going out to Solomon's valley in Kansas, where a fellow named Warren on Kinzie street wanted me to go, but I didn't have enough money to buy land, let alone railroad fare. So one day there was an advertisement that laborers was wanted and could get free fare to help build the Santa Fé west from Albuquerque towards San Diego, Cal. That was better than Kansas so I go down to Sperbeck's on West Randolph street and ship out with a gang. It was great riding out west at last and when I seen the mountains in Colorado I nearly jumped out of the train. It was grand and free out there and still is.

He Gets Gold Fever.

"Well, I worked on the railroad a time, but soon seen I was not going to get ahead any there, as they kept a fellow in debt for meals and blankets and things and then there was always a gambler set up a tent on payday and helped take our money away. So I met a fellow that said we better strike out for ourselves into the gold country around the Panaminta, them hills you see around Death valley in California.

"I was what is called a 'desert rat,' I guess, and I got a burro and a stake together, and after I learned the trick of looking for leads, I went out alone a good many times, sometimes months at a time. I would put the dust in a bottle and when winter came would have enough to last me through. There were months out in the hills I only seen my burro and a cat I carried around.

"Maybe this is enough about myself, but what I am driving at is that I found more than a bottle full one day and it fixed me for the rest of my life. I got health and happiness out west a-plenty. I didn't have chick or child and what to do with this extra money worried me. I traveled around awhile and went to them coast cities and Old Mexico and then I thought I could come back to Chicago

Tries to Help Poor.

"Well, I gave some money last winter to the governor's commission and chipped in to help out in the soup places on Madison street, but I couldn't see where that was helping much, and I got the idea maybe you would find a better way to get some people started right again, as I read where you ran the county institutions and know about the poor and want to help them.

"I read in the paper, too, where you told the police not to be snooping around in poor folks' homes for beer. Out west we don't take much stock in all that. Live and let live is our motto.

"If you could take the time to help me pick out the right families and some young fellows that need a new start, here is $5,000 to turn that way. It will make me feel a lot better to help Chicago this way, and there is always more where this treasure came from. I don't want a lot of cranks telling me what to do, and have decided you are the right man to do this job."

Leaves Room in Hotel.

Early this morning "Good Time Charlie" had not returned to the Drake. According to Arthur Connelly, night clerk, the guest left at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Dawson, he said, paid for his room until today, but cautioned him not to rent it, saying he planned to return.

Hotel attachés described the westerner as tall, stoop shouldered, and fairly well dressed. He wore a full brim hat, almost like a sombrero. He was very liberal and agreeable, according to Charles Morris, a bell boy. Dawson is said to have tipped one bus boy lavishly.

MICHIGAN S. C. CO-EDS' CLASS FIGHT ROUGH —ONE IS UNCONSCIOUS

Lansing, Mich., May 22.—[Special.]—Co-ed class rivalry on the Michigan State college campus has assumed such Amazonian proportions that one of the campus beauties, Miss Marian Hawley of Ludington, was knocked senseless for a time by feminine assailants during a free for all between senior and junior girls last night.

The junior girls, including Miss Hawley, attempted to break up a senior "feed." In the mêlée, during which scratching, hair pulling and clothes ripping were interspersed with some good, old fashioned masculine punching, a score or more girls suffered minor casualties. The juniors, by force of numbers, rushed the seniors, imprisoning some in the hall where they had gathered for their "feed," locking others in an elevator, and ducking most of the remainder in the river that traverses the campus.

Miss Hawley, overpowered by several assailants, lost consciousness for several minutes, but resumed her place among the embattled juniors without requiring more than amateur first aid attention.

FRANCE CREATES ARTIFICIAL FOG TO HIDE TOWNS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 22.—Artificial fog to hide villages and towns from airplanes in wartime was made and used yesterday at the village of Lincelles, near Tourcoing.

The fog is made by pouring on lime a mixture of sulphuric anhydrid and sulphuric acid. The lime was placed in four big iron receptacles upwind from the village. Immediately when the chemical mixture was poured on a white fog began to rise and drifted at a rate of about thirty feet a second southward, blotting out the entire village.

The inhabitants had been warned of what was taking place and were ready for it. Apparently it did no harm.

CHEMICAL HONOR MEDAL IS GIVEN TO DR. LEVENE

DR. P. A. LEVENE.

Dr. Phoebus A. Levene, member of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, was presented with the Willard Gibbs medal for chemical research at a banquet given for him last night by the Chicago section of the American Chemical society in the Steuben club. He responded with a speech on "The Revolt of the Biochemists" in which he set about to justify the place of biochemistry in the field of sciences.

Dr. Levene was chosen for the honor for his research in the field of biological chemistry. Hermann A. Schlesimger, chairman of the Chicago section of the society, presided and Prof. Fred C. Koch of the University of Chicago made the presentation of the medal. Other speakers were Lawrence V. Redman, president elect of the American Chemical society, and Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

"Whether the human mind will ever attain complete and absolute mastery over life is not essential," said Dr. Levene. "It is certain, however, that the revolt of the biochemist against the idea of a restriction to human curiosity will continue."

U. S. International Lawyers Honor Chief Justice Hughes

New York, May 22.—(AP)—Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice of the United States, was elected honorary president of the American branch of the International Law association at the annual meeting today. Arthur K. Kuhn presided in the absence of John W. Davis, president. The only resolution adopted indorsed the work of the assembly of the league of nations in its effort to promote codification of international law.

Follow These Simple Rules:

1. Each evening for 42 consecutive evenings (not including Saturdays) W-G-N will broadcast 3 songs of yesterday—"Tune Tangles." On each day following the broadcast the Chicago Tribune will print a "Tune Tangle" Crossword Puzzle. Each puzzle will contain the title of one of the songs broadcast the preceding evening. You are invited to listen to the broadcast, solve the Tune Tangle Crossword in the next day's Tribune and name the song.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved and neatest complete sets of answers in accordance with these rules. NOTE: This means that you do not necessarily have to solve each of the 42 Tune Tangles completely to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest.

3. The prizes are as follows:

1st Prize		$1,000.00
2nd Prize		500.00
3rd Prize		250.00
Next 2 Prizes,	$100.00 each	200.00
Next 5 Prizes,	50.00 each	250.00
Next 10 Prizes,	25.00 each	250.00
Next 100 Prizes,	10.00 each	1,000.00
Next 310 Prizes,	5.00 each	1,550.00
430 Prizes, Totaling		$5,000.00

4. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

5. Tune Tangle Crosswords are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 42. Then send them to "Tune Tangles," Chicago Tribune, Post office Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight, 15 days after Puzzle No. 42 has been printed.

6. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Postoffice Department. Contestants may submit as many sets of puzzles as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

7. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

8. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

THE NEXT TUNE TANGLE WILL APPEAR IN MONDAY'S TRIBUNE

SHOW CITY PAYS HIGH PRICES FOR USE OF TRUCKS

Private Business Gets Them More Cheaply.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Mayor Cermak has repeatedly and emphatically declared: "City expenses must be cut; taxes are too high."

COL. A. A. SPRAGUE.

Only 55.41 per cent of the county's 1929 tax bill has been paid.

It appears that one reason taxes are so high is the rental price paid by the city for teams and trucks. Records show that the street bureau pays $11.50 a day for a man and a team. A truck and a driver used in garbage collection costs $27.50 a day. A truck and driver used in street repairs costs $25.

A few inquiries indicated yesterday that those prices are a fifth to a third higher than private corporations are paying for like service. The city's rates were established at the peak of the hauling prices, and have not adjusted to the level of cartage charges since the business depression. The result is that the city is paying $50,000 to $570,000 more for the street hauling service than is private business.

It's a Hush-Hush Matter.

But every one in politics speaks about the matter in a whisper. These rates and trucks, it is said, are political spoils. The city does not advertise for bids to haul and award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder, of whom there are many at present seeking hauling contracts.

The teams and trucks are apportioned by ward leaders, it is said, and they deal them out among their constituents, or in some instances grab the plum themselves. The prices paid for teaming and truck service are supposed to be at "the established rate," but there is no "established rate" for the specific job of hauling street sweepings and garbage. Only the city itself is engaged in that business. So the business agent for the truck drivers union establishes the rate.

Then in the trucking business [illegible] are always hoping they will get some business from the city without protest. Indeed they seldom ask, except to hand out their rate schedule, which is frequently higher than is actually charged.

Two Truck Owners.

Two truck owners asserted yesterday, however, after a pledge that their name would not be used, that the city could hire trucks for much less money than is now paid. One said a clever trader could get a truck and driver for $20 to $21 a day and the other said the cost would be from $20 to $22. Those prices are for trucks for which the city pays $27.50 a day.

As 55% of the total saving which might be effected is conveyed by the record the city has been spending for hauling garbage and ashes. The street bureau spent $2,236,846 in 1928 for teams and trucks, $2,066,004 in 1929, $1,850,375 for 1930 and has $1,720,000 for expenditure this year.

It is expected that Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, will attempt to trim this bill for team and truck hire when he returns to the city next week. He was head of the department of public works under the late Mayor Dever.

An Incident of 1925.

One day back in 1925 Charles McGregor, then business agent for the ash and garbage teams and trucks, walked into Commissioner Sprague's office and demanded that the truck rate be increased. The city was then paying $32.50, and McGregor thought that $37.50 would be a fair price.

"Just as fast," replied the commissioner. "We will advertise for bids and find out what contractors are willing to haul for."

The bids were opened on March 18, 1925. Col. Sprague decided as a result that instead of increasing the rate $5 a truck per day there should be a decrease of $5. So he cut the price to $27.50, where it has remained ever since. The aldermen became sorry of Col. Sprague and they established the rate for teams in the annual appropriation bill, so that he would have to pay it whether fair or unreasonable.

The excuse given for paying $37.50 a day for a truck in the street repair division is that each truck hauling asphalt must be insulated in order to get the material on the job while heated at 263 degrees above zero. Then it is also argued that these trucks have only four months' work a year.

The fact is that the insulated box for an asphalt truck is so constructed that it can be readily removed and the truck used for other service. The record of expenditures indicates that trucks are employed for more than four months a year.

In February the record shows the city spent $13,361 for 35 street repair trucks operating for an average of 10 days each. In March the expenditures were doubled, reaching $26,740; in April they ran up to $29,108, and still the summer is all before the city for street repairs.

Trucking and Politics.

The pay roll indicates that large sums of the money paid by the city for teams and trucks finds its way into politics. The records for garbage and ash hauling supply an illustration. The street bureau for this service paid out a total of $146,565 in February.

This happened to be better weather for pavement cleaning than was March, but the mayoralty election campaign was going strong during March. The expense for garbage and ash removal in that month was $174,262—a jump of $27,600. In April, after the election was over, the expense dropped back to $161,056—a saving of $14,200.

Paris Gets Message

PARIS, May 22.—(AP)—A message was received today from Juba, in the central provinces, British India, from the Bradley-Bigelow expedition of Chicago, disclosing that the expedition was marooned at Juba until its airplanes could be repaired.

"Crossed Africa successfully," the message said. "Now marooned at Juba through breakdown of three planes of the Imperial Airways."

Herbert E. Bradley and Harry A. Bigelow, two Chicago lawyers, went to Africa to hunt elephants and tried to persuade the chief of a pygmy tribe to take his whole village to the Chicago exposition. Mr. Bradley was accompanied by his wife, Mary Hastings Bradley, and their daughter, Alice.

Armour Freshmen Defeat Sophs in Annual Battle

Freshmen of Armour institute won the annual class rush with the sophomores on the athletic field at 33d and Federal streets yesterday afternoon. For ten minutes, beginning at 1 o'clock, the field was a writhing mass of disheveled students as the two classes fought, pushed, and pulled to get the largest number of saw dust sacks in their possession. A pile of sacks was stacked in the center of the field and the class that retrieved the most of them was victor.

PHYSICIAN AIDS IN OPERATION ON SELF IN SOUTH

New Orleans, La., March 22.—(AP)—Dr. Emmett L. Irwin, president of the Orleans Parish Medical society and professor of surgery at Louisiana State university, partially directed an operation for acute appendicitis performed on him at a hospital here today.

Calling for a local anaesthetic when he was stricken, he had mirrors placed above the operating table through which he watched the operation, frequently consulting with Dr. Martin O. Miller and Dr. Shirley Lyons, who performed it.

His physicians said he suffered no ill effects from the experience and was resting well several hours later.

FAMOUS WAR VET KILLS WIFE, KIN OF POET TENNYSON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDMONTON, Alta., May 22.—Col. Hilliard Lyle, veteran of the world war, in which he made a distinguished record with the Winnipeg battalion, today shot and killed his wife and then ended his own life at Beaver Lodge, 400 miles north of here. Mrs. Lyle was formerly Gertrude Tennyson, niece of Lord Tennyson, son of the poet. Her daughter Wilhelmina is at present studying at the Chicago College of Music.

Lyle was one of the few who were decorated by two kings, King Edward and King George. When he returned from the South African war with the Lord Strathcona Horse he was personally decorated by King Edward and when he returned to England from France in 1919 King George himself pinned the Cross of the Distinguished Service Order on his breast.

LAWYER TELLS HOW BARBER JAKE TOOK $2,775,000

Assembles Charges for Hearing Monday.

Attorney Franklin Overmyer, representing the British crown, said yesterday that he is prepared to show on Monday that John (Jake the Barber) Factor swindled English investors out of high grade stocks which he sold for $2,775,000 from March to October, 1930.

The evidence which Attorney Overmyer has received from England will be used in an attempt to have the former Halsted street hair cutter remanded to jail, pending the outcome of his extradition hearing before United States Commissioner Walker. Factor's alleged accomplices, Arthur J. Klein in New York and Harry Geen in Philadelphia, have been in jail since their apprehension, but Factor is virtually at liberty, being privileged to go where he chooses when accompanied by a deputy United States marshal.

Keep Place a Secret.

Marshal Henry C. W. Laubenheimer, chief custodian of the master swindler, refused to divulge the whereabouts of his charge.

"I will only say that he is in safe keeping and that he is quartered in a hotel suite," said the marshal. "If I told you where Mr. Factor is staying, there'd be a thousand people trying to see him."

A deposition taken from Augustus Young, a member of the London Stock exchange, setting forth that he sold Factor a total of $475,000 worth of good securities and bought $3,250,000 worth from him from March to October, 1930, will be introduced by Attorney Overmyer. The British authorities who obtained a warrant for Factor's arrest allege that he used the good stocks he bought from Young as bait for the suckers, and that the stocks he sold through Young were obtained from middle class investors in exchange for worthless shares of his own printing.

Total "Take" Is $5,000,000.

These transactions alone would represent a swindle of $2,775,000, but Factor also received cash contributions from hundreds of his investors, running the total defalcation to more than $5,000,000, according to the complaints.

Further light on Factor's methods is disclosed in the depositions which have been used in the Klein and Geen extradition cases. A deposition from Mrs. Gladys Stacy of Bury, Epping in Essex, states that for six months she received free of charge the magazine Finance, published by the Broad Street Press, Ltd., praising the financial genius of Norman D. Spencer, a mythical character of Factor's creation.

Then Mrs. Stacy received a letter urging the purchase of Swears & Wells shares at $3.75. She bought $1,500 worth. A few weeks later she was advised that the stock stood at $4.75, but was urged to hold, for it would go still higher. At the same time she was told of the opportunities in Rhodesia Copper, "soon to be listed on the London exchange."

How One Woman Lost.

Another brief wait and Mrs. Stacy was advised by mail to sell her Swears & Wells at $5.25 and to invest the original $1,500 in Rhodesia Copper. She had a profit of $600 on the Swears & Wells, but soon received a letter stating that Norman D. Spencer had gone abroad for his health's sake. That was the last she heard of Rhodesia Copper. Net loss $900.

Frederick William Kerner, a London linen draper, deposes that he also received "Finance" free, and that on its advice he bought £142 worth of Edison Bell, Ltd. On advice of a telegram he sold out with a profit of £79, but he reinvested his original in Vulcan Copper, never heard of again, so that his loss was £63.

The story is the same for hundreds of investors. At first good stocks and a fair profit. Then Rhodesia Border Mining or Asbestos Holding company, and Norman D. Spencer left "for his health."

PRESTON BRADLEY, 3, ADRIFT IN A BOAT ON LAKE FOR 20 HOURS

Virginia, Minn., May 22.—(AP)—How a party of four was rescued from their motor boat in Lake Vermilion after being marooned 20 hours in their disabled craft in near freezing temperature, was recounted today by Dr. Preston Bradley, Chicago, president of the Izaak Walton League of America. Dr. Bradley is pastor of the People's Liberal church of Chicago.

Adrift on a remote part of the lake after the motor stopped, Dr. Bradley, Mrs. Bradley, and two friends finally were rescued yesterday by three fishermen who heard the repeated sounding of the craft's horn as it was buffeted about.

Although the four were without food during the 20 hours adrift and without heat while the temperature hovered around the freezing mark, none apparently suffered any ill effects.

RELY ON HORSES TO MAKE SOVIET TRACTORS MOVE

Russian Plant 'Produces' 80 Per Cent Waste.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STALINGRAD, U. S. S. R., April 27.—[By mail.]—Tractorstrel's production is 80 per cent scrap thus far. The huge new tractor factory, designed to manufacture tractors for the soviet government at the rate of 50,000 per year, has thus far in its six months of existence averaged 22 per day.

Twenty-two per day is the average, but how many tractors of that number will run is another story. They drag the completed and assembled machines out of the plant with horses.

Tractorstrel is located in a model town on the Volga, twelve miles from this city. It was once called Tsaritsin, but that smacked too much of Little Father Nicholas, so they changed the label and made it vanilla.

Even Russians Are Disgusted.

Conditions in Stalingrad are so rotten that even the Russian press has been permitted by the censors to bust through the smoke screen and demand a reorganization, and the employés of the Putiloff works at Leningrad have sent their comrades here a manifesto expressing surprise, indignation and disgust that they, in their brand new $13,000,000 plant are only turning out half as many tractors as the Putiloff crew is producing in their old shed up north.

Lack of material, lack of organization, lack of ability, and lack of interest about cover the factors that account for Stalingrad's failure to produce anything but scrap. An American expert estimated that the few tractors produced thus far represent an outlay of about $36,000 apiece at the official rate of exchange. The big models are sold to the state farms and collectives for $6,000 each.

A year ago the soviet government imported 176 American skilled mechanics to come to Stalingrad and show the Russian workmen how to construct tractors. The Yankees were recruited from the jobless marching the streets of Detroit, and most of them came on ruble wages, with no part paid in dollars. The imported labor included a large number of Russian born mechanics, who had worked in America briefly. Many of them had marked communist leanings.

Drink and Gamble.

It's a sad tale about these Americans. With no work and operations suspended because the plant could obtain no material, they had nothing to do but drink vodka and gamble. They brought their educated dice and trained cards with them.

They shot dice, played stud, blackjack and poker nightly in their apartments and clubrooms in the city alongside the plant. The lads in on the deal cleaned up big, ringing in the intelligent 6-8 ivories and the delicately marked cards. One of them, a Mr. Kelly, is said to have amassed $62,500, embracing nearly the entire company pay roll. The losers were not only Americans. The poor, unsophisticated Russian workers, who thought the American game with its galloping dominoes was the best they had seen since the Chinese introduced fan tan, were also casualties.

Complaints broke out everywhere and the officials deported all the gamblers they could find, and they located most of them. The card sharps tried to convert their winnings from rubles into dollars and had to make heartbreaking sacrifices, offering twenty and thirty for $1, with few takers.

They also trifled with the Russian girls. Every Russian girl wants to get married, and all prefer foreign hubbies. Some succumbed to trial marriage suggestions and scandals followed with malicious gossip at its best.

Negro Causes Free-for-All.

Then came a free-for-all when various Americans became angry because of the actions of a Negro named Roberts. Mister Roberts, it seemed, cast diplomacy and tact to the winds and stepped up to a Russian girl at a dance while her American escort was outside taking a drink of vodka and asked her for a fox trot. When the Yankee returned and saw her whirling around in Roberts' arms he started swinging his fists and three or four Russian peacemakers, who tried to interfere, were lying on top of the Negro when they started unscrambling the heap.

That broke up the dance in the clubhouse that night, chiefly because all the phonograph records were broken in the fracas.

Then things began to get on the nerves of the Americans. They objected to the "communist business" and the five year plan, and frequently when a group of Russians full of enthusiasm [that's free] and maybe some vodka [that's expensive] began acclaiming their projects, an American would step up and hit a few of them on the nose and it would take nearly half the local garrison of the G. P. U. to restrain him.

All these things did not work for the "proper spirit of coöperation and mutual collaboration" for which the Americans had been imported. So when the year's contracts expired a few months ago the Russians began discharging them. Now there are only a few left.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 22.—(AP)—Miss Ruth Fesler, former social secretary to Mrs. Herbert Hoover, was married at noon today to Robert Lockwood Lipman Jr., San Francisco lawyer, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. James Nyswander, in Ann Arbor. After the ceremony the couple left for California.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fesler of Duluth, Minn., was graduated from Leland Stanford university and served as secretary to Mrs. Hoover until the announcement of her engagement several weeks ago. Mr. Lipman is a graduate of the University of California. They will make their home in Berkeley, Cal.

SENATORS PLAN BATTLE TO CURB CAPITAL CRIME

Radicals, Drys Gird for Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.]—If enforcement of the law in Washington has not improved by next December, congress is going to take a hand in it.

A movement is on foot, it was learned today, among members of the senate to collect evidence of law violations and have it in hand when the new congress convenes. It is a quiet, tip-toe movement like the silent rendezvous of vigilantes, but it is a definite activity, so its sponsors will testify.

It is plotting out legislation and it has in mind, if it becomes necessary, a senate resolution calling upon the administration and the government of the District of Columbia to remedy present conditions.

Howell, Brookhart on List.

At its head, of course, are senators whose dryness is superimposed on a foundation of radicalism. Such men are Howell of Nebraska and Brookhart of Iowa. But these more fanatic leaders claim that the ranks number also many senators of unquestioned stand-pat caliber.

The senate mail bags, said one member of the group today, have been burdened with an assortment of complaints—of a speakeasy running here, of police negligence there. Letters of this sort, said the same authority, have been particularly frequent during the last few days with its record of nine shootings and six murdered persons.

In the words of this same senator, "there are several things in Washington that need cleaning up."

D. C. Dry Act Planned.

One piece of legislation is certain to be pushed before the next congress, and that is the Howell bill for a District of Columbia prohibition act. The bill was assailed and finally sidetracked at the last session largely because of its drastic search and seizure provision. Senator Howell promises to tone this clause down and is confident of his bill's eventual passage.

The liquor situation in Washington is probably about what it is in other cities of its size, that is, close to half a million people.

There is no organized beer racket such as there is in Chicago; in fact, beer is hard to get. Nor are there night club speakeasies—either of the expensive, raucous type, or of the knock on the door, hole in the wall type—such as are to be found in New York.

Plenty of Liquor.

But there is plenty of liquor. If the buyer can pay for it, he calls his bootlegger and gets authentic—or near authentic—stuff run in from the Maryland shore or up from Savannah. If he is not so well healed but just as thirsty, he can buy Virginia corn or Maryland rye which also is authentic and can be made reasonably paltable for storing it in a charred keg for a month or two.

An additional factor enters into the Washington situation — diplomatic liquor. Receptions at foreign embassies and legations are too often notable for the crowd of American guests, who elbow each other in a perspiring scramble to lap up free booze, while their foreign hosts look on a little sadly and more than a little bewildered.

BOOKS

Ideas Wander, Homelessly, in This New Book

It's Ford Madox Ford in Unusual Novel.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"WHEN THE WICKED MAN," by Ford Madox Ford [Liveright], is the latest novel of the author of one of the greatest novels of our day, the tetralogy beginning with "Some Do Not." One never would recognize the two books as the product of the same pen, however. "When the Wicked Man" is so diffuse in its method it at times is little more than a confusing jumble of events, thoughts and memories, with no sequence to help one through the maze.

FORD MADOX FORD.

There are, as it seems to me, two kinds of confusing books in these days, the Ulysses type and the unmotivatedly confusing type. "Ulysses" is difficult to read because the material which flows through the mind of the principal character is, like all thought in all but the most regimented minds, confused and apparently unrelated. But a careful examination of it shows you that it is all related to the main fact, that it does flow through one human consciousness. If you want to take the trouble you can trace back the route on the mental map which produced the sequence of ideas. Also, there is a strictly regulated pattern to "Ulysses" as far as the author is concerned. He chose to write about the ebb and flow of human thought and its consequent or causal action. The result is, I grant you, seeming confusion, but artistically it has a definite pattern.

"When the Wicked Man" has no pattern. It is neither action causing or being the effect of thought nor thought being the effect or the cause of action. It is not a study of the flow of consciousness through any one character or through all of the characters. It has no pattern, either of plot or of style. It is extremely difficult to read, and for most of it, not alluring in its problems. You get tired, after a hundred pages or so of it, trying to figure out what Mr. Ford is doing artistically or technically. "When the Wicked Man" leaves the reader merely confused, not at all moved by any sense of contact with reality.

And yet there are flashes here and there of that amazing robustness of writing which he propounds so vividly in "Joseph Conrad," which was published in 1924. That book, which purports to be a biographical memoir of Conrad, really is one of the most important critical essays ever written on the art of novel writing. In it Ford sets down the passionate arguments which he and Conrad had when they were collaborating on "Romance" and "The Inheritors," as fine a critical evaluation of methods and style as ever has been talked or written. One of their arguments was about the writing of conversation. Conversation in real life never is, so Ford said, the straightaway kind of talk that most novelists put into the mouths of their characters. Real people, when they talk, interrupt each other in the middle of sentences, don't finish the sentences, or allow their own thoughts to interrupt them.

To gain a verisimilitude to reality in written conversation it should be that piecemeal kind of talk, Ford contended. In "Some Do Not," he examplied that theory superbly. There is a tense emotional effect gained by one character interrupting another in talk which is undeniably impressive. But that is true only when the conversations thus dovetail into a sequence. The conversation in "When the Wicked Man" sometimes does exactly that, and when it does you have from the pages a sense of reality which touches the pulse of life, just as you did from "Some Do Not." But mostly the characters interrupt one another or let their thoughts trail off into space without any special reality.

THE NEW BOOKS

The Dogs, by Ivan Nazhivin [Lippincott], is a story of Russian life during the war and the downfall of the czar and the early days of the revolution.

Sam, by Freeman Lincoln [Coward-McCann], concerns the question, whether to marry for money or for love.

Mister Noodle, by J. P. McEvoy [Simon & Schuster], is a satirical novel of a comic strip.

Forbidden Wine, by Frederic Arnold Kummer [Sears], is the love story of Omar Khayyam written as a modern romance.

The Fire in the Flesh, by Garibaldi M. Lapolla [Vanguard], is a tense tale of New York's Little Italy.

Crusade, by Royce Brier [Appleton], is about a reformer's efforts to clean up a small American town.

This Flesh, by Wythe Williams [McBride], is an intimate story of love and life.

Gambler's Wife, by Elizabeth Gertrude Stern [Macmillan], is the portrait of one.

The Trembling Flame, by Louis Joseph Vance [Lippincott], has as hero a family's black sheep.

Tunnel Hill, by Harlan Hatcher [Bobbs Merrill], is a saga of a Kentucky brickyard town and the brickyard itself.

Sea Loot, by A. D. Divine [McBride], is a modern Capt. Kidd adventure story.

Rafferty, by Willard Wiener [Farrar & Rinehart], tells of a man who struggles to rise above the events of day to day existence.

Companions, by Thomas Dixon [Otis], is about a minister who preaches on the new idea of marriage.

The Weigher of Souls, by André Maurois [Appleton], is a half-fantastic, half-imaginative story of an English doctor who tried to capture and then isolate the soul.

NONFICTION.

The Suffragette Movement, by Sylvia Pankhurst [Longmans], is a complete account of it by one of its pioneer leaders.

When Southern Labor Stirs, by Tom Tippett [Cape and Smith], tells the story of the strikes of southern textile workers in 1929 and 1930.

Soviet Foreign Trade, by J. M. Budish and Samuel S. Shipman [Liveright], shows the part it plays in national economy.

Fifty Years of Party Warfare, 1789-1837, by William O. Lynch [Bobbs Merrill], is a history of American political parties of that period.

The Tragedies of Progress, by Gina Lombroso [Dutton], tells of the future and foresees a new form of civilization.

The Story of Psychic Science, by Hereward Carrington [Washburn], is a simple and easily understood explanation of psychic phenomena.

The Physical Basis of Personality, by Charles R. Stockard [Norton], shows how the physical appearance of every human being is a definite clew to his behavior and answers many such questions with regard to human personality.

The Stars in Their Courses, by Sir James Jeans [Macmillan], is an introduction to modern astronomy and wonders of the universe.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Millionaires and Grub Street, by James Howard Bridge [Brentano's], tells of knights of science and barons of industry, memories of men of letters and human accounts of builders.

Galileo, by Emile Namer [McBride], is the life of the Searcher of the Heavens.

Aaron Burr, by Johnston D. Kerkhoff [Greenberg], is about the world's greatest lovers as well as a trickster politician.

A Warrior Who Fought Custer, by Thomas B. Marquis [Midwest], is the story of Wooden Leg, a member of the Northern Cheyenne tribe who was allied with the Sioux against Custer.

MYSTERY.

A Murder of Some Importance, by Bruce Graeme [Lippincott], tells of the murder of a French ambassador to England.

The Lonely House, by Arthur Gask [Macaulay], shelters many mysterious events, including a murder.

The Rum Row Murders, by Charles Reed Jones [Macaulay], is filled with rum running, hijacking, putting a congressman on the spot, and many other thrills.

ABOUT PLACES.

Porto Rico, by R. J. and E. K. Van Deusen [Holt], is a history of the Caribbean island by two people who have lived there for years.

Endurance, by Commander Frank Worsley [Cape & Smith], tells of the ill fated voyage of Sir Ernest Shackelton to the south pole in 1914.

Reporter Gets Trip to Moon After a Scoop

Book for Boys Based on Rocket Spaceship.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.
[Director of Children's Work for Branches of the Chicago Public Library.]

"By Rocket to the Moon," by Otto W. Gail. [Sears.]
"Boys' Book of Honor," by James West and Peter Lamb. [Revell.]

"From the skyrocket to the spaceship of the future is no farther than from the toy balloon to the transoceanic Zeppelin." So says Otto Willi Gail in the brief introduction to his thrilling adventure story "By Rocket to the Moon." After reading it the reader finds himself quite ready to believe that the young Lindberghs of the next generation will undertake trips to the moon as readily as those of our own day set out to span the oceans, for this story of the young German scientist and his rocket which carries a group of men far beyond the earth's boundaries into the wide hitherto untouched spaces of the planetary system offers as good a tale of fantastic adventure as it is possible to find.

As a story, there is no question of its interest for boys and men (and others, for that matter) who enjoy the spectacular and unusual in theme and setting. In the book Hans Hardt, scientist and inventor, has perfected a rocket whose motive power is produced by exhaust gas pressure, and as a preliminary to the trip to the moon, which is his objective, he tries his ship out on a trip to America. As a result, Tommy Bighead, reporter on the Michigan Evening Post, is confronted on a Michigan road one morning by a stranger, who hands him a bottle of German beer and a German newspaper, asks him to make a record of the time of meeting, and tells him that his name is Hans Hardt. Not until he reaches Detroit does Tommy learn the great news that Hans Hardt left Germany that morning at 10:30, unheralded, on his flight to America, and only then does he realize that the supposed lunatic to whom he had been speaking on the road was the same man. That is the beginning of the biggest adventure of his life for Tommy Bighead, an adventure which finally carries him as a stowaway on the rocket's trip to the moon, and which very nearly costs him his life.

The story of that trip through the vast spaces of the universe, of the exploration of the moon, and of the little party's safe return to earth to the wonderment of an amazed world is a great one, full of thrills and action. It also contains much of scientific interest for those whose technical knowledge of air transportation enables them to envision possibilities of the future, in this tale of fantasy of today.

A book of especial interest to boys and workers with boys is the "Boys' Book of Honor," by James E. West and Peter O. Lamb. The authors present a series of Boy Scout laws demonstrating that within each is ample opportunity for adventures of many kinds. It contains many interesting incidents and illustrations of courage, loyalty, etc. Mr. West is chief scout executive.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN IS CALLED FATHER OF ALL KIWANIANS

In Charles Angoff's two volumes, "A Literary History of the American People" [Knopf], covered from the beginning to 1815 [there will be two more volumes], appear these conclusions:

Benjamin Franklin was the father of all the Kiwanians. The vulgarity he spread is still with us.

Samuel Adams, the "American Bolshevik," was the greatest pamphleteer this country has yet produced.

John Hancock was vain, haughty, not very learned, and somewhat erratic in his loyalty to the cause of independence.

Thomas Jefferson was not an original thinker. He was a mediocre executive. He was not a great writer, and as a man left a good deal to be desired. But as a journalist of political theory he was perhaps the grandest the country has yet produced.

The finest poem written in America in the whole pre-revolutionary era was composed, not by a cavalier, not by an Oxford man, not by a learned theologian, but by a man who was probably a servant, po' white trash.

Mlle. Titayna Seems to Have World at Her Feet

"Mademoiselle Against the World," by Titayna [Liveright], is not exactly an appropriate title for this dashing and at times daring travelogue of a young Parisian newspaper woman who apparently had the world at her feet through every one of the 320 pages of breathless flying and sailing around the globe. The piquancy of her exploits, many of them worthy of the snappiest bob sister on a Yankee tabloid, is somewhat blunted by the self-complacency of this mademoiselle. One wearies a bit of this attitude even though the thrills be true.

"Ghost Writer" Gets His Due for Jobs Depicting Adventures

Malcolm Waldron did a fine bit of "ghost writing" in "Snow Man" [Houghton-Mifflin] for famous John Hornby, known as "The Hermit of the Arctic," and Capt. James Critchell-Bullock, a Bengal lancer. Both were well educated English gentlemen of the British public school type, and both kept diaries and notes of their thrilling travel through the Canadian barren lands, so Waldron's book is authentic in addition to being well written. It's a saga of the north that's a bit of a change from the flood of books on the tropics which have poured out of our publishing houses this season. It should make wonderful warm weather reading.

30 Years' War Is Basis of Popular German Novel

Germany of late years has been a fertile field for best sellers, and here is another novel which has had a sensational success beyond the Rhine. "Harm Wulf," by Hermann Lons, has sold 361,000 copies in Germany and was published here by Minton, Balch & Co. It is the story of a group of isolated peasants living on Lunsburg Heath during the grim days of the thirty years' war, when armed bands were stalking like death through the once fertile countryside.

Lons shows, in fiction form, what those long years of depredation and outlawry meant to a once kindly and simple yeomanry.

This Novel Tells Story of Mormons' Utah Trek

"Hell and Hallelujah," by Norton S. Parker [Dial Press], is, according to Senator Reed Smoot, "an interesting story, which has as its basis the facts surrounding the trek of the Latter Day Saints from Illinois to the Great Salt lake." The author is not a Mormon, and this is said to be the first novel on the subject written without propaganda either for or against.

will talk and autograph

Mr. Brown's book, just published today, is the official life of the great Rockne. In addition to being a life of the Coach, it contains a valuable appendix recording and analyzing the Notre Dame football relationships with other schools. There is action on every page of it. The president of Notre Dame, the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, has written a special introduction to the book.

You will want to hear Mr. Brown at this time, and if you would like a personally autographed copy of this book for your library, the author will be glad to sign it for you.

FRYING OUT THE POLITICAL FAT.

The collection of only about half of the taxes which fell due in Cook county on May 15 is a fact which has startled public officials, perhaps, but it has not led to appropriate action. For the most part they are going along as if nothing had happened.

But something has happened. And it calls for immediate action. The office holders must recognize that they face the most painful duty which any politician can be called upon to perform: the duty of reducing expenses. That task is commonly faced, if not performed, about the first of the year when the annual budgets are drawn. This year's budgets assumed that the revenues would come up to certain anticipated figures. It is now apparent that they will not. Although taxpayers have enjoyed what amounts, in effect, to a year's vacation they are unable or unwilling to pay their bills. There is no reason to assume that they will be more able or more willing as future taxes fall due. There is no reason, either, to assume that the legislature will vote relief, though it is plain that some relief measures are indicated. The legislature is not guided by a sense of responsibility to Chicago and its taxpayers, and to rely upon the legislature is therefore to rely upon next to nothing.

The local governments are faced with the necessity of suspending all their pay rolls and all their payments for supplies within a few months if the appropriations as made in January are adhered to. At best, the year is going to be a difficult one for the tax spenders. They can squirm through, perhaps, without suspending any of the essential public services only if a radical attack on expenditures is made immediately. That is the only hope.

Every one knows that the local governments have been, with few exceptions, scandalously wasteful. There is reason to believe that by and large the local governments have been paying from 50 per cent to 70 per cent more to contractors than private buyers would have paid for the same materials and services. The pay rolls are loaded with men and women who are not needed and who are not earning what they are paid. The waste and graft is political fat which can be fried out and must be fried out if the essential services performed by the police, the fire department, the county hospital, and the schools, for example, are to be continued through the year.

Executive officials must follow Mayor Cermak's lead in cutting costs. The political consequences will be serious to the men who must order the economies, but they will not be as serious as the consequences of complete suspension which must be regarded as the inevitable alternative.

TECHNOLOGICAL UNEMPLOYMENT.

H. G. Wells visited a building exposition in London the other day and among other interesting comment made the following:

"I am enormously impressed by the fact that the things that are necessary to mankind are being produced by a smaller and smaller proportion of actual workers. We have an enormous number of unemployed people for whom work has to be found. I don't believe that any kind of private market or private buying is going to take up the slack of economic life again and employ all those people, and absolutely new forms of employment have to be found. The obvious thing is to undertake immense architectural enterprises. We must accept the possibility of rehousing all mankind, of rebuilding every city in the world, of replanning the roads, the countryside, and the whole layout of human life. This is not a Utopian idea; it is a plain necessity."

Unquestionably what is called technological unemployment—that is, the displacement of manual workers by machines—has become a serious problem of our time. It is not essentially a new but a very old one. The transition from medieval conditions in England, during which landowners took to grazing for the profits of wool, brought about a widespread unemployment of agricultural laborers, with misery and tragic revolt. The industrial revolution of the 18th and 19th centuries was another such readjustment. These are the growing pains of a progressive society, but intelligent effort can at least ameliorate them. Mr. Wells points out only one of the fields in which labor can be absorbed, but it is one of the important ones. There is no doubt that even in America our people may and ought to be better housed, while the living conditions of the masses in Europe are greatly in need of improvement. This is true not only of the mere structure of dwellings but of their appointments.

Shortening of the hours of labor is perhaps the most popular suggestion for giving work to everybody, and there has been a steady development in that direction, at least in the United States. But reducing national effort involves serious consequences, social and economic. We are hearing a good deal these days about overproduction, but what has happened has been maladjustment in distribution. This will be corrected no doubt after some painful sacrifices have been accepted, but any permanent and drastic reduction of effort would reduce the distributable wealth of the world and be a loss to all. It is wiser to search out new means of useful employment, and produce, as well as generally distribute, new objects of use and enjoyment. In this way the material welfare of mankind may be advanced, the general standard of living raised, and labor employed upon conditions of social justice and well being.

This is perhaps the chief problem of modern society, a complicated and difficult problem, but one which is not beyond gradual solution. The first essential of solution is recognizing that the problem exists, and one of the uses of our present adversity is that we are at least beginning to see it. To solve it calls for the best thought and the best spirit of our time, but in spite of deficiencies in both we think there is enough enlightened self-interest as well as enough human regard for our fellow men in the world of today—at least in democratic America—to bring about the necessary adjustments, though after much trial and error.

PACIFISM OUT OF BEDLAM.

It is probably all for the best that the pacifist front is so frequently one of illogical and picayunish mentality. The average American is bound to be struck by the peculiarities of it, the snappy and vixenish attacks upon nationality, national institutions, the normal feelings of people toward their country and their innate belief in its value to them. The characteristics of persons and organizations who trade or traffic in the professions of peace, either neurotically or selfishly, must serve as exponents of the irrationality and contrary mindedness of much of the pacifist intent.

The protest against the maneuvers of the air forces affords a case in point. These operations were to test in the best and safest conditions possible the working of the war air machine in its very difficult problems of control and coöperation. If the emergency against which the air force is provided should demand its use the men and machines would have to perform the acts which the pacifists demanded they should not practice. It is a demand that the flyers should be as inexpert as possible for the service which the government and the people require of them. Consequently their own risks would be increased.

A viperish periodical addicted to pacifism announced that in the week of the air maneuvers meetings of protest would be held in Chicago and New York. It listed as giving sympathy and support to the protest the following organizations: The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the Y. M. C. A., the League of Industrial Democracy, the Chicago Church federation, the Workmen's circle, the League of Nations Nonpartisan association, the Chicago Federation of Labor, and the Socialist party. The authority for the inclusion of all these organizations is not given by the periodical, but it presents them all as objecting to the operations.

Fortunately this case may be submitted to the common public opinion of the country in confidence that the average sanity will perceive the perversion of thought and sentiment in the pacifist mind. If the organizations which objected to the maneuvers had been successful in preventing the building of airplanes for military service and the training of young men to fly them the consequences would concern the country at large. But the objection to fitting the men in the service for the work necessary to it means that these men shall be the victims of a thing the country has ordained they shall do. In the lack of proper training the pacifists would find an offering acceptable to the throne of peace.

Such a state of mind would be regarded as peculiar in a madhouse, but it is typical of pacifist effort. It shows in the determination to stop the simplest of civilian preparation for possible military duty. This preparation is the very antidote a peaceable country offers for what is called militarism, the maintenance of a large force whose sole objective is war. A peace loving nation tries to find civilian substitutes for the military systems of other countries. Out of Bedlam comes the attack upon it.

CONVENTION CITY.

Next year two national party conventions will be held, not counting that of the Socialist party. Chicago should see to it that both are held here. As Illinois is fighting ground for both the major parties, Chicago's case on that ground only is strong. But it is strong on every other ground. We have all the facilities for making the delegates comfortable. The summer climate of Chicago offers the greatest probability of good weather. Our resources of entertainment are unsurpassed. The city is the railroad center of the continent and more conveniently reached by a greater number of delegates than any other great city. Chicago has not had a national party convention for ten years. We think its turn is due for both conventions. A timely and efficient presentation of its claims is now assured by the very strong committee appointed by President Randolph of the Association of Commerce.

Editorial of the Day

SPOILING CHICAGO'S PARTY.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

In the mist of civic jubilation over its "spiritual rebirth" the old tax problem rises to pretty nearly spoil the party for Chicago.

The bankers to whom distressed Miss Dearborn has passed the hat so often now assert they can't buy another tax anticipation warrant. They have bought $300,000,000 of them to date to enable Miss Dearborn to pay her bills and get along. Always the hope has been strong that next month or next year the sorry assessment tangle would be straightened out and all would be well again on the banks of the drainage canal.

The revision of the assessment system put tax paying a year or more behind. Now the depression has made bad matters worse. The taxpaying period ends with $176,000,000 of the $276,000,000 in 1929 taxes still unpaid. Payless pay days are again appearing. Even the teachers are told that "perhaps" some of them will get last month's salary some time this week.

The situation is complicated almost beyond belief. There are more than 30 taxing bodies in Cook county and they don't know the name of teamwork.

Probably some way will be found out of the muddle. The best people who backed Mayor Cermak and have this week smiled on the jubilation over his election can hardly leave him in the lurch.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

RUSSIA SCARES US SOME MORE.

About every day now we get a big scare out of the Reds. Yesterday's horror-horror was that the soviets are going to plant wheat in Russia by the aid of bombing planes. Here we are with the Farm Board telling the boys down on the farm to go mighty slow in raising wheat and whatever crop they planted last year to plant less this year and over in Russia planting by motor propelled seeders is too slow and they're going to bomb seeds at the farms. Somebody is wrong, but nobody can decide just who. Anyhow, we ought to calm down and learn to receive tidings from the Reds without trembling all over and having horrible nightmares when we try to sleep. Today's story from Russia will probably be that they've got a scheme of entering the middle of the earth by a secret passage discovered in Siberia. And after they get down right into the middle of the earth the Reds will tap all the oil wells supplies underlying every nation and run the oil into the Black Sea, which will be drained of water to form a great natural oil reservoir. The Reds may be having trouble with some of the details of their Five Year Plan, but they're getting along great with their press agent work. When it comes to propaganda the Reds can dump more publicity than any other nation, and that's saying a lot.

BRASS FOR BAZAARS.

Brass for bazaars, and elephants for teak,
Went down the roads before this lute was cast,
Yet will the traders hunt in vain who seek
The dinted vessels and the patient, vast
Herds that went down before the toiling years,
While yet this lute has waited in this place
The gentle fingers where her lover's tears
Made her great gems and fell upon her face.

Still on the wind that echoes in the rose
The faint song lingers that she made for him,
And on her lute an ivory tremble goes
Before the wind, like loveliness grown dim.

So may your heart remember all I was
And all I was not, and my silences.

NANCY SHORES.

THE NEWSPAPERS make much whoopee in their headlines about a New York millionaire marrying another Follies beauty. We thought all New York millionaires married Follies beauties. Our understanding is that as soon as a New Yorker gets a million dollars he rushes out and marries a Follies beauty. It's a law or something.

AND ANOTHER THING! you schools of journalism. Never refer to a lady belonging to a Ziegfeld Follies company as an actress. Such a person, according to newspaper rules, is always a beauty. You'd better remember this. Many a promising cub reporter has been fired for less.

LAST WORD.

Dramatically Mr. Ralph Barton's suicide had its points, but I cannot but feel that his obituary would have been more effective had he prefaced it with something like this:

I long to clasp the hand of Comrade Death
And leave my tangled worries to their fate;
I'd murmur with my very final breath,
To hell with all the boresome fools I hate.
And as I passed Life's dismal outer gate
In Failure's mocking face I'd fling good-by,
Oh God! 'Twould be a privilege to die!

BERNARDINO.

SIG. TOSCANINI, the conductor of the New York Philharmonic who was mobbed in Bologna because he refused to play the Fascist hymn, is trying to alibi by saying he refused purely on artistic grounds. But that won't help things any. When Mussolini hears that his Fascist hymn has been called inartistic he will do something to Toscanini that has ground glass or boiling oil in it. Or even American jazz.

HUMOR IN THE COURTS. DON'T READ IT OR YOU'LL DIE LAFFIN!

(From the Jordan trial story in yesterday's News.)

A bit of humor was injected into the case today when Edwin S. Brain and W. F. Brawn were rejected as jurors.

"Brain and Brawn. We ought to get along fine," said Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne, "all we need now is Beauty."

Jordan joined in the laughter.

Of silk and shiny straws,
And crisp new frocks and lizard shoes
And gloves and gews and gaws.

It must be spring, but still, so far,
I've nobody to jilt.

Are surely bold enough,
Oh, yes, it's spring all right, but why
Can I not fall in lough?

GOOD-BY, MENINGITIS, FOR A WHILE.

THE danger of badly epidemic meningitis conditions has passed, so far as 1931 is concerned. There may be local outbreaks of small proportions and there is certain to be a greater general prevalence than there was two years ago in the same months, but conditions will not be bad and no one needs to be anxious. Certainly there will not be any such epidemic waves of meningitis as periodically swept across the country in the years prior to fifty years ago. In fact, there will be so little epidemic meningitis in the remainder of 1931 that the average citizen would never know it is around were there no health department reports and no health columns.

The next menace, so far as epidemics of disease of the central nervous system are concerned, is from possible epidemics of infantile paralysis. Local epidemics are apt to bob up toward the end of May. If the local health authorities and the people of the places where these outbreaks occur are careless and indifferent the local condition may smolder until later in the summer and then become bad. The greater menace is not due until about Aug. 1.

In the last twenty-five years the abdominal organs have been made safe so far as epidemic and near epidemic infections are concerned. This statement strains the word "safe" considerably, but as applied to comparative conditions it can be successfully defended. In more recent years the lungs are becoming safe from infections. There is a long road to travel before they can be said to be safe, but we are on the way.

But the bad news that somewhat offsets the good is that the central nervous system is in for trouble. There is an increasing tendency toward infections of those important organs. It seems probable that there are some new diseases in the making, and the old ones seem to be on the increase. Meanwhile, health people all over the world are at work trying to find cures for these diseases of the brain and cord and, what is more important, vaccines and methods to prevent them.

If a person will avoid infection this year, there is hope that a method of prevention will be found before the wheel turns him another chance to catch it.

MISSING HEART BEATS.

C. H. writes:

1. What causes the heart to miss a beat now and then in a boy of 18 years who is apparently in excellent health?
2. Would smoking cigarets have any effect on the heart?
3. Would the moderate use of coffee, two or three cups a day, using no cream or milk, be harmful?
4. Is this a dangerous condition?
5. How can it be remedied? [The tonsils were removed about four years ago.]

REPLY.

1. Adolescence, rapid growth, anemia, nervousness.
2. It might.
3. It might.
4. No.
5. Overcome what is wrong.

BABY, GLASSES, BREATH.

Mrs. H. W. writes:

1. At times my baby daughter gets her chin slightly sore from spitting and slobbering. What could I apply to remedy this?
2. I have heard that the sunlight through glasses darkens the skin under the eyes, causing those ugly circles. Is this so?
3. Does catarrh cause a bad breath?

REPLY.

1. Grease with any protective face cream.
2. No.
3. "Catarrh" is a very loose term. One disease of the nose, ozena, is sometimes called catarrh. It is one of the rarer causes of halitosis.

SEE YOUR DENTIST.

S. writes: What is the treatment for pyorrhea, and teeth shaking in the socket?

REPLY.

This is an advanced, long neglected case and the best that can be done for it is a cure in a limited sense. The teeth should be well scaled and cleaned. The gums should be treated. This includes the pus pockets at the tooth roots. The teeth should be anchored. In all probability you need treatment to change the position of some of your teeth. Your dentist will advise you as to your diet and as to mouth hygiene.

Do not try to hold on to these teeth too long. You may get rheumatism or neuritis out of them. Had you started caring for your mouth several years ago you might have escaped your present problem.

SEE A PSYCHIATRIST.

PATENTS.

Chicago, May 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can you please inform me just what steps are necessary for me to take in order to get a patent? W. M. F.

A patent may be obtained by any person who has invented any new and useful art, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, not known or used by others before his invention and not abandoned by the inventor. A patent grant gives the inventor the right to exclude all others from making, using, or selling his invention for the term of 17 years, but it does not give the patentee the right to make, use, and sell his own invention if it is an improvement on some unexpired patent whose claims are infringed thereby. Since there have been issued more than one and one-half million patents covering every possible line of inventive endeavor, it is advisable, before applying for a patent, to have a search made to make certain that the device is not shown in some prior patent. Some attorneys who advertise to make such a search without charge, in fact make no search, but merely report a favorable result in order to induce the client to proceed. The personal attendance of applicants at the patent office is unnecessary. Their business can be transacted by correspondence. A patent is granted only upon a regularly filed application, upon payment of the fees [$25 filing fee, plus $25 final fee], and only after a determination of utility and completeness of disclosure of the invention, and a search to determine its novelty. The preparation of an application is a highly complex proceeding, and generally cannot be conducted properly except by an attorney trained in this specialized practice. The service of The Tribune Law Department is limited to the giving of advice. We cannot prosecute applications nor suggest the names of attorneys. An official pamphlet of "General Information" may be obtained by writing to the commissioner of patents, Washington, D. C.

UNLAWFUL SEIZURE.

Gary, Ind., May 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought some furniture from a credit house in Chicago. When a balance of a few dollars was unpaid they moved the furniture while I was out of the city, and along with them they had moved some other furniture I bought from another company for cash. 1. Can I sue them for damage and removal of my goods which were never returned? 2. What is the legal period within which a case should be filed? K. D.

1. Yes.
2. Two years.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 23, 1915.

ROME.—All Italy awaits the declaration of war against Austria-Hungary, already approved by King Victor Emmanuel. He signed a decree ordering general mobilization of the country's forces on land and sea, and later many provinces in the north of Italy and communes and islands in the Adriatic sea were decreed in a state of war. The Giornale d'Italia says that an Austrian patrol has crossed the frontier. The paper also says that an announcement has been made that Field Marshal von Hindenburg will take command of the Austro-German troops against Italy.

LONDON.—Official dispatches from Gen. French forecast a big battle along the British front from Ypres south to a point west of La Bassee. A violent artillery engagement opened last night and was proceeding today. In the sector north of Arras the Germans bombarded the French positions violently, but the latter's artillery replied successfully, according to the war office in Paris.

BERLIN.—The German war office virtually confirmed reports that the Austro-German forces have temporarily ceased their violent attacks around Przemysl.

REDDING, Cal.—Mount Lassen burst into a new eruption, the greatest and most violent since the mountain awoke a year ago. Another flood of mud swept down the mountainside with three steaming streams of lava and covered the countryside like a tidal wave. The eruption was seen 175 miles away.

CHICAGO.—The Blackstone hotel management recorded itself as the first downtown bar to bow to the state law requiring the closing of saloons on Sunday.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 23, 1901.

LONDON.—The races for the America's cup will be delayed and may be postponed for another year because of a disaster to Shamrock II. in which the yacht was not only partially wrecked but King Edward, Sir Thomas Lipton, and others on board had narrow escapes from serious injury, if not from death. The disaster occurred during the races between the two Shamrocks in the Solent and was due to a sudden squall. The two ton mainmast, with all the spars, sails, and rigging, was carried away.

ROME—Gaetano Bresci, who shot and killed King Humbert at Monza on July 29, 1900, and was sentenced to life imprisonment for the crime, committed suicide at the penitentiary of Santo Stefano, where he has been confined. His suicide was the result of a series of tortures inflicted by order of the government with the intention of driving him to end his life. Since his conviction he had been kept in an underground dungeon and had been persecuted in every manner possible. Popular sentiment was that he should die, but the law forbids legal execution, so the only recourse was to make life so abhorrent to him that he would end it of his own accord.

CHICAGO.—No longer may the Princess de Chimay let money slip through her hands like water. In future her pin money will be limited to $35,000 a year. In Cook County Probate court the princess, the former Clara Ward, although living in Europe, was declared a spendthrift and Thomas R. Lyon, her uncle, was named conservator of her estate. He told a jury that she squandered more than $400,000 of the principal of her fortune besides an annual income of between $35,000 and $50,000 a year. Her legal residence is Chicago and her great fortune was left by Eber B. Ward, her father. She is now at Karlsbad with the gypsy Rigo, for whom she deserted her husband and two children.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 23, 1881.

NEW YORK.—A conference of the followers of ex-Senator Conkling was held at the home of Vice President Arthur. It was attended by Mr. Conkling and former Senator Platt and a chosen few of their friends. Mr. Conkling was assured by several of them that he can be reëlected at Albany without difficulty, but nevertheless he "consented" to go to Albany with Mr. Platt and make a personal canvass. The sentiment of the state is unanimously against Conkling and Platt in their controversy with President Garfield which led to their resignations.

CHICAGO.—To obtain the views of clergy of different Protestant denominations TRIBUNE reporters called upon a number of representative men and inquired of them what they thought of the revision of the New Testament. Many of them declined to express opinions until a more thorough examination had been made. The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, who is at the Pacific hotel, said he had not examined the revision but declared there was a necessity for it. Others interviewed were Bishop Cheney, Prof. David Swing of Central church, the Rev. Herrick Johnson of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Dr. G. M. Boardman, professor of theology in the Chicago Theological seminary; the Rev. R. A. Holland of St. James' church, and the Rev. Arthur Edwards, editor of Northwestern Christian Advocate.

THE SPEED OF TRAINS.

St. Louis, Mo., May 21.—Scrutator errs in today's story. Thirty hours was not the running time of the fastest trains between Chicago and New York prior to 1881. Eleven years previously, in 1870, both the Buffalo and the Pittsburgh lines maintained schedules of twenty-seven hours between terminals. On the Pennsylvania four hours of this time was consumed between Manuta Junction [North Philadelphia] and Jersey City via the Camden and Amboy. Thus the running time from Chicago to Philadelphia was but twenty-three hours. Sixty-one years later the railroads have only succeeded in clipping off five hours. Thirty years ago the time to New York was the same as that now to Philadelphia.

Even Canada beats us. Two trains daily operate between Montreal and Toronto on a railroad run by politicians, covering 333 miles in six hours flat. While it has required six decades to trim five hours off eastern schedules the time to the coast has been reduced from five to a bit over two days.

Your author fails to disclose that there is no necessity of any intelligent traveler paying extra fare going from Chicago to New York. One can leave Chicago at 12:30 noon, arriving in New York at 9:25 next morning—nineteen hours and fifty-five minues—five minutes faster than the fastest extra fare train —and not only save $3.60 extra fare but an additional $1.50, the difference between the seat and lower berth rate between Chicago and Pittsburgh.

The question remains, if the railroads will tote passengers on the schedule above on connecting trains, how come it costs them more to tote a passenger through without change? Is not debarking and retraining within a period of thirty minutes compensated by a saving of $11.10? M. E. SKIFF.

BEAUTY SPOTS IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, May 11.—B's letter in today's edition is very interesting and no doubt the "40 and 8" camp is worth visiting, but I earnestly resent his statement regarding beauty spots in Illinois. He really should take a few days off and visit La Salle county. Aside from historic value, there is beauty unbounded along the banks of the Illinois river, and Deer Park, Council Caves, and Starved Rock, with their wilderness of caves, canyons, and cool, spring fed falls; with violets and spring beauties in profusion right now, give Illinois every right to boast of beauty spots incomparable.

DEPRESSION IN THE THEATER.

Chicago, May 15.—Business is supposed to be at low ebb and a good deal has been said and written about the bargain rates prevailing for food and clothing. Evidently the theaters have not heard of the depression, as the prices for popular productions remain the same. Think of paying $3.85 for a seat in the 18th row to see a very ordinary musical comedy.

I would give that much more to hear the theater managers explain the necessity for such a price at this time.

Grant Park, Ill., May 11.—Eggs are selling here by the truck load for 13c per dozen. Saturday, the day the letter appeared, we sold a thirty dozen case for 13c. At the same time I ordered one dozen of china eggs for the nest eggs and they cost me 25c per dozen. That's farm relief, relieving us of what we have.

THE PRICE OF SHOES.

Columbus, O., May 20.—Under the heading "Shoe Prices Decline," you state that in $10 shoes, $8.50 will buy the same grade as last year. This is by no means the truth. If you will investigate the conditions in the leather market, you will find some kinds of leather to be cheaper, it is true, but certainly not to the extent that a shoe which formerly cost $6, to retail for $10, can now be purchased at $5.10 which retails for $8.50. It is very true that some retailers are representing the shoes they are now selling to have been higher priced formerly. I need only to refer you to an article that appeared about six weeks ago in the Shoe Retailer, written by A. J. Pauly, one of the outstanding successes in the retail shoe business. I believe if you will read this article you will see that cheaper quality shoes are being foisted on the American public, and, while raw materials are somewhat cheaper, they certainly cannot be purchased at the level consistent with the statement you have written in your paper. HERBERT LAPE JR.

A NICE POINT.

Dayton, O., May 16.—In accordance with the international law and diplomatic customs it is the duty of Uncle Sam to furnish protection for the Salvadorean's cough sirup, and due to the lack of such protection Uncle Sam will be compelled to make good the loss. Now the question arises, how is Uncle Sam going to get seventeen cases of liquor for the Salvadorean chargé d'affaires without violating the Volstead act and becoming a plain garden variety of bootlegger? They probably will turn the matter over to Chairman Wickersham and let George write a fifty thousand word treatise on the intricacies of international law, which, after being boiled down, would mean another loophole in the Volstead act. If this should fail they might call in Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former federal dry enforcer, and let Mabel perform some of her sleight of hand tricks. One of Mabel's famous tricks is to take a glass of pure water and with a touch of a magic wand turn the water into 20 per cent grape concentrates. Believe me, brethren, it has a darn good wallop.

CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTION.

Chicago, May 21.—This inquiry represents a common curiosity of a group of Chicago citizens.

We would be interested to know, from a qualified person, if the state legislature can be acting legally when it is not properly representative of the people according to the law.

It seems peculiar that the preponderance of population can continue to be underrepresented, while at the same time the acts of the legislature are considered legal and reflecting the will of the majority of the people. R. U. N.

DISCRIMINATION.

Chicago, May 19.—I live in a city block where all the buildings are exactly alike. They are all built on the same size lot. Some of the owners have improved their property with two car garages, or inclosed their porches. The board of assessors put a value on the improved properties about $400 more than on the ones without a garage. But the board of review for some reason best known to themselves, placed the value at about $400 less. Is it any wonder that there is a taxpayers' strike?

FOES OF EGYPTIAN KING SWEAR OATH OF WAR TO DEATH

Ruler's Own Family Joins Ranks of Opposition.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 22.—Graver accounts of the recent election riots in Egypt than were permitted to penetrate the cloak of censorship, and which give a more complete picture of the real extent of the Wafd or Nationalist opposition to King Fuad, have been brought to London by Britons who were at the scene of the disorders.

These witnesses said the Egyptian princes and others of the royal family have reached a complete breach with the king and are publicly associating with the Wafd leaders. Driven by the election upheavals to further strengthen its opposition to King Fuad's régime, the Nationalist leaders have sworn to a secret oath "to wage a war unto death with any one who infringes on the constitution without respect of person."

Princes Donate Purse.

The oath was taken at a meeting last Saturday. A purse was contributed by the defecting princes, who vowed it ever to aid the families of those killed as a result of the Nationalist election boycott. The princes also poured new funds into the Wafd coffers last week. Two of the most prominent contributors were Prince Omar Toussoun and Prince Mohammed Ali, a brother of the former khedive. Both of these princes are millionaires.

The movement is even spreading among the women. Mme. Zaghlul Pasha, widow of the founder of the Wafd party, has received a number of purses from the princesses for the families of those killed or injured in the election riots. The princesses have been forbidden to present a petition to Queen Nazli begging her to intercede with King Fuad has prohibited mention of his consort's name in the newspapers, as a result of the Wafd trend to make her regent.

Friendship for Britain Wanes.

The Britishers who arrived in London still the traditional friendliness of the Egyptians toward Great Britain is fast disappearing. Many Britons are sending their families out of the country, despite Premier Sidky Pasha's assurances that order would be maintained.

The witnesses state that during the rioting in Cairo last week the Nationalists sent a strong protest against the assault on Mustapha Nahas Pasha by five British members of the consulary. They also protested to the British commander of the Egyptian army against the brutality of the troops. These witnesses also scoffed at the official figures on the dead and injured in the riots. They said some reports indicate at least 300 were killed in upper and lower Egypt during the election clashes.

[Acme Photo.]

LONDON, May 22.—(AP)—For the fourth time in her career as "Night Club Queen of England," Mrs. Kate Meyrick, mother-in-law of two peers, was sent to jail today for her alleged irregular activities as a professional entertainer.

Accused of selling liquor at her "46 club" without a license and of permitting unlawful gaming there, she was sentenced to seven months at hard labor, fined $150, and assessed $150 court costs.

Her counsel pleaded guilty for her, saying the defendant had been ruined by the falling value of her investments and ran this night club as a means to paying her debts.

U. S. AIR ARMADA BATTLES 'ENEMY' OVER N. Y. TODAY

650 Planes, 1,000 Men Sweep In Out of West.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—The army's mightiest air fleet swept in out of the west this afternoon to give battle tomorrow to a mythical enemy massing its ships and aircraft outside New York harbor. The yellow winged defenders came streaking out of their concentration fields at Dayton, O., across the great mountain humps of Pennsylvania, past the Delaware and Hudson rivers, and out Long Island to their nesting places in five airports.

The movement of the 650 planes and more than 1,000 men across 600 miles of dangerous flying territory without a single major accident in little more than half a day set a precedent for air maneuvers. The ships of the army air corps reached the half way mark of the two weeks' "war" tonight with a total of almost a million miles flown and not a man injured.

Arrive on Schedule.

Riding through from Dayton with the air fleet, this correspondent checked the movement of planes from landing fields near Pittsburgh and Middlestown, Pa. They came in on schedule, with only a few delays, caused by overheated motors, broken fuel lines, and other minor difficulties.

The newspaper plane dropped down at Mitchel field in time to watch the arrival of most of the pursuit, attack, and observation ships.

Lieut. C. W. Fyle, piloting a Douglass observation ship and carrying his mechanic, Sergt. William Kirk, overran Roosevelt field and popped into a gully, tearing away the ship's undercarriage, wrecking the left wing and smashing the propeller.

The air was smooth from Fairfield airport to Long Island and only a light head wind was blowing. The wasps of the army climbed over the Alleghenies in Pennsylvania, swept around them at Buffalo and Aberdeen, Md., and rolled in tight formation along the south shore of Long Island to meet the theoretical enemy which already has wiped out the sea fleet, blown up the Panama canal and is preparing to sack New York City.

Mass Up Over Sing Sing.

Tomorrow morning the air fleet will take to the skies, mass far up the Hudson river near Sing Sing prison and come roaring down past the skyscrapers of Manhattan and over the bay, where they will attempt to turn back the imaginary foe, sink half a hundred battleships, sweep the skies clean of enemy aircraft and save New York City from the fate of the already "captured" southern Atlantic seaboard.

TWO ARMY AVIATORS FLYING AT 23,000 FEET PHOTOGRAPH GOTHAM

Mitchel Field, N. Y., May 22.—(AP)—Sharing their lone effective oxygen tank and tube, two army aviators soared over New York City today at an altitude of 23,000 feet, a height at which human lungs cannot function without artificial aid.

Shortly after Capt. Albert W. Stevens, army air corps photograph expert, and Lieut. John D. Corkville, his pilot, had taken off, the lieutenant's oxygen tank blew out a gasket. Continuing their flight, however, the two officers alternated in using the remaining tube in two minute relays and completed their task of photographing the city.

Twenty-five exposures were taken.

NAME RECEIVERS FOR MAYFLOWER HOTEL IN CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—Charges by Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt that bond interest payments have not been kept up and that a pending financial reorganization of the Mayflower hotel would "freeze out" dissenting bondholders today brought the appointment of temporary receivers to take over the business.

The receivers are to handle the property pending action seeking to have the hotel placed permanently in the hands of receivers or of a group of bondholders.

Mrs. Willebrandt told the court a reasonable market value of the property in March, 1928, was $6,300,000, while the bond issues and other encumbrances now amount to $9,900,000. She said a pending financial reorganization would remove safeguards which holders of certain bonds now enjoy.

The court was informed the hotel's losses had been $760,000 in two years; that the defendants floated loans aggregating $9,900,000 to enrich themselves and made $1,625,614.55 on the deal; and that the bonded indebtedness on the hotel was $9,537 per room, exclusive of public rooms.

OPEN CITY'S FIRST ROAD BUILT WITH GAS TAX FUNDS

The first pavement in Chicago constructed with state gasoline tax funds was opened to traffic last night. The improvement is a new 40 foot highway in 95th street between Yates and Cottage Grove avenues.

In celebration of the event, more than 300 south siders gathered at a dinner in Liberty hall, 92d street and Ingleside avenue, under the auspices of the South Chicago and South End Chambers of Commerce. Speakers were United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Emmett Whealan, president of the county board; Ald. William Rowan and Ald. Sheldon W. Govier, State Representative Elmer Schnackenberg, and D. M. Campbell, assistant superintendent of county highways.

OHIO STATE HEAD CENSURES STAFF ON DRILL STAND

Relations 'Critical,' He Declares.

Columbus, O., May 22.—[Special.]—Charging that members of the Ohio State university faculty "have encouraged students to give expression to their hastily formed views, and have failed to exert a wholesome influence on students," President George W. Rightmire made public a lengthy statement today in which he replied to recent attacks on compulsory military training.

President Rightmire condemned critics of the present order and declared that "the state of university relations has not been so critical for a quarter of a century."

Strikes at Cynicism.

While praising the majority of students and members of the faculty, President Rightmire struck back at the "cynicism and acrimony in the attitude of a few students and professors towards institutions and practices, governmental and private, which in the minds of the majority of thinking people have justified themselves."

In his statement President Rightmire said:

"In looking over the university and attempting to understand its condition today the following thoughts crowd into my mind, and they are passed on for the consideration of the faculty and students. The state of the university relations has not been so critical for a quarter of a century.

"The university is created and supported by the people of Ohio with a single purpose, and that is the adequate education of the youth. To that end only are facilities and equipment supplied and maintained and teachers employed and university activities carried on.

"The university throughout its 60 years of existence has been remarkably free from ill considered or socially destructive agitation with which the world outside has at times been disturbed. The university has been a wholesome, socially constructive, and sound educational force in the life of the state, and almost without exception the students have been diligent in their work and have taken a sane and well considered view of the world and their place in it.

Sees Lack of Experience.

"Recently, however, certain students have come forward as critics of the university regulations and procedures, and have freely attacked university policies, and departments, and various members of its personnel. This they have done in speeches and in print, with much publicity, with an enthusiasm born of half-knowledge, adolescent judgment, lack of experience, and somewhat influenced by a considerable body of writers who see little good in our present-day civilization.

"Through this difficult period of their lives the students should expect wise teaching and counsel from the professors who, in large majority, have been giving sound advice and stimulus to considerate thinking among students, recognizing all the while their youth and enthusiasm and inexperience."

WOMAN KILLED, ONE OTHER HURT AS AUTOS CRASH

Mrs. E. P. Day, 50 years old, 1233 Park street, Grinnell, Ia., was killed, and Harry M. Bewlay, 30, of the same address, was critically injured yesterday when their automobile collided with another car at Golf and River roads, near Des Plaines. Bewlay is in the Des Plaines Emergency hospital with a compound fracture of the skull. Physicians said he has little chance to recover.

According to witnesses the car driven by Bewlay was struck by one driven by Len Holtze of Wheeling, when the latter failed to stop before crossing River road. Mrs. Day was thrown fifty feet out of the car. Holtze was not held, but was ordered to appear at the inquest.

The death of Mrs. Day and two others increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 448. The other victims:

Allen Weinstein, 8 years old, 1237 South Kildare avenue. Killed when he fell beneath a truck on which he was trying to "hitch" a ride. Hyman Grush, 4241 West 13th street, was the driver.

Sam Cohen, 22 years old, 1245 South Troy street. Fatally injured when the truck on which he was riding was struck by an automobile at Western avenue and Washington boulevard, overturning the truck and pinning him beneath. John B. Kleinschmidt, 18 years old, 616 South Fifth avenue, Maywood, a student, was the driver.

Mrs. Houghton Cook of Chicago suffered a broken back when the automobile she was driving overturned on a highway near Plymouth, Ind.

AMERICAN BOND & MORTGAGE CO. IN RECEIVERSHIP

Creditors' Group Starts Bankruptcy Action.

The American Bond and Mortgage company, nationally known real estate financing and investment concern, whose home offices are at 127 North Dearborn street, was placed in the hands of a receiver yesterday by Judge James H. Wilkerson in the federal court.

JUDGE WILKERSON.

The Chicago Title and Trust company, which for two years has been engaged in a plan for reorganization of the company, was named the receiver as a sequel to the filing of equity proceedings against the company Thursday on behalf of Harley T. Clarke and other creditors. The equity receivership was regarded as a friendly action.

Bankruptcy Action Filed.

At the same time, however, an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the mortgage company by another group of creditors, alleging insolvency and the transfer of assets. This petition was continued for one week by Judge Wilkerson.

The law firm of White & Hawxhurst, which filed the involuntary bankruptcy petition for the Jackson Towers Building corporation and other creditors, estimated the company's liabilities at more than $7,000,000. The lawyers said no approximate estimate of the company's assets could be made because of its numerous equities in various buildings whose bonds have been in default.

The affairs of the mortgage company have been in an unfavorable condition for nearly two years and since August, 1929, a bondholders' protective committee has taken a hand in its activities. At that time the Chicago Title and Trust company was first called on to assist in working out a solution of the company's troubles, supposed to have been caused largely by the depression in the real estate field in which the company had large interests.

Tells of Postal Inquiry.

Assistant United States District Attorney Joseph A. Struett said yesterday that the company's activities also have been under investigation for some time by federal postal inspectors. He did not indicate the nature of the postal investigation.

Separate receivership proceedings against the company are pending in the courts at Augusta, Me., in which state the company is chartered.

In a statement to newspapers following the receivership action yesterday, H. E. Ambler, counsel and secretary of the mortgage company, said his company had consented to the equity receivership in the belief the best interests of all parties would be served in this manner. William J. Moore is president of the company.

SEIZE THREE AS BANDITS.

The youths gave their names as Edward Jan, 1957 Otis street; Elmer Antoni, 918 Mohawk street, and Thomas Shine, 1838 Maude avenue.

3 INDIANA CITIES MAY LOSE THEIR STREET RAILWAY

E. Chicago, Hammond, Whiting Affected.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 22.—[Special.]—Proposed abandonment of street car service in Whiting, Hammond, and East Chicago by the Calumet Railways, Inc., was considered today by the Indiana public service commission, following a hearing before John W. McCardle, chairman of the commission.

Officials of the company, which is controlled by the Midland United company, an Insull utility, testified the lines have been operated at a loss the last five years and that failure of the three cities to grant a "service at cost" franchise had made abandonment necessary.

Fails to Get Franchise.

Morse Dell Plain, president, testified that when the Calumet Railways acquired the lines it obtained a promise of sufficient Chicago capital to rehabilitate the system providing the franchise could be obtained. He asserted the board of works in Hammond and Whiting approved the franchise, but that the Hammond city council rejected it and the council in Whiting never acted on it. In East Chicago the board of works failed to take action on the franchise, he said.

"As a result the company was advised by the Chicago bankers they no longer would supply capital," he asserted.

He also said a complete rehabilitation would be the only means of maintaining revenue at even its present standard.

Points to Line's Losses.

James H. Mitchell, controller, testified the company has lost money continuously the last five years and that revenues are decreasing more rapidly now than at any previous time. He asserted the operating deficit for the five years is $60,342.20. A 3½ per cent allowance for depreciation, which he said should be made, would increase this deficit to $390,565.45, while an allowance of 8 per cent return on the investment would make the total five year deficit $942,191.85.

Al G. Barnes, Circus Man, Seriously Ill in California

Indio, Cal., May 22.—(AP)—Al G. Barnes, circus man, was in a dangerous condition today from an attack of pleural pneumonia. Dr. Russell M. Grey said the 68 year old showman's lungs would be tapped. Barnes, who recently recovered from an extended illness at Los Angeles, has been visiting the Dave Robeson ranch near here.

JOEL, DIAMOND KING AND TURF ENTHUSIAST, DIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 22.—One of the most romantic careers in the history of British finance terminated at Newmarket today in the death of Solomon Barnato Joel, who rose from poor circumstances in London's east end to become the multimillionaire diamond king of South Africa.

Known as "Solly," he amassed a fortune estimated at $100,000,000. He was a close friend of King Edward VII., and a prominent figure on the English turf.

Joel's history on the turf was as fascinating as his financial rise. He once paid $20,000 for Polymelus. This horse took the Duke of York stakes and the Cambridgeshire stakes, netting the owner $500,000 in bets alone. His stud at Maiden Erlegh is one of the most famous in the world. He never quibbled over the price of a thoroughbred. His ventures on the track won him a great fortune.

Names Bar Members to Attend Marriott Funeral

President William P. Sidley of the Chicago Bar association yesterday selected a group to represent the association at the funeral services today for A. R. Marriott, late president of the Chicago Title and Trust company. The committee follows: Howard F. Castle, Delbert A. Clithero, Charles S. Cutting, Addison L. Gardner, Ross C. Hall, Walter S. Holden, Amos C. Miller, Nathan G. Moore, Frederick W. Pringle, Clyde E. Shorey, John Lyle Vette. The services will be held at 2 p. m. at the Marriott home at 518 North East avenue, Oak Park.

W. M. Geary, One of K. of C. Incorporators, Is Dead

New Haven, Conn., May 22.—(AP)—William M. Geary, second last survivor of the original incorporators of the Knights of Columbus, died today following a heart attack. Former Mayor C. T. Driscoll, who celebrated his 86th birthday last week, is now the only living incorporator of the order, which was founded in this city forty-nine years ago. By virtue of his office as an incorporator, Mr. Geary was a member of the supreme council of the order and had attended every supreme convention.

Rites for Miss Donovan, Veteran Teacher, Monday

Funeral services for Miss Mary E. Donovan, veteran Chicago school teacher, who died last Sunday in Los Angeles, will be held on Monday in St. Ignatius church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery. Miss Donovan went to California for her health a few years ago. She was on the faculty of Calumet High school before she left. Her mother, two brothers and two sisters survive.

WALGREEN GETS BROADWAY AND LAWRENCE SITE

Leases of Chamales for Ten Years.

BY AL CHASE.

One of the outstanding corners of the uptown district, the northwest intersection of Broadway and Lawrence avenue, was leased yesterday by the Walgreen company for a drug store, through Gus C. Manos, the only broker in the deal. The property, containing approximately 2,200 square feet was rented for a ten year term from Tom Chamales, Charles E. Hoffman, and his wife, Catherine Hoffman. The lease calls for a graduated rental. The owners will remodel to meet the Walgreen requirements and the new store will be opened in about a month. This is in the building which once housed the Green Mill Gardens.

The sixty apartment building at 5401 Ellis avenue, lot 100x164, and the thirty-four apartment building at 5400 Greenwood avenue, lot 100x158, were sold by the trustees of the Calumet Trust, Otis P. van Sweringen, Mitchell D. Follansbee, and Otto Miller, to Miss Eleanor C. Allen.

Realtors Change Railroads.

The Chicago Real Estate board's special train will leave for Baltimore and the national realty convention over the Big Four railroad, instead of the Pennsylvania, as first announced. Two o'clock, Chicago time, tomorrow, the train will leave from the Illinois Central station at Roosevelt road.

Harry R. Jess of Hooker & Slosson, bought the residence at the northwest corner of Cregier avenue and East 69th street, lot 48x125, from George D. Barrett for an undisclosed consideration. In part payment Mr. Jess gave the twenty-four flat building at 7031-37 Merrill avenue, lot 100x125, with an incumbrance of $78,000. Carroll, Schendorf & Boenicke were brokers.

Landmark Changes Hands.

The southeast corner of Jefferson and Lake streets, 100x158, improved with one of the west side's oldest landmarks, the old three and four story brick Holmes-Pyott block, erected prior to the Chicago fire, was sold yesterday by the estate of David Pyott to Kenneth C. Brown, who took title for undisclosed buyers. According to Ward T. Huston & Co., brokers in the transaction, there is no change contemplated either in management or occupancy. The building is rented to thirty or forty miscellaneous tenants.

In part payment Ward T. Huston transferred the northwest corner of Harvard and 72d, 50x125, and 1816-18 Prairie avenue, 75x177, to David A. Pyott, sole surviving trustee for the David Pyott estate. Mr. Brown gave a trust deed to the Chicago Title and Trust company for $180,000, five years at 5 per cent.

Mrs. Laura Thomas, Widow of Minister, Dies in East

Mrs. Laura Thomas, widow of Dr. Judson B. Thomas, former pastor of the First Baptist church of Austin, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Turpin Bannister of Summit, N. J., with whom she was visiting. Funeral services are to be held tomorrow at Atlanta, Ill., near Bloomington. Mrs. Thomas, who was 76 years old, had been in failing health since a stroke of paralysis some time ago.

HE'S TRESPASSER IF HE LEAVES HOME AT FRONT

Annapolis, Md., May 22.—(AP)—A strip of land only one foot wide separates Alonzo Slaysmen's property from the street in front of his home, but he cannot step over it without committing trespass, the Court of Appeals ruled today.

The strip is owned by a realty company which built the street, and the concern and Slaysmen have been at odds for months over a $300 assessment for paving the new street.

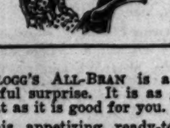
Slaysmen refused to pay, whereupon the company reduced the width of the street from 50 to 49 feet so as to keep it from touching Slaysmen's property.

An injunction kept Slaysmen from touching the one-foot strip but he got around that by stepping over the strip. He was upheld by a county court, but the appellate ruling favored the company.

STABBED BY BANDIT; DIES.

Louis Priestest, 48 years old, 4137 Ellis avenue, laundry worker who was stabbed by a Negro robber during a holdup last Sunday, died in the Lakeside hospital yesterday.

YOU NEVER KNEW BRAN COULD BE SO DELICIOUS



KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is a delightful surprise. It is as good to eat as it is good for you.

This appetizing ready-to-eat cereal protects and relieves you from constipation—and from the headaches, the dizziness, the lack of "pep" that go with it.

Start the whole family on this health-habit tomorrow. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, will prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, eat ALL-BRAN with each meal.

Delicious with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which brings color to cheeks and lips. At all grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Iris, 22-year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously. She and her mother lived in a remote section of Paris. Clare attended a school play one night and was brought home by friends. Her mother heard the car stop in front of the house and Clare's friends bidding her good night, but when she opened the door the car had vanished.

Iris had been separated for years from her husband, Marcel de Bertincourt, a man of little wealth but no moral sense. They are cousins and the possible heirs of their aunt, Adele Viglaire, the Countess de Castelmauron.

Iris refused to divorce her husband and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood.' Charnwood, who is in love with her, has postponed his trip to Africa, has postponed his trip to help Iris.

At her insistence, Iris decides to stay in her home until Clare is found. When Clare's mother arrives she learns that her husband is already domiciled there. He seems to have taken charge of the search for Clare. He has been sending letters to her mother, for some time past, and knows more of the child's life than they. The countess is bent on reconciling the estranged couple.

Against the strenuous admittance at the home of The countess. Iris sees him secretly and tells him that, in spite of her Aunt's assistance she cannot attend her. They plan to meet at Mme. Roderick's, the American woman for whom Iris has been working. Alan calls at the house and meets Marcel there. He learns that they are friends, unknown to Iris. Charnwood later sees Marcel at Le Touquet, gambling heavily, and hobnobbing with a notorious young couple. Alan runs across an old friend, Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, and tells him. They drop in a café, where Alan sees the woman who was one of Marcel's companions in Le Touquet. Tommy knew her when she ran a haunt in Montmartre. They go to Tommy's apartment, where he points out to Alan an apartment house which formerly belonged to Marcel but now occupied by Susanne Marly, a notorious woman. As he is leaving, Alan sees Marcel entering Miss Marly's home. Next morning Alan calls at Mme. Roderick's and she urges him to leave. Marcel interrupts them. Iris tells Alan that she had dinner with Marcel the night Clare disappeared. Alan is inclined to believe that the comtesse kidnaped Clare to bring about the reunion of the Bertincourts.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

AN OBSTACLE TO BE REMOVED.

"Supposing this wild moonshine to be true," said Charnwood, giving the theory a grudging consideration, "how long has one got to wait for any enlightenment?"

"Ah, now that's the point!" Tommy leaned forward eagerly. "Whoever is concerned in this, it seems pretty evident that either the girl is dead or cannot be produced, or that there is some obstacle in the path which has got to be removed."

"Obstacle?"

"Exactly. Now, what about yourself? If my idea is right, you are just as much an obstacle. You are pulling Madame de Bertincourt in the way her niece doesn't want her to go, in fact, threatening ruin for the whole scheme. If you were marooned in Uganda you would be comparatively harmless."

This was a totally new point of view. Charnwood found himself positively fascinated by it.

"Is you think she—or some one—is waiting for me to go?"

"It may easily be. I can't help having a hunch that you are holding back, and that when you clear out something will happen."

"It seems fundamentally absurd to me. If Iris ever found out, she'd never wish her aunt for good and all."

"And she find out? She won't if the old girl is as clever as I suppose she is to."

Charnwood was left with a vague uneasiness best described in the words "I don't believe one atom of this fantastic nonsense—and yet——?" It was the "yet" which on the following day prompted him to order his affairs with a Machiavellian cunning foreign to his nature. In short, he obviously planned not only to leave Paris, but to advertise his departure in such a way that it could not fail to reach certain ears. For this purpose he chose Tommy Rostetter as the obvious medium, caught her at the Etoile office, and put his scheme before her.

"You might mention it to the comtesse that I'm going," he suggested casually.

"I see an Englishman, monsieur, I spoke to him myself."

Tommy caught the sardonic sander. "I've an idea my being here is making things rather hot for Iris."

Charnwood gave him a shrewd look. "You're right," she agreed. "The old woman is driving Iris mad with her watchfulness—as if the poor child hadn't enough without being constantly spied upon! Leave me your address." Tommy replied, "and I'll cable you if there's any news—though God knows I'm starting in long hope!"

Although he hoped to hear from Iris, the day passed without any message. On Tuesday he secured his sailing, telephoned Tommy to ask him to call, and, having packed his trunk, gave final instructions to the clerk.

"I'm leaving tonight," he said. "Have my luggage brought down so that I can pick it up, and if any one inquires for me during the day, say that I have gone."

"Very good, monsieur. It shall be attended to."

The bridges were now burned. With a desolate hope that he was serving Iris best by inaction he set out, determined not to show his face again within the portals till ten-thirty that evening.

However, chance ordered otherwise. At the entrance he discovered that the much begun early in the morning had increased to a drenching rain.

As he stood watching the streams of water sluicing along the pavement the liveried messenger brushed past him into the lobby. The next instant he was out in the dark dashed out, calling his name.

"Are you, monsieur—a telegram!"

Was there a wire for him at this eleventh hour? Tearing open the envelope, he read with mixed feelings the following words, headed and signed with the name of his chief—Caldwell:

"Your messages slow in reaching me because motoring tour have been Uganda received reply work at standstill breakage in machinery. Am sailing on farthnight's additional leave."

So the assumption he had longed for had come—only now he did not want it. Should he go or stay? He heard again the urgent accent in Iris' voice when she had besought him to leave her. He could be certain how much her plea was actuated by conscientious fear and how much by the desire to clear her life of a disturbing element. Then there was Tommy's ridiculous theory, although that was hardly worth considering.

The taxi driver waited stolidly, the messenger, rain trickling off his nose. Charnwood, torn with indecision, weighed pros and cons, and at last, to the words, 'Pas de response." The emissary of Fate nodded and went away.

He done, though whether he was acting for the best he could not decide. Driving straight to the nearest postoffice he scribbled a note to the effect of the telegram:

"This will explain why I have changed my plans. Don't let it distress you, I shall simply be here in case you need me; but on no account let any one know, not even Helen.

Then he inclosed it in an envelope, which he addressed in block letters, and handed the communication by pneumatique.

"There," he reflected, "no one but Iris knows I'm here, so if there is anything in what Tommy says we'll soon see."

The steamship office once more kindly canceled his reservation, which Charnwood, with a solitary repast and returned to his hotel, to find a note from Iris sticking in the rack. It was merely her answer to the message sent through Helen, for the pneumatique had not yet arrived.

"I will try to come to you late this afternoon, but if I fail to appear don't be surprised. I am scarcely ever left alone, though a great part of this solicitude probably arises from the kindest of motives. Ursule is delivering this by hand—I can trust no one else.

"How thankful you agree to the inevitable break. The very idea of ever linking your life with mine makes me shudder, like that story of a man on horseback in the desert, bound to a corpse——"

What a horrible simile! Charnwood himself shuddered to think of the thought which had prompted it. Reading the note through a second time he was struck by Iris' own blindness to the situation, her readiness to overlook charitably the supervigilance which surrounded her. He was not prepared to consider the comtesse anything worse than an unscrupulous opponent, but that was bad enough when it resulted in tyranny like hers.

He put the folded sheet in his pocket and turned to inform the clerk of his new arrangements.

"Excellent, monsieur! But what a pity I did not know a little more than half an hour ago a gentleman telephoned and I told him you were in."

"A gentleman? Did he leave any name?"

"Unfortunately, no—but it was an Englishman, monsieur. I spoke to him myself."

He did not come, but he had hardly hoped that she would. At seven o'clock he set out on another visit to the commissariat, where he learned the disappointing news that none of the clews had led to anything. Inspector Duval held out no encouragement.

"I strongly we have hoped that this would turn out to mean kidnaping," he said gloomily. "But now, after a full week, it seems idle to deceive ourselves any longer. I am much afraid we should prepare for the worst."

Half an hour later Charnwood repeated this depressing verdict to Tommy Rostetter, who received it without comment, showing far more interest over the news that his friend was remaining in Paris.

"What knows about this?" he demanded. "Have you told any one?"

"The hotel management, naturally, and Iris—but I warned her to keep it secret."

"That was sensible of you. I'm glad."

THE CHILDREN.
Ten years later.

Junior	Kenneth Seiling / Ra'm'd Hackett
Margaret	Helen Parish / Bette Davis
Dickey	Don Cox / Jack Willis
Danny	Terry Cox / Bill Willis
Johnny	Dickie Moore / Dick Winslow

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

"Seed," the novel by Charles Norris [husband of Kathleen] was, you will remember, a best seller greatly concerned with the matter of birth control. It comes to the screen still with views on the subject. Presenting no pro or anti diatribes, it resolves itself into a thoughtful, tolerant study of family life, leaving the observer free to draw his own conclusions. It is beautifully acted and directed with the greatest skill. A charming picture!

The outer leaves of the original have been stripped away, leaving only the heart for fan consumption. So—the early lives of the man, Bart Carter, his wife, Peggy, and "the other woman," Mildred, are briefly referred to in conversation, and not otherwise.

When the picture opens Bart is clerk in a publisher's office and father of five children whose mother is Peggy—and Mildred, who had been his childhood sweetheart, has just returned from Paris, where she is the publisher's representative.

She's amazed to find Bart a mere clerk! Why, ten years before he'd shown great promise of becoming an author! She asks how come and Bart explains:

With five lusty youngsters making the welkin ring it's impossible for him to write in the evenings. Moreover, the needs of his household require a steady income—which means a steady job. How can a chap produce novels under such conditions?

Mildred answers the question.

Bart becomes a writer and, eventually, her husband. Peggy, a "born mother" whose life is wrapped up in her lovely youngsters, takes them away and for years Bart doesn't know where to find the brood.

He becomes successful and wealthy. Ten years later Peggy divulges her whereabouts.

Bart hurries to her and finds his five little folks grown into wholesome, well bred, and delightful young people who are thrilled to the ears at meeting their father again. They are inordinately proud of his name and fame—for their mother loyally has kept her heartache to herself and spoken only good of Bart. Peggy is as she always was—Peggy, the mother.

What happens?

I'll let the picture show you that. Lois Wilson, John Boles, and Genevie Tobin handle their respective rôles beautifully. In each case you see a sincere, restrained, and polished characterization. The children, both little and big, are as real as can be. Other parts are artistically presented.

"Seed" is human, eventful, entertaining. Carl Laemmle Sr. deserves a vote of thanks for bringing to the screen such a richly enjoyable offering.

"THE SPY."

Produced by Fox.
Directed by Berthold Viertel.
Presented at the Castle theater.

THE CAST.

Anna	Kay Johnson
Ivan	Neil Hamilton
Sergei	John Halliday
Kaiva	Freddie Frederick
Yeshka	Milton Holmes
Petra	Anuten Jewell
President of Tcheka	Henry Kolker

After a not particularly promising start, this picture proceeds to fool you. It turns unexpected corners and lands you in surprising and unusual situations.

"The Spy" tells a story of Russia and revolution. Its principal characters are a young aristocrat, his wife, and child; a Russian spy and the president of the "tcheka," or soviet secret service.

The action is swift and dramatic. The acting, excepting the work of John Halliday, is splendid. Mr. Halliday, who excels in sophisticated man about town rôles, overacts to the point of a ham his part of secret service man. You will be touched and thrilled by the characterizations of several child players.

There are some stirring mob scenes—lifted, you are sure, from various other films—but so effective that you condone their borrowing. Sets, photography, sound, and direction are all to the good.

See you tomorrow!

COAST GUARD SHIP HASTENS LANDING OF CARDINAL MUNDELEIN

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—Three hundred and fifty-one passengers on board the Cunarder Aquitania which should have docked at 10 a. m. were delayed twelve hours by fog and did not land until 10 o'clock tonight, with the exception of some who were taken off at quarantine late in the afternoon by a U. S. coast guard cutter and landed at the U. S. barge office. They were Cardinal Mundelein, the Rev. Robert C. MacGuire and the Rev. George J. Casey, his secretaries, and Sir John and Lady Reith.

The cardinal was greeted at quarantine by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil of Chicago, Anthony Czarnecki, collector of the port of Chicago, and Joseph McCarthy, architect, of Chicago. Three automobiles were waiting at the Battery to convey the party to the Pennsylvania railroad station where they boarded the Manhattan limited and left at 6:15 p. m. for Chicago.

Cardinal Mundelein said he had been in Rome for the dedication of the college for the propagation of the faith at which the pope spoke.

"He has a fine grasp of world affairs," the Cardinal continued, speaking of the pope, "and was pleased with the attitude of the American people and particularly with that of the American Catholics."

When asked for his opinion on the Spanish situation, Cardinal Mundelein replied that in all political upheavals of this nature a radical element comes to the surface. The Spanish people, he continued, generally are cool and level headed, and it remains to be seen in the next several years whether they are responsive to a republic.

The cardinal added that he thought it a pity that the Spanish trouble should have come at this time. The Spanish people were in a measure the most prosperous in Europe.

Ex-Kaiser's Stepdaughter to Wed Former Officer

GERA, Germany, May 22.—(AP)—The betrothal was announced today of the former kaiser's stepdaughter, Princess Hermine Caroline of Schoenaich-Carolath and Hereditary Prince Heinrich of Reuss. Young Chicago Tells Parents About Success

Music, School Work and R. O. T. C. Displayed.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

FRANCES WILSON.

With the Chicago Civic opera house as the impressive setting for the fifth annual central civic assembly, they heard their elders talk of them as Chicago's hope, as future citizens, as the makers of future homes. Then, in a few thrilling exhibitions, they themselves said more than any speeches could declare on the subject of youth.

From the first orchestral number by the All-Chicago High School orchestra, conducted by O. W. Anderson, to the final presentation of the colors by Chicago's R. O. T. C., the evening was a victorious challenge by Chicago boys and girls to the world.

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, made the first address. The purposes of the night's assembly, he said, were to offer "a collection of beautiful memories that may strengthen and stimulate the high ideals of citizenship."

As illustration, he told the story of how, in the eighties, when he was a red haired, freckled boy, he cherished the memory of the time that Gen. Phillip H. Sheridan, stopped the boy's tears when he had stumped his toe, and how he later saw the general in glittering uniform read: "The Declaration of Independence."

"The spirit of youth in physical education," was the title of the first exhibition. The audience broke into a murmur of laughter as children from the Boone elementary school ran noisily upon the stage dressed as Hollanders and, with much bobbing of pigtails, danced a merry dance with solemnity. Sullivan junior high's contribution was a few dozen pretty girls, whose bare legs might be the envy of Mr. Ziegfeld's choruses, who did a tap dance.

Boys of Von Steuben Junior High school in knee breeches and white stockings did a dance. Then, with lights casting a red glow on the stage, the boys of Lake View High ran on the stage in athletic trunks, and, with muscles rippling, performed rhythmic gymnastics, lifting, bending, swinging to music. But it remained for the girls of the Chicago Normal college to catch the fancy of the audience and hold it as, with the red glow upon their white Grecian robes, they ran wildly, lightly, flinging up scarves.

Not only girls, but boys, showed what they had learned of the social graces in the pageant, "The Schools and the Home." That depicted little Mary Dearborn's progress through the schools. She learned to sew, and the audience saw girls modeling dresses they had made—creations of fashion they were, too—and she learned to cook and serve. Not only that, but her family watched her go to a prom in a dress she had made. Young men drank tea with apparent ease as she poured it.

A pageant of American history was presented by the Harrison Technical high school.

Judge Otto Kerner presented $300 scholarships to five of seven students chosen from the honor students as "Chicago's finest."

Three scholarships were given by the University of Chicago, two by Northwestern, and two $200 scholarships were given by the Rotary club. They were presented by Guy Cushing, president elect.

The seven presented with scholarships are:

Violet Feare, 5354 Leland avenue, 16 years old, a senior in the Schurz High school; Theodore Black, 3336 Lowell avenue, 17 years old, senior in Schurz High school; Le Roy E. Walter, 4130 Potomac avenue, 18 years old, senior in the Lane Technical High school; John Ahearn, 3753 South Ada street, 17 years old, senior in Calumet High school; Myrtle Lohner, Roosevelt High school; Betty Ann Nelson, Calumet High school, and Eleanor Anderson, Senn High school.

One of the seven, Eleanor Anderson, did not appear on the stage. A teacher explained that she had been taking examinations at the University of Chicago all day and that proved too much.

A thousand children from 6 to 16 years joined during the afternoon in the nineteenth annual Cook county school festival in Thatcher woods, River Forest preserve.

As one of the major events of the day, that included a big parade, the spreading of picnic lunches on the ground, and the drinking of pink pop, came the announcement of the winners in the fifth annual health contest for rural schools of the fourth division.

Billy J. Fink, 13 years old, who lives on the outskirts of that suburb and goes to district school 105, the 7th avenue school in La Grange, was hailed as the healthiest boy. He's in the eighth grade. His health record during the year was a 123 out of a possible 130 points.

Frances Wilson, 14 years old, who lives near River Grove and attends a one-room school, district school 85½, was given a banner which read, "Healthiest Girl in the Fourth Division." She scored 126 points. Francis, a sturdy girl.

Chicago Wears Red Poppy of Flanders Field

All Veterans' Tag Days Merged Into One.

Chicago's thousands surrendered wholeheartedly yesterday to an army of nearly 11,000 girls and women who had taken for their motto, "They Shall Not Pass." And they didn't pass—without a poppy to bring back memories of the fields of Flanders and the men who fought there, many of whom fill hospital beds in and about this city. Hospitalized veterans of any American war will benefit from the proceeds.

It was a massed attack that citizens faced yesterday, and a strategic and successful one. For the first time, all organizations participating in the sale of poppies merged their groups and their efforts, to prevent the recurrence of tag days for the same purpose. Volunteers sold for the American Legion, for the G. A. R., for the Spanish-American veterans, and for the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The total of receipts will not be known until Monday.

"We've had fine weather, great cooperation from the police and the city administration, and altogether it looks as though this is going to be our finest poppy day," John R. Mayeskie, president of the poppy day association, declared last night. "It may be that the total of sales will fall a bit behind that of last year because people have been hard pressed, but people have been buying generously and I believe more flowers have been worn this year than on any previous day."

Taggers were distributed over a considerably larger area than in previous sales, officials said, thus reaching more individuals. On the whole, contributions were generous, one attractive girl stationed outside The Tribune Tower reporting several dollar contributions in less than an hour.

Mrs. F. F. Miller Wins Prize for Her Play of Six Telephone Booths

First honors in the playwriting contest conducted during the last few months by the League of American Pen Women have been captured by a Chicago woman, Mrs. Francesco Falk Miller. Notice that her one act play, "The Line Is Busy," has been adjudged best by the committee was received yesterday by Mrs. Miller at her home, 1500 Lake Shore drive. Entries were received from all parts of the country.

Part of the success of her latest effort is credited by Mrs. Miller to the novel feature of the play, the setting for which consists of six telephone booths placed on the stage, through which the story is unfolded. It is a mystery drama involving the ultimate rescue of the main character from underworld associations through which he is being drawn into the career of a crook.

The prize play is by no means the initial effort of its author. Mrs. Miller, a third generation Chicagoan, has been writing short stories and plays for the last few years, some of which have been produced here.

Great Joy Comes to Those Who Adopt Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I feel sure that this week's articles have been of special interest to the parents of adopted children—and of special interest to those who did not adopt their children when they were babies, but when they were old enough to have many habits already established.

It must surely encourage those who are foster parents or those who want to be to see by the experience of the mother mentioned in the column this week how great the force of environment is—to see what marvels she is accomplishing.

As to the happiness it has brought her, I want to end the week by letting her speak for herself:

"But I do not want to leave the impression that we have been too strict, or that we have not gained the love and confidence of this little 'sunshine.' Always, ALWAYS, when he has been disciplined, we close the matter with a kiss and every one is happy.

"While writing this I've had to write with one arm around him lots of the time, while he had his smiling face tipped up, saying 'Mo-her, I love you,' and repeatedly have to lean down for my profered kiss. He's the most affectionate child I've ever seen, and I encourage it, knowing love is the foundation for trust and a host of other things.

"Taking him as we did, with his age almost duplicating that of our little one, we find no difference whatever. It is just as though some one else had been caring for him those two years, or like Rip Van Winkle, I had slept two years and awoke to find my son waiting in another city. The only difference is that I've not had the care of him during his babyhood.

"Sometimes our in-laws say, 'You wouldn't do this or that if he were your own child.' I remind them that he means more to us than most people's own children, for we can have no more of our own and he fills a vacancy we had mourned for two years. It seems too good to be true that we've found a child that so nearly comes up to our expectations.

"If things go well, in another year or two we expect to add a little girl to our family circle. And with all the worry, misgivings, etc., it is still well worth while."

It is long since we have had a word in the department about adopted children. The success and happiness of this foster mother in the face of obstacles must be an inspiration and encouragement to many other foster parents.

"Sweetie" Sees Boy's Many Shortcomings, Yet Loves Him Still

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I kept company with a boy for two years. I broke the engagement on the advice of my parents and friends and because I realized, myself, that marriage with him would be unsuccessful. He had a stubborn nature, was most disagreeable at times, and lacked a lot of good character points that a man should have.

"I'm 20, have a fine paying position, wonderful parents, a fine home, many friends—in short, I have everything to make me happy. BUT that old sweetheart, with all his faults, haunts me still. It's now seven months since we parted. There is a boy, the superior of the other in every way, that I could have. But I miss that other one terribly.

"Isn't love awful? You know such and such a person isn't the right one for you—yet it doesn't prevent you from caring. And none of the good things you have in life matter a darn if you haven't the other thing.

"SWEETIE."

Yes, "Sweetie," love is all of that. It's the very mischief falling in love with one you know is all wrong for you. But women have been doing that since time began and they'll keep on forever, no doubt. The trouble with the business is that after marriage you, if you're like the average woman, will want to make the man over according to your idea of what you think he should be. And for this you have pretty poor material in a young man who lacks a lot of good character points, "is stubborn and disagreeable at times."

It takes a whole heap of loving to keep on living with a man you can't admire or please. It's the strain that everyday living puts on love, after the first year or so is over, that dooms so many of these reckless heart choices. There isn't enough of the great sacrificial spirit in the ordinary human to accept unpleasant circumstances of marriage.

And there's this consolation about the other young man, who, at the moment, doesn't thrill you. Should you marry him and he is kind, and fine, and a pleasant person to get along with, you'll come around to caring deeply for him.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Boy Friend Tags Along.

"Dear Miss Blake—Every time my friend takes me out his boy friend tags along. I do not like him. Please advise. GRACE."

Suggest that you would enjoy a date with him alone some time.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Lacks Clothes for Work.

"I have been out of work for the last year and a half and just recently secured a position. The pay isn't large and we have so many debts I cannot buy myself the clothing I need to make a presentable appearance. I am greatly in need of some dresses and a summer coat, size 16, and shoes, size 6½ A. Would it be asking for too much to have you get some underwear for me, too?

"A. M."

It is extremely important for this young woman in business to make a presentable appearance at all times. That's a difficult thing to do when one has the obligation of debts to meet as A. M. has. Will you help her by donating any things you may have to give?

To Shoo Away That Second Chin, Try Ice Pack, Massage

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A gray hair and a drooping chin are two things that the average woman just can't accept with fortitude. She takes them for the handwriting on the wall—unless she's wise, and takes them for the handwriting on the beauty salon appointment book. Or, that not being in order, puts herself down for a regular date, morning and eve, so help her Jehovah.

The hair problem I won't discuss today. But the chin that you've got to watch for age signs as you watch the youngster's throat for tonsil trouble—we'll tackle it today. Might as well start right out by tackling it with a good astringent and if it is slipping badly, a good, strong astringent.

I put the astringent first not because it comes first in chin treatment, but I do know that many women pat and mold away at the chin area, yet forget the astringent need thereabouts. Chins sag, generally, because of age. But one can induce premature sagging easily enough by holding the head at a down-tilt. The other night I noticed a young blues singer in a downtown place, as every one present must have noticed, too, because of the curious flop of her head as she sang. Singers are not often guilty of this. But the girl let her head flop to one side and lie down on a shoulder bone. The next verse found her head on the other shoulder bone. Coquettish, maybe—but she'll have to coquette fast, for in another year or two she's going to have an awfully old neckline.

Anyway, to shoo away that age sign under the chin front, use the back of your fingers anointed with a skin food or tissue builder and rub with a light pressure, but a fairly firm one, from the center out, and up. If you have time, and you should muster it, somehow, if the neck has any advancing age signs, give your underchin and jaw line an ice pack treatment. Chop some ice and insert it in a thin towel fold, bind the chin and jaw line up tightly with the ice pad, knotting the towel on top of the head or pinning it, and stand the cold as long as you possibly can.

Then, when you take this off, use an astringent—witch hazel or your own favorite prepared article.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Jewell J. Jackson of Glencoe announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Florence Leona, to Sherman De Witt Clough, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. De Witt Clough of Chicago. The wedding will take place at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday, June 6, at the residence of the bride's parents. The bride and groom will reside in Chicago after a wedding trip to Boston.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

G. T.: VASELINE WILL promote the growth of eyelashes. Lanolin and cocoa butter may be used also. They should be warmed and applied in liquid form with a small brush. My leaflet on eyes may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

S. D.: KEEP TWO TOOTHbrushes on hand. After a tooth brush is used, wash it thoroughly to remove every particle of food. Allow to dry before using again.

Two Weddings, Reception and Other Affairs

BY THALIA

THERE are two weddings, a wedding reception, and several other affairs of social interest on today's program. Miss Elizabeth Williamson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Irvine Spencer Williamson of 1517 Hackberry parkway, is to be married to John Bancroft Hammond, and Miss Eleanor McEwen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McEwen of Winnetka, is to wed Robert T. McDevitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McDevitt of Evanston.

The wedding reception is being given by Mr. and Mrs. William Card Wilmuth for their daughter, the former Georgiana Whitcomb, and Wilson Castle, who were married a few weeks ago.

The Williamson-Hammond wedding is to be at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Church of the Ascension, with a reception at the Williamson residence following. The attendants include Mrs. Lewis Andrew Day, matron of honor; Miss Josephine Day, maid of honor; Miss Dorothy Morton, Miss Jane McKinney, Miss Marguerite Fosdick, Miss Katherine Dudley, and Miss Martha Ray, bridesmaids; Cyrus McCormick Jr., best man; Lewis Andrew Day, Stephenson Jennings, Philip Hoover Jr. of Palm Beach, Arthur Reichert, Lee Fetcher, and John Holmes, ushers.

Miss McEwen and Mr. McDevitt are to be married at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Hubbard Woods, also at 4:30 o'clock, and the reception will be at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. McCarthy and Mr. and Mrs. Martha McDevitt are to be, respectively, her matron and maid of honor, and Edward Humphrey of Louisville is to be Mr. McDevitt's best man. Henry Sanders of Louisville, Henry Knoepler of Denver, John Alderman of New York City, John Wilcox III., William Kirk McEwen, brother of Dr. Earl R. McCarthy are to be ushers. Only relatives and intimate friends are to be present at the ceremony, but a larger group has been invited to the reception.

Indian Market, Dog Show Today's Features in Winnetka.

Outdoor affairs include the Winnetka Garden club's annual garden market to be held on the village green and the children's dog show being arranged by Edith Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Porter III., and Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor, daughter of the Wayne Chatfield-Taylors, all to be held at the Porter residence at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

This evening the Tavern is having one of its dinner dances, and the Junior Friends of Arts are giving a South Montmartre party at the Chicago Athletic club. Tavern members who are to entertain guests include Gordon Jennings, Newton Farr, the V. C. Boydens, Macauley Carter, Sam Ray, Col. E. B. Hackett, and Paul Gosling.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes will go next month to see their daughter, Miss Helen Buckner Dawes, carry the famous "daisy chain" in the Vassar commencement exercises. Mrs. Dawes will return to Chicago with them and on Wednesday, June 17, her parents will give a tea and garden party for her at their Evanston residence. Miss Dawes is completing her sophomore year at Vassar and plans to continue her studies there until her graduation two years hence.

Harold H. Swift and Guests Return from California.

Amid ticker tape—Harold H. Swift and his guests returned Thursday morning from California . . . Mrs. Lytton Bowditch and her sister, Miss Rosemary Lytton, are planning to spend part of the summer at the H. Y. Bar ranch, taking Mrs. Benello's young son, Giacomo, with them . . . Mrs. Harry Spencer-Brown of the Amazon is departing for New York shortly to visit her daughter, Mrs. Charles Counselman, on Long Island before they both sail to join the Comtesse de Gramedo, Mrs. Spencer-Brown's other daughter, at the Chateau de Ranville, near Deauville . . . Count Ruggero Visconti, who went to Italy for the recent wedding of his sister, returned to the United States this week . . . tomorrow will be Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull's thirty-second wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Graham will be hosts at a dinner tomorrow evening at the Saddle and Cycle club for Miss Jane Lee, whose marriage to William Graham will be solemnized on June 3 at St. Chrysostom's. Mr. Graham and his bride will sail on June 6 for a European honeymoon. The Grahams have been spending occasional week-ends at their new estate near New Buffalo, Mich., but will not go to the country until after their son's wedding.

Clinton T. Fisher to Bring Horses to South Shore.

Miss Mary Fisher and her father, Clinton T. Fisher of Detroit, will bring some show horses from their Indiana stables, the home of Sweep 31 of Derby day fame, near Lexington, Ky., to be exhibited at the South Shore Country club horse show from June 9 to 13. Miss Mary Llewellyn of Lake Forest is also to be an exhibitor and beholder at the show.

Travel bits—Mrs. C. Morse Ely was at the Ambassador in New York for a few days this week before sailing on Sunday for a trip to Europe. . . . Mrs. Thorne Donnelley of Lake Forest is in New York City. . . . Other Chicagoans listed at Gotham hostelries this week include Mrs. Wilson P. Cooper, Miss Cornelia Conger, and Mrs. Albert J. Pardridge.

Food Talk.

We have had requests, as well as telephone calls, for the six fancy sandwich breads which were mentioned in our Sunday article on sandwiches of April 26. These breads were nut, cheese, olive, orange, Limpa, and cocoa. On May 10 the orange bread recipe appeared. On next Wednesday the Limpa bread recipe will appear. Four recipes follow:

PLAIN WHITE BREAD SPONGE.

¼ cup sugar.
2 tbsp. salt.
1 pint hot mashed potatoes.
1 cup water drained from potatoes.
1½ cups cool water.
1 cake compressed yeast.
¼ cup lukewarm water.
5 cups flour.

Put sugar, salt, potatoes, potato water, and cool water into a bowl or bread mixer and stir until well blended. Soften yeast cake in ¼ cup of lukewarm water, and when the mixture in mixing bowl or mixer has cooled to lukewarm, or 85 degrees F., add yeast and flour to make a sponge. Beat until smooth, cover closely and set in a place free from drafts to rise over night. The temperature for rising should be not more than 75 degrees F.

COCOA BREAD.

4 tbsp. cocoa.
¼ cup sugar.
4 tbsp. butter or other fat.
1 tsp. salt.
1½ cups bread sponge.
Enough flour to make dough of kneading consistency [about 1½ cups bread flour].
¾ cup nuts or seeded raisins.

Combine cocoa, sugar, melted butter and salt, then cream thoroughly. Mix with sponge and add hard wheat flour and knead. Do not add enough flour to make it too stiff. Add the nuts last. Set to rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Then shape into a loaf. Put into a greased pan and let rise again until double in bulk. Bake in hot oven [425 degrees F.].

Yield: 1 loaf.

OLIVE BREAD.

2 cups graham, entire wheat or whole wheat flour.
2 cups wheat flour.
2 tbsp. sugar.
2 tbsp. baking powder.
1 tsp. salt.
2 cups milk [about].
1 egg, beaten.
1 tbsp. melted shortening.
1 cup ripe olives, stoned and cut coarse.

Sift the dry ingredients into a bowl and then add liquid, mixing well. Add the beaten eggs, stir in, and add melted shortening. Add the olives and beat the mixture thoroughly [about 2 minutes]. Bake 1 hour in a moderate to hot oven [375 degrees F.].

Yield: 1 large loaf.

CHEESE BREAD.

1¼ cups milk.
1 cup grated American cheese [¼ lb.].
1 tbs. sugar.
½ cake compressed yeast.
1 tsp. salt.
4 cups bread flour, approximately.

Heat the milk [lukewarm], add the grated cheese and mix. Add the sugar and the yeast dissolved in a small amount of the milk before heating. Add 1 cup of flour and beat with a rotary beater until smooth. Let rise [about 1 hour], add the salt and mix to a kneading dough with flour. Knead 10 minutes, let rise until light, knead again and place in a greased bread pan or make into small rolls. When light, bake bread an hour or rolls 20 to 30 minutes; first 10 minutes at 450 degrees F., remaining time at 350 degrees F. Yield: Two small loaves or one medium loaf and six or eight rolls.

Mrs. D. R. wants to know where to set her oven regulator for sunshine cake and where the rack should be placed for baking a sunshine cake. Sunshine cake belongs to the sponge cake family and needs to be baked like angel food. Set the regulator at 300 degrees F. and place the rack about one-third the way up from the bottom of the oven. Mrs. R. adds that her cake is not as spongy as it should be and it does not rise as it should. She may be using too heavy a hand in combining the ingredients or she may be overmixing. One needs to use gentle movements and mix only long enough to combine ingredients thoroughly but no longer.

NUT BREAD.

1 cake yeast
2 tbsp. sugar
1 qt. lukewarm water
3 cts. whole wheat flour
2 tbsp. lard or butter
2 cups nuts
¼ cup molasses
1 tbsp. salt

Dissolve the yeast and sugar in lukewarm water and add 1½ quarts whole wheat flour to make sponge. Beat well. Cover and let rise until double in bulk, about 1½ hours. When risen add melted lard or butter, molasses, chopped nuts, and remainder of whole wheat flour with salt. Knead for 10 minutes and place in bowl. Cover and let rise until double in bulk, about 1½ hours. Turn out and knead again; mold into loaves and place in baking pans; cover and let rise again until double in bulk, about 1 hour. When light, bake in a hot oven [400 degrees F.] 15 minutes; then reduce heat to moderate [350 degrees F.] for 45 minutes longer.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This attractive outfit is offered today for the busy housewife, but it has dual smartness, for while it is just right to wear at home mornings, it is also right for active sports. The long waisted bodice has attached shorts and is topped by a matching skirt held at the normal waistline by a leather belt. Peach pink linen with brown trimming, cotton broadcloth in dots or stripes, and shantung are among the suitable materials.

The pattern, No. 3057, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 5⅝ yards of 35 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Two 4 Year Men at University of Illinois to Speak Class Day

Urbana, Ill., May 22.—[Special.]—For the first time in the history of the University of Illinois, it is said, two men who have spent their entire university careers on this campus will act as valedictorian and salutatorian at the class day exercises June 15. D. P. Morris of Peoria, Ill., of the college of liberal arts and sciences, will act as valedictorian and R. P. Honold of Sheboygan, Wis., a student in the college of engineering, will act as salutatorian.

A comparison of the work of the undergraduates with that at other universities and colleges resulted this year in the decision that it would be fair to consider for class day orators only those who had taken all their work here.

L. K. McNeal of Eaton, O., will deliver the annual address of the class president. R. C. MacClunchie of East St. Louis, Ill., will represent the junior class.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover left this afternoon at 4 o'clock for the presidential camp. Accompanying her were her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr., and her house guest, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., wife of the governor of Porto Rico. Mrs. Hoover drove her own car. The President will leave for the camp tomorrow morning. Among his guests for the week-end there will be the governor of Porto Rico, who will arrive tomorrow morning from New York.

Mrs. Stark McMullen of California, who has been a guest at the White House for many months, has returned to her home.

Mrs. Russell B. Harrison, daughter-in-law of the late President Benjamin Harrison, has gone to Omaha for a short visit. She stopped in Indianapolis en route to visit her son, William Henry Harrison III., and his family. On her return she will stop in Culver, Ind., to visit her cousin, Mrs. George Moore.

Every Girl Needs an All Purpose Hat

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Every girl needs at least one smart hat that will go with everything; a hat that she can, at a pinch, put on in the morning and wear till night and look neither overdressed in the one case nor underdressed in the other.

A black hat is obviously the best one "for this purpose," unless you belong to the rare category that simply can't wear black, in which case it will be of a dark shade that harmonizes with your wardrobe color scale.

Sketched here are three new Paris hats that ideally fill the all-round-wear bill. They are neither too large nor too small, but sufficiently interesting in line to accompany the afternoon or dinner frock and yet unassuming enough for morning.

The one at the top of the page is from Rose Descat, in black grosgrain ribbon with a shallow bonnet crown and the rolling shell-like brim that is so chic this spring.

In the middle is Agnes' draped tam-turban crocheted of fine straw thread, supple as silk. It is trimmed with a bow of black and white satin ribbon a little off center front. Such a hat is equally at home in the Bois in the morning and in the theater in the evening.

The third hat is the latest thing in cloches for the girl who likes a real brim, and you know brims are returning to smart crowns again. This one is crocheted out of black silk. A perky little blue feather accentuates its upward tilt to the left.

IOWA QUALIFIES 16 TO LEAD BIG TEN MEET

BATTALINO WINS FROM LA BARBA; KEEPS TITLE

MICHIGAN GETS 15 IN TODAY'S FINAL EVENTS

Ohio State Places 14; Illinois 13.

Team Qualifying

Iowa	16	Indiana	8
Michigan	15	Minnesota	7
Ohio State	14	Northwestern	3
Illinois	13	Chicago	3
Wisconsin	10	Purdue	3

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Iowa led in the list of qualifiers in the Western conference track and field meet yesterday at Dyche stadium by placing 16 athletes for the championships which will be held this afternoon. No trials were held in the pole vault, high jump, two mile, one mile and the one mile relay.

Michigan, favorite to win its twelfth title in 31 years of competition, qualified 15 men. Ohio State and Illinois qualified 14 and 13, respectively. These four leading universities each failed to qualify in only two of the eleven events.

Iowa's imposing total, which surpasses the record in recent years, was made possible by the qualification of four men in the hammer throw. Consequently, Iowa is not considered seriously for the championship. Michigan still is the choice over Illinois and Ohio State, which are possibilities for the honor.

Wisconsin Places Ten.

Wisconsin, with ten men qualified, placed them in four events, including four in the shot put and three in the discus. Purdue and Chicago trailed the field of ten universities with only two men each.

Jack Keller, sophomore hurdler from Ohio State, set the individual pace yesterday, along with Lee Sentman of Illinois. Each qualified in three events. Keller and Sentman placed in both hurdles, while Jack also will compete in the 100 yard dash this afternoon, and the Illini star will try his luck in the broad jump.

The result of the meet today may rest on the competition between Sentman and Keller. If Keller wins both hurdle events Ohio State may pass Michigan in the title race.

Keller Beats Sentman's Time.

Yesterday afternoon, aided by a strong north wind, Keller ran the 220 yard low hurdles in 23 3-10 seconds, one-fifth of a second better than Sentman's time. Egleston of Michigan also was under Sentman's time, running in 23 9-10 seconds.

The struggle for the 120 yard high hurdle championship promises a thrilling battle among Sentman and Keller and Jimmy Hatfield of Indiana. All three won their qualifying heats in 14 8-10 seconds.

Eddie Tolan, Michigan's colored star, won his qualifying heats in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. His time of 9 8-10 seconds in the century was beaten, however, by Jess Fazelkas of Ohio State, who took the third heat in 9 7-10 seconds. Tolan was running easily as he broke the tape, while Fazelkas seemed to give all he had. John Hass of Minnesota, winner of the second heat, was timed in 9 8-10 seconds.

Michigan Sprinters Qualify.

Michigan will have three in the field of eight 220 yard sprinters. Tolan had the best time, 21 5-10 seconds, one-tenth better than Campbell, his teammate, and Fazelkas, victors in the second and fourth heats. Murray of Michigan was second in the slowest heat, 21 9-10 seconds, won by Hampton of Illinois. East of Chicago was third in this race and did not qualify.

Edwin Russell, Michigan's hope in the quarter mile, had the best qualifying time. He raced around the cinder oval in 50 4-10 seconds.

Dale Letts, Chicago's middle distance ace, did not attempt the quarter. He qualified in the half mile in 1:59 8-10, taking his heat easily. R. L. Brown, one of three Ohio men in the field of nine qualifiers, surpassed Letts' time. He ran the half in 1:59 2-10. Ed Turner, Michigan sophomore and conference indoor champion, was second in this heat. Beetham, winner in the second heat, and Bloor, second to Letts, completed Ohio's entry.

Letts may run this afternoon in the mile. Bertram Nelson of Chi-

BAT'S A PUZZLE, FIDEL A BORE IN 15 ROUND WALTZ

Championship Bout Draws 9,100.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 22.—Handsome his profile may be and pleasant his manner and his head full of knowledge as of college books, but Fidel La Barba, once of Stanford university, figures as the perfect little gentleman of the prize fight business, was the most monotonous bore of many a year when he tried to take the featherweight championship of the world from Bat Battalino of Hartford, Conn., a modest journeyman prizefighter, in a fifteen round bout in the Garden last evening.

A crowd of 9,100 saw the bout. The receipts were estimated at $32,000.

Battalino entered the inclosure quoted at 7 to 1 in the cauliflower bourse, which holds its sessions in the lobbies on first nights, and the weight of expert opinion against him, if expert opinion had any weight, would have been sufficient to squash him to the floor before a glove was thrown.

But Battalino, whose first name probably stands for battered, spent most of the time walking in on the chin of a set of uncommonly fast feet, pumping away at La Barba's middle with both hands, and the rest of the bout found the officials unanimous in their decision that the title had not passed.

Bat's Friends Profit.

Battalino then babbled the traditional "Hello Mommas" and "Hello Pops" into the microphone in one of the odd corners of the ring and leaped over the ropes to join his home town delegation of Yankees who had come down to New York and helped transfer to many shillings of sophisticated Broadway money for the second time in a few months. Last winter in his first legitimate defense of the title after a year's tenure as titular champion, Battalino paid his first visit to the Garden and great was the celebration in the delicatessens along the main street where the books are made when he beat Kid Chocolate, a Cuban.

It will be no injustice to either of the young men to sum up this evening's bout as a terrible prizefight. Battalino had no skill, but, after the first round, neither had he any respect for La Barba's left hook, which used to be Fidel's only punch. Battalino's left was the longer, and he soon discovered that in the jabbing he could outrank the California brain.

La Barba quickly went to grips and stayed in this fight most of the way by clinching close to his opponent and resting out over Battalino's shoulder with an expression of dreamy detachment in his gray eyes.

La Barba Changes in Fifth.

As they wrestled round after round, Battalino trying to punch in the clinches and La Barba holding him off in the fifth, when La Barba abruptly changed his plan and began fighting with sharp left hooks to the head and ribs. A few of these entered on the nose in the fifth and sixth, but Battalino was outpointing him by aggressiveness and untidy mauling about the head and body.

Battalino's reputation as a nuisance rather than an accidental champion becomes understandable now. He has beaten Chocolate and La Barba, but he remains nevertheless a clumsy kid with no decisive punch, the most unconventional champion since Harry Greb, but a better fighter than two who have been rated among the genuine artists of the game today.

Italian Amateurs Rouse Joe.

The Italian amateur champion boxers then entered the ring for a moment before the semi-final bout to rouse Joe Humphrey to a hysterical fit of oratory. With original references to sunny Italy and reference to Garibaldi, Dante, and Macaroni, Mr. Humphrey finally got around to the point of saying that the Italian boys would win the National A. A. U. champions in the second of the six round appointments ended in less than four when Vigna, a weary and thoroughly cuffed-up little toiler, retreated to his corner, placed his head between his knees and apparently proposed to his second a game of leap frog. The referee, Andy Saviola by name, scratched his head, twitching his scalp in deep thought at this irregular antic and, without the invitation, began to count Vigna slow, deliberate swats on the buttocks. So the referee stopped the fight to spare Vigna further embarrassment.

Tony Carlino of Jersey City and Jack Delmore, alias Buster Brown, of Chicago, whiled away another half hour as two wicket-keepers bided their time waiting for the trade to come. There were large empty patches in the ringside sections and Will Carey, the publicity genius of the Garden, directed his gaze from these vacant spaces as he sat meditating on the inscrutable ways of the public. Mr. Carey was offering a championship fight at 15 rounds next month on the probability that a new champion would be deposed and dismembered, at a maximum gate of $18.50 and the party was much talked of as a financial triumph.

THE GUMPS—ON THE ROAD TO MILLIONS

DEAREST TOM— I'M SO GLAD THAT YOU CALLED ME— AND I WILL BE AT YOUR OFFICE THIS AFTERNOON— I AM SO ANXIOUS TO HAVE YOU EXPLAIN YOUR PLANS— AND TO HEAR ALL ABOUT THIS BIG MERGER— I CAN HARDLY WAIT— YOUR HENRIETTA—
YOUR HENRIETTA— AND MY LITTLE MARY GOLD— POOR LITTLE MARY GOLD—
WELL— HENRIETTA— THINK OF IT— TOMORROW THE GIGANTIC CONSOLIDATION IS ANNOUNCED ON THE MARKET— AND TOMORROW YOU WILL BE WORTH $500,000.00 MORE THAN YOU ARE AT PRESENT— AND I AM ALMOST AFRAID TO THINK WHAT I WILL BE WORTH— MILLIONS— AND WITH IT ALL— PERHAPS THE MOST UNHAPPY MAN ALIVE— SINCE THE DEATH OF MY DEAR LITTLE MARY— MY GRIEF HAS MORE THAN SHADOWED MY GREAT SUCCESS—
YOU HAVE TROUBLES— IT MIGHT BE— SO HAVE OTHERS— NONE ARE FREE FROM THEM— YOU MUST LEARN TO LOOK ON THE BRIGHT SIDE OF LIFE, DEAR— IT IS THE SUNSHINE— NOT THE CLOUD THAT MAKES THE FLOWER— AND REMEMBER THE SKY IS BLUE TEN TIMES WHERE IT IS BLACK ONCE— AND THAT THE GRAND ESSENTIALS TO HAPPINESS IN THIS LIFE AS SOMEONE ONCE SAID— ARE—SOMETHING TO DO— SOMETHING TO LOVE— AND SOMETHING TO HOPE FOR—

Through French Lane's Binoculars

Race news you may want to hear: Mate's coming for the American Derby. He's not eligible for the Belmont Stakes and will be an early arrival at Washington Park. Trainer Jim Healey wired yesterday to have a stall bedded down for the Preakness winner immediately.

JIM HEALY.

Aurora's season ends today. Sad tidings for the ladies. They have been passing through the turnstiles every Monday and Friday without even nodding to the ticket takers. Ladies' days long ago were discarded at all other Chicago tracks.

A smart feature has been arranged for Aurora's closing. It's called the Looking Forward handicap. Burning Up, Celtic Prince, Maya, No More, Ellice, and Little Gyp are some of those named to go. Not much weight on any of them and they should step very lively for the six furlongs.

Al Tarn, the Winnipeg turf man, winds up the Aurora season in a blaze of glory. He has been slapping over a long shot nearly every day for a week. His 3 year old Blixtra made a show of a band of sprinting platers in the third race yesterday. Blixtra had been grouped in the "field" for the betting and paid off at $58.70 for a $2 ticket. A few long shot players grasped at the straw. Tarn's horses have won five races in four days. Likely not to hear much about 'em until they race at Aurora again.

Can't find many people who beat 'em at Aurora. Figure players tore out most of their hair and threw away their dope books before the favorites started to win. Well, they didn't have any money left anyway. But somebody must have a few dollars. Attendance and betting throughout the Aurora season is reported to have been up 25 per cent over any previous meeting. The clubhouse probably brought out that much extra business.

No More, a son of Friar Rock-Once More, and until a few days ago in the W. R. Coe stable of New York, gave the favorite players a chance to groan again when he won the closing day's purse at Aurora yesterday. He came home ahead of Portmanteau and the odds-on favorite, Gold Step. He probably is the best horse that has raced at Aurora this spring. He had been running against the best in New York until he came west only last week.

Aurora fans didn't give him a tumble. They made Gold Step a 4 to 5 shot and let No More go to the post at 3½ to 1. Gold Step did his best and led to the head of the stretch, and then No More came flying past. It was all over. No More romped by the winning post five lengths in front. He will be hard to trim in the Looking Forward handicap today.

Big 10 Draws Up Football Card for 1932

Four intersectional football games, three of them new rivalries, mark the 1932 Western Conference schedule which was drawn up yesterday at the annual meeting of athletic directors and football coaches at the North Shore hotel in Evanston.

Northwestern meets Stanford at Palo Alto, Cal., on Oct. 8; Princeton plays Michigan at Ann Arbor, Oct. 29, and Purdue travels to New York university on the same date. The other intersectional games, Chicago at Yale, Oct. 8, is the corollary to the Bulldogs' visit to the Midway this fall.

Open Date in Chicago.

For the first time in years Chicago will have no major league football on the second Saturday in November. The University of Chicago on that date is at Michigan, while Northwestern, by virtue of the arrangement which brings Notre Dame to Soldiers' field this fall, will play the Irish at South Bend.

Indiana, long a fixture on Northwestern's schedule, is not scheduled for 1932. Michigan will play Indiana at Bloomington for the first time in history of the Western Conference although the universities have met several times at Ann Arbor.

Badgers Fill Schedule.

Wisconsin leads the 1932 schedule in number of Big Ten games, six. Northwestern at present has four conference games and Stanford and Notre Dame.

All the conference coaches and directors were present at yesterday's meeting except George Huff of Illinois and Fielding Yost of Michigan. The schedule:

Oct. 8—Indiana at Ohio State; Northwestern at Stanford; Michigan State at Michigan; Iowa at Wisconsin; Purdue at Minnesota; Chicago at Yale.

Oct. 15—Michigan at Ohio State; Northwestern at Illinois; Iowa at Indiana; Wisconsin at Purdue.

Oct. 22—Indiana at Chicago; Illinois at Michigan; Minnesota at Iowa.

Oct. 29—Wisconsin at Ohio State; Northwestern at Minnesota; Illinois at Chicago; Princeton at Michigan; Purdue at New York university.

Nov. 5—Ohio State at Northwestern; Michigan at Indiana; Illinois at Wisconsin; Purdue at Chicago.

Nov. 12—Northwestern at Notre Dame; Chicago at Michigan; Minnesota at Wisconsin.

Nov. 19—Ohio State at Illinois; Iowa at Northwestern; Indiana at Purdue; Michigan at Minnesota; Wisconin at Chicago.

The 1931 schedule of Big Ten football teams drawn up at the coaches' meeting last winter follows:

Northwestern—Oct. 3, Nebraska at Northwestern; Oct. 10, Northwestern vs. Notre Dame; Oct. 17, University of California [Los Angeles] at Northwestern; Oct. 24, Northwestern at Ohio State; Oct. 31, Illinois at Northwestern; Nov. 7, Minnesota at Northwestern; Nov. 14, Indiana at Northwestern; Nov. 21, Northwestern at Iowa.

Chicago—Oct. 10, Michigan at Chicago; Oct. 17, Yale at Chicago; Oct. 24, Indiana at Chicago; Oct. 31, Purdue at Chicago; Nov. 7, Arkansas at Chicago; Nov. 14, Chicago at Illinois; Nov. 21, Wisconsin at Chicago.

Illinois—Oct. 3, St. Louis university at Illinois; Oct. 10, Illinois at Purdue; Oct. 17, Bradley at Illinois; Oct. 24, Michigan at Illinois; Oct. 31, Illinois at Northwestern; Nov. 7, Wisconsin at Illinois; Nov. 14, Chicago at Illinois; Nov. 21, Illinois at Ohio State.

Michigan—Oct. 10, Michigan at Chicago; Oct. 17, Ohio State at Michigan; Oct. 24, Michigan at Illinois; Oct. 31, Michigan at Princeton; Nov. 7, Indiana at Michigan; Nov. 14, Michigan State at Michigan; Nov. 21, Minnesota at Michigan.

Wisconsin—Oct. 10, Auburn at Wisconsin; Oct. 17, Purdue at Wisconsin; Oct. 24, Wisconsin at Pennsylvania; Oct. 31, Wisconsin at Minnesota; Nov. 7, Wisconsin at Illinois; Nov. 14, Ohio State at Wisconsin; Nov. 21, Wisconsin at Chicago.

Purdue—Oct. 3, Coe and Western Reserve at Purdue; Oct. 10, Illinois at Purdue; Oct. 17, Purdue at Wisconsin; Oct. 24, Purdue at Carnegie Tech; Oct. 31, Purdue at Chicago; Nov. 7, open; Nov. 14, Iowa at Purdue; Nov. 21, Purdue at Indiana.

Minnesota—Oct. 3, open [possibly Vanderbilt]; Oct. 10, Minnesota at Stanford; Oct. 17, open [probably will not be filled]; Oct. 24, Iowa at Minnesota; Oct. 31, Wisconsin at Minnesota; Nov. 7, Minnesota at Northwestern; Nov. 14, open; Nov. 21, Minnesota at Michigan.

Iowa—Oct. 3, Pittsburgh at Iowa; Oct. 10, Iowa at Texas Aggies [Dallas]; Oct. 17, Indiana at Iowa; Oct. 24, Iowa at Minnesota; Oct. 31, George Washington at Iowa; Nov. 7, Iowa at Nebraska; Nov. 14, Iowa at Purdue; Nov. 21, Northwestern at Iowa.

Indiana—Sept. 26, Ohio university at Indiana; Oct. 3, Notre Dame at Indiana; Oct. 10, open; Oct. 17, Iowa at Iowa City; Oct. 24, Chicago at Chicago; Oct. 31, Ohio State at Indiana; Nov. 7, Michigan at Ann Arbor; Nov. 14, Northwestern at Evanston; Nov. 21, Purdue at Indiana.

Ohio State—Oct. 10, Vanderbilt at Ohio; Oct. 17, Ohio State at Michigan; Oct. 24, Northwestern at Ohio State; Oct. 31, Ohio State at Indiana; Nov. 7, Navy at Ohio State; Nov. 14, Ohio State at Wisconsin; Nov. 21, Illinois at Ohio State.

CUBS COME HOME FROM THAT LITTLE TRIP DOWN EAST

Meet Pirates at Wrigley Field Today.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs, a bit bruised but still full of vigor and the will to win, got back home yesterday afternoon and immediately settled down to scheming how they can win a flock of baseball contests before the eastern clubs arrive on June 2.

The first of these games they are preparing to win will be played this afternoon against the sixth place Pirates with Root or Malone and Heinie Meine the probable pitchers. They also will play the Pirates tomorrow and Monday, then move on to Cincinnati, where they are scheduled to play four games in three days, including a double header Tuesday against the last place Reds. Friday they will be in Pittsburg for three games in two days, including morning and afternoon games on Memorial day, thence back to Chicago with the Pirates for one game on Sunday, May 31.

Hold Edge Now.

The Cubs thus far have won 10 games out of 11 played against the athletes with whom they will compete in the next 11 games. It is not reasonable to suppose they will do as well in this second run of 11 games as they did in the first 11 but there is high hope that they will receive the first of the eastern clubs with a league standing well above the .500 mark.

It is looking a bit into the future, but there seems to be a great deal of interest in what the impending invasion of the west by the eastern clubs will do to the league standings.

With the exception of the Cardinals, all of the class in both leagues thus far has been displayed by the eastern teams.

Robins Open Invasion.

The Chicago invasion will be opened by the Robins, who have had great difficulty in getting under way after a most promising hot stove outlook The Robins will be here for four days beginning June 2 and will be followed by the powerful Giants. The Phillies then will come to town for four games, followed by the Braves, who arrive for three contests. Against these four teams the Cubs have played eight games, six of which they lost.

Manager Hornsby said that pregame workouts today would influence him in deciding between Root or Malone for today's pitching. Root has lost his last three starts, but is in no physical distress. Malone got credit for one of the two wins on the eastern trip but he took over the game with a sizable lead and got credit because Sweetland had lacked one putout of going the required first five innings.

POOL IN DERBY SWEEP REACHES $7,750,000 TOTAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 22.—Congestion reigns in the sweepstake offices on the eve of the closing of the Derby sweep. The feature of today was the number of persons arriving from across the channel carrying thousands of dollars.

THE TRIBUNE was informed tonight that the prize money stands at nearly $7,750,000. This exceeds the Grand National sweep by more than $1,500,000.

When the sweep closes tomorrow, Saturday night, it is anticipated that the gross receipts will exceed $10,000,000. It is calculated that there is now available 15 first prizes worth $150,000 each, 15 second prizes worth $75,000 each, 15 third prizes worth $50,000 each. Altogether it is estimated that prizes will be available to 3,600 ticket holders.

The draw begins on May 30, when the members of the Dail senate, foreign ministers, and consuls stationed in Dublin will attend.

BOILING DOWN THE BIG 10 FIELD

British Golf Title Is Won by Eric Smith

BY EUGENE SPECK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DEVON, England, May 22.—A 22 year old Cambridge student, a newcomer in big time golf, whose presence in the British amateur golf championship was so unnoticed it was virtually a secret until yesterday, tonight holds the title left vacant by Bobby Jones.

Eric Martin Smith, who had never entered a championship before, became the new champion by defeating John De Forest, one up, in the 36 hole final over the Royal North Devon course this afternoon. De Forest is another youngster, 24 years of age.

Cards Are High.

But the scoring in perfect weather was poor in comparison to the cards at St. Andrews, Scotland, last year, when Jones beat Weathered, 7 and 6. Both played erratically with fives, sixes, and sevens scattered through the cards. Smith's card was first at 18 holes with an even 80. He was out in 41 with a return in 39. De Forest was worse, going out in 43 and 42 to return. The pair were the youngest finalists in the history of the ancient tournament.

De Forest took the lead on the third hole by laying Smith a long stymie. They halved the next but Smith evened up on the short fifth with a par three. On the sixth, seventh, and eighth they halved but Smith went one up at the turn when De Forest failed to sink a four foot putt.

Match Is Evened.

The seesaw continued on the tenth where the match was evened. Then Smith won the eleventh and twelfth, while De Forest was blasting out of bunkers. They halved the remaining holes and Smith went into the afternoon round two up.

De Forest's faltering approach gave Smith a lead of three at the 20th hole. He managed to hold this advantage at the 21st even though he was stymied, for De Forest missed his four foot putt. A birdie three on the 22d put Smith four up.

Erratic golf continued, however, and they were even going to the 36th, where Smith's four won the championship.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE:

On May 14, 1878, the old White Stockings baseball park at Randolph and the lake front was thrown open to the public. Indianapolis, at that time in the National league, was the visiting team and defeated Anson's squad, 8 to 6. The batting orders were:

CHICAGO—Remsen, cf.; Start 1b.; Ferguson, ss.; Harbridge, c.; Hallinan, lf.; Anson, 2b.; Cassidy, rf.; Hankinson, 3b.; Larkin, p.

INDIANAPOLIS—Quest, 2b.; Nelson, ss.; Shafer, rf.; McKelvey, cf.; Croft, 1b.; Clapp, lf.; "Silver" Flint, c.; Ed [The Only] Nolan, p.; Williamson, 3b.

The umpire on this occasion was an ex-pugilist from Philadelphia named McLean. The Indianapolis pitcher, Nolan, gained his sobriquet "The Only" from having pitched 109 games the previous season and was credited with winning 87 of them.

At the close of the 1878 season A. G. Spalding, owner of the Chicago team, purchased from Indianapolis Players Flint, Williamson, and Quest for a price of $7,000. Guy M. Smith.

Ox teams were at one time, in the pioneer days, the only means of transportation between Watseka and Chicago. At that time Micajah Stanley of Watseka was offered in trade the present site of the Chicago postoffice, Adams and Dearborn, for a wagon load of corn and a wagon load of wheat. A Pioneer's Daughter.

Help! Help!

Blow Away the Smoke Screen.

Wake: What are you going to do about this from a fire insurance man? You are visiting with him on your front porch of an evening and you tell him about a man who set fire to different places and he says, says he, "Why, he's a regular kleptomaniac."

The Breath of Roses.

Dear one, let us walk today
That cherished path that winds its way
Among sweet-scented roses;
Rest thou my fears with thy soothing caress,
Kiss me again with thy soul's tenderness;
Let me know peace words can never express
'Mid the roses, the beauteous roses.

What though time may pencil care
Upon thy brow, to me so fair—
I would see, ever, the roses.
Lead me, my love, where the soft lovelight beams
Into the realm where thy gentleness teems.
Abide in my life and sweeten my dreams
With the roses, the beauteous roses.

Bert B. Smiley.

Schmeling and Stribling.

In the first batch of advance publicity in ballyhoo of the Schmeling-Stribling fight at Cleveland July 3, we are informed the contest will not be won or lost on a foul blow. That's good news.

Cleveland's boxing commission has a no-foul rule somewhat similar to that of New York state, adopted after the Schmeling-Sharkey and other unsatisfactory terminations to important bouts. Although Cleveland now has no provision for safety devices to be worn over vital spots of the foul region, action is expected.

According to the publicity, a conference will determine what shall be done in the case of technical fouls differing from those of a foul blow. The referee has not been named, but referees from outside states are permitted in Ohio.

Gorilla Jones Prepares to Fight Lawless

Gorilla Jones took his opening workout at Howard's Arcade gymnasium yesterday, preparatory to his ten round fight with Bucky Lawless in one-half of the double windup card at the Chicago Stadium Monday night.

Jones, a stocky, barrel chested chap, will be making his Chicago debut in this fight. One of the five ranking middleweights in the country, he will work down to 152 pounds for Lawless, the same weight he has agreed to make for Young Corbett on the coast June 8.

Four rounds of boxing comprised the Gorilla's drill yesterday, but he said he would probably work six or eight today.

Boasts 35 Knockouts.

Jones' record is studded with knockouts, the books crediting him with 35 in 71 fights. Among his victims he numbers Jack McVey, Al Mello, Tommy Freeman, Joe Zelinsky and Nick Testo.

He attributes his knockout propensities to his early training, when he built up a considerable reputation as a battle royal champion. This distinction was gained in Hot Springs, Ark., where the Gorilla sought haven after disappointing the old folks in Memphis when he thought better of an attempt to become a deacon in the family church.

Following successful battle royal conquests, for which he received the sum of one dollar, he discarded the name William, it being too docile, renamed himself Gorilla and sought employment as a boxer in a Hot Springs club. For these fights he received five dollars.

Jones has met Lawless five times. Once he knocked out Bucky in five rounds. The next two fights went to Lawless on a decision. Their fourth match saw the Gorilla win decisively, and in their last bout, the judges and referee declared unanimously for a draw.

Miller to Box Delmont.

Jones and Lawless share the wind up spot with Ray Miller and Danny Delmont, two dangerous punchers and lightweight contenders. Miller worked four rounds at the Arcade yesterday, boxing two with Jimmy Lundy, coast welterweight, and two against a featherweight. Delmont, who is doing his training at Mullen's gym, has been showing more impressively than at any time in his career.

Lawless is due here today. He will box at Mullen's. Other fighters on the card will all be in by this afternoon, Hymie Wiseman being due at the Arcade for a drill, and his opponent, Midget Mike O'Dowd, being scheduled at Mullen's.

Fish and Game Retreat Before Steam Shovels

BY BOB BECKER.

Kankakee River, Ind., May 22.—[Special.]—The fisherman who is looking for a northern Indiana small mouth bass stream would hardly choose this new Kankakee river, which has been straightened into a drainage ditch.

On the contrary, the wise fisherman would pass on to the Yellow river at Plymouth, because this stream is a "natural," with plenty of small mouth bass. It winds its way through country untouched by ditch digging machinery.

A meandering stream, full of big boulders, fallen logs, driftwood, snags, and other débris, it is ideal for game fish. Such streams have spawning grounds, places for the fish to hide and places where the game fish can find plenty of food. That was the character of the old Kankakee in Indiana, judging from what we saw of the abandoned stream bed, which now is dry.

The new Kankakee is an artificial straight channel which operates like a drainage ditch and looks like it. When we inspected it yesterday with some Indiana sportsmen they regaled us with many a yarn of the big bass of the good old days before the marsh was drained, and when the looping stream twisted its way

NOTRE DAME'S 48 POINTS WIN IN CENTRAL MEET

Eight Records Fall at Marquette.

Table of Points

[illegible]	48	Milwaukee Teach.	11

[illegible]	32½	Loyola	1
[illegible]	27

BY CHARLES NEVADA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 22.—Notre Dame took first places in three of the final four event. here tonight to win the fifth annual Central Intercollegiate conference track and field meet. The South Bend team's late rush carried it to victories in the one mile relay, the 220 yard low hurdles and the broad jump.

A first place in the 440 yard test and seconds and thirds in other events enabled Notre Dame to pile up 48 points as compared to 37½ for Marquette university, in whose stadium the meet was held. The win was Notre Dame's fourth since 1926. Michigan State was a near third and Butler fourth with 27. Seven other central college were represented, but only three of these figures in the scoring.

Eight Records Broken.

Eight meet records were broken and one was equalled.

Less than 1,000 saw two in the field establish themselves as candidates for the United States Olympic team. They were Jack Tierney, Marquette sophomore, who broke records to win the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and Clark Chamberlain of Michigan State, who won within nine-tenths of a second of equalling the 19 year old American mark for the two mile run.

Tierney Sets Two Marks.

Tierney gave notice to the country's track fans when he ran the 100 yard dash in 09.8, a second less than the Big Ten conference intercollegiate record set by Eder of Notre Dame in 1929. Tierney came back to win the 220 yard dash in 21.3, five seconds less than another central intercollegiate mark owned by Eder.

Chamberlain excelled his two mile record without being pressed. He ran the distance in 9:18.7. His previous best time for the games was 9:21.7. S. Berna of Cornell is the holder of the U. S. record.

[illegible] YARD DASH—Won by Wilson [Notre Dame]; Scanlon [Notre Dame], second; [illegible] [Marquette], third; Sweeney [Marquette], fourth. Time, :09.4.

GOLF STROKES • RIGHT & WRONG

by Jock Hutchison

RIGHT.

Correct footwork and knee action are essential in getting the smooth pivot required for a full golf swing. In the accompanying illustration my left knee has broken in toward the right foot and my left heel has left the ground. The weight of the body is evenly distributed between both feet.

WRONG.

The beginner has bent his left knee forward instead of toward the right foot and his left heel is not lifted. His weight is on his left foot. In hitting from this position his tendency will be to shift his weight back to his right foot, causing the body and club to work in opposite directions.

Nebraska and Kansas Battle for Big 6 Title

Lincoln, Neb., May 22.—(AP)—The battle for the 1931 Big Six track and field championship virtually narrowed down to a dual affair between the defending Kansas Jayhawkers and Nebraska's Cornhuskers at the preliminary trials here today of the third annual conference meet.

Kansas qualified 26 athletes and Nebraska 21. However, ten of the Jayhawkers who won their way into the finals tomorrow ranked among the last four place winners in the field events, in which ten athletes qualified. Figuring only the first six qualifiers in all events, Nebraska held the edge after the preliminaries with a team of 20, against 16 for Kansas.

On the same basis Iowa State qualified 10, the Kansas Aggies and Oklahoma 7 each, and Missouri only three.

Gray of Nebraska added one-eighth of an inch to the broad jump record with a leap of 24 feet 2⅜ inches. The best previous mark was made last year by his teammate, Cobe Tomson, whose best distance this afternoon was 23 feet 7 inches, placing him third.

BRADLEY TOPS QUALIFIERS

Monmouth, Ill., May 22.—(AP)—Qualifying eight men in the trials today, Bradley college continued as the favorite to retain the Little Nineteen conference track and field championship.

Redd of Bradley qualified in the 100 yard dash and the low hurdles, making the best time in the latter event, and doing 10 flat in the century without being pushed. Knox qualified six men, Illinois Wesleyan five, and Normal, Monmouth, Illinois college, Lake Forest, and Southern Teachers gained four places each.

In the faculty tennis tournament, Trevo and Churchill of Knox will meet McMullen and McMichael of Monmouth in the finals, while Brown of Normal will meet McMichael in one semi-final in the singles, and Ivins of Eastern Teachers will meet either Stratton of Illinois college or Churchill in the other. The qualifiers:

100 YARD DASH—Sperry, Knox; McLawrence, Bradley; Murray, Normal; Weatherley, Monmouth; Baker, Illinois college; Gorens, Wesleyan; Redd, Bradley; Saunders, McKendree; Hinds, Illinois college; Thoman, Augustana; Shafer, Bradley; McCoy, Eastern Teachers. Best time, :10, by Weatherley, Redd, and Thoman.

440 YARD DASH—Hensel, Wesleyan; Siebert, North Central; Nichols and Marvin, Normal; Putcamp and Boulton, Carthage; Crawford, Wheaton; Sherman, Knox; Spring, Lake Forest. Best time, :51.2, by Hensel.

220 YARD DASH—Weatherley, Monmouth; Murray, Normal; Paul and Sperry, Knox; Shafer and McCarthy, Bradley; Hinds, Illinois college; Gorens, Wesleyan; Spring, Lake Forest. Best time, :23.4, by Saunders.

220 YARD LOW HURDLES—Parker and Alexander, Western Teachers; Swisher and Redd, Bradley; Beattie and Cardy, Knox; Singer, Illinois college; McGee and Crain, Southern Teachers; Leach, Wesleyan; Funkhouser, Eastern Teachers; Longman, Monmouth. Best time, :25.2, by Redd.

880 YARD RUN—Reed, Southern Teachers; Carter, Wesleyan; Sutherland, Bradley; Ruhl, Elmhurst; Hammond, Lake Forest; Sparks, Eastern Teachers; Hutton, Normal; Murphy, Monmouth; Brown, Eureka. Best time, 2:04.3, by Ruhl.

6 TRACK TEAMS IN SUBURBAN PREP TOURNEY TODAY

Six teams, including Oak Park High school, which won the Illinois state track and field championship at Champaign last week, will compete in the third annual Suburban league meet in the dedication of New Trier's new field in Winnetka today. Other schools entered are Deerfield, Morton, Evanston, New Trier, and Proviso.

There will be fourteen events on the program. League records were set last year in the 120 yard hurdles, one mile run, 440 yard run, 220 yard run, and the 220 low hurdles.

More than 200 athletes, representing five schools, will compete in the annual South Suburban High School league track and field meet this afternoon at Stagg field. Harold Block will lead the University High team which won the title last year.

Block will compete in the dashes and the high jump. Clarence Rohrdanz, who holds the league record in the 220 yard run, will represent Thornton. Simon of Bloom has been entered in the broad jump.

GOLFERS TO OPEN DERBY TODAY ON MIDLOTHIAN LINKS

The Midlothian Country club's twenty-seventh annual golf derby, which will be played today and tomorrow, has drawn an entry list of 190 members and guests.

Players have gathered from many parts of the country but the bulk of the field is entered from clubs in the Chicago district. Ned Sawyer, Gordon Booth, Jim Gerard, Percy Graham, J. M. Timmons, George Hartman, Frank Warden, Carl Overaker and others will be there to uphold the honor of the home club.

Some of the players from other clubs will be Chick Evans, Edgewater; H. B. Maguire, Flossmoor; Arthur Sweet, Ridgemoor; Clair Maxwell, Bonnie Brier, New York; Ray Maxwell, champion of Wykagyl, New York; J. F. McGivern, Flossmoor; R. N. Bowen, Indianapolis Country club.

The derby dinner will be served Saturday night.

GAELIC FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS PLAY HERE TOMORROW

Gaelic football will make its appearance in Chicago, after an absence of three years, tomorrow afternoon, when the championship All-Ireland team from Kerry meets a picked Chicago squad at Soldiers' field. It will be the second game on its United States tour for the Irish team, having defeated New York at Yankee stadium last week, 9 to 6.

The Chicago team has been selected from six clubs in the Midwest Gaelic Athletic association, and includes P. O'Donnell and O'Grady, who faced an Irish team at Sox park three years ago.

HOPPE WINS 8TH BLOCK IN MATCH WITH KIECKHEFER

Willie Hoppe increased his lead over Augie Kieckhefer in their three cushion billiard match to 400 to 350 last night at the Kieckhefer Recreation by winning the eighth block, 50 to 46. Hoppe also won the seventh block played yesterday afternoon, 50 to 24, in 32 innings, running out with an unfinished run of eight.

Last night's match went to 41 innings, Kieckhefer making a brilliant effort to stave off defeat by cueing a high run of 16 in his nineteenth inning. Hoppe had a high run of 10. Hoppe now has won six of the eight blocks.

WHEAT MARKET FLUCTUATES IN AIMLESS MANNER

Prices Close at Top as Late Rally Develops.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market is fluctuating in an aimless maner, with the news having little effect, but the July delivery seems to receive good support on the breaks below 80c and so far has been unable to get out of the range of around 8c in which it has held for three months. There was short covering early yesterday on reports of frost in Kansas, which caused apprehension of damage, but the market broke around 1c lower with corn and in sympathy with Liverpool only to rally sharply toward the last and close at the top with the new crop months ½@¾c higher, July being 80¾c; September, 80@80¼c, and December, 83⅝@83¾c. Old May was unchanged at 82¼@82¾c.

Whether the winter wheat crop in Kansas has suffered any damage or not by the frost which has been reported for several days past is a mystery to the trade, and some observers feel that if there has been any loss it will not be shown until harvest. According to an estimate there were about 2,000,000 acres in the section of the state where frost might have prevailed.

Canada Still Dry.

Taken as a whole the general tenor of the news was somewhat more favorable to holders, but the speculative trade was not large and prices advanced and declined on relatively small orders either way. The first new crop winter wheat was reported as having been sold for export during the day to the United Kingdom and the continent, but the quantity and price were not given. Greece was reported to have bought around 1,000,000 bu Manitobas in the last two days and around 300,000 bu were sold to Europe.

Dry weather continues in the Canadian northwest and the forecast for the spring wheat territory was for generally fair and warmer. Sanford Evans of Winnipeg reported the average rainfall in the three prairie provinces from April 1 to May 20 at .50 to 1.10 inches, compared with 1.83 to 2.36 inches during the same period last year, and a 10 year average of 2.6 to 3 inches. Neither the domestic nor the foreign trade, however, seems to become enthusiastic on the bull side on the dry weather talk. Winnipeg closed ⅝@⅝c higher, with July 61¼c, while Liverpool finished ⅝@⅝d lower. The latter will be closed until Tuesday.

Offered Under Chicago.

New winter wheat to arrive was offered during the day at ¼c under Chicago July for August-September shipment, with 2c under bid. Minneapolis reported No. 2 hard for June shipment offered at 2c over Minneapolis July.

All deliveries of corn, with the exception of the May, dropped to a new low for the season on persistent selling by local operators, a leading professional being credited with going out of a long line through commission houses. Prices dropped ⅝@1¼c from Thursday's finish to a low of 65¾c for September and 47½c for December, with support coming mainly from shorts and on resting orders. Toward the last there was a short covering movement, which lifted prices sharply, and the finish was ¼c lower to ⅝c higher, with December leading. May closed at 56¼c; July, 56⅛@56⅝c; September, 54⅝@54¾c, and December, 48⅝@48⅝c.

Some damage to the new corn crop by frost was reported in parts of Iowa, and had some effect on the market, especially the December. Planting in Nebraska on May 20 was officially reported as 50 per cent planted, compared with only 11 per cent on May 19, 1930. The July-September spread widened to as much as 2¼c at one time, compared with ¾c early in the week, but was only 2¼c at the last. Shipping demand was slow and country offerings light.

BREAK IN LARD

A little selling pressure from a commission house, with lower prices for hogs, led to weakness and a sharp decline in prices yesterday. Packers' buying checked the decline, and while the market rallied, it failed to hold gains established, with the close at not lesse of 17½c. July bellies broke from $8.35 at the opening on scattered selling, touching $8.15, but were bid up by packers at the last to $8.40. Cash trade in fairly good meats was quiet and demand was unchanged to 6d higher, the latter on September. Exports of lard were 508,000 lbs. Hogs were lower, with receipts larger than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:

SEARS ROEBUCK SALES VOLUME TURNS UPWARD

Doing More Business Than Last Year.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The volume of business of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago mail order and chain store concern, has turned definitely upward in the last few weeks. In fact, the big company is doing a larger business than a year ago, although its dollar sales are slightly lower, owing to the generally lower commodity prices.

Sales of Sears-Roebuck for the four weeks ended May 21, which was the April period in its thirteen month year, totaled $39,466,560, a decline of only $77,451, or 9-10 of 1 per cent, from the $39,455,991 received in the corresponding period in 1930. For the year to May 21, the company's sales aggregated $129,154,494, compared with $146,080,970 last year, a decline of $16,926,376, or 8.3 per cent. However, its percentage decline in sales is less than the average decline in commodity prices.

To Start New Bank.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. will lend its name and influence toward the establishment of a new bank to be located about July 1 in its merchandise building at Hoffman and Arthington streets. The nucleus of the new bank is the Community State bank, now located on the corner of Roosevelt road and Central Park. The new bank, a chartered by which has just been granted, by the state banking department, will be known as the Sears Community State bank.

Certain accounts of the mail order company are to be given to the new institution, and it is likely that Sears-Roebuck will be represented on the board, it was stated.

The financial structure of the new bank will remain the same as its predecessor. The Community State has a capital stock of $200,000, surplus of $100,000, and reserve of $10,000.

BETTER TRADE OUTLOOK

The weekly trade reviews reported a slightly more favorable outlook for business generally than last week.

R. G. Dun & Co. reports that industry generally is in a sounder condition to move ahead than it was a year ago, due to reductions of overhead expenses, inventories, debts and the installation of more rigid policies of management.

"There has been a gradual expansion in the operations of industrial plants, with automobile, rubber, tire, textile and shoe industries increasing the rate of output," Dunn reports. "Even though these gains be of a seasonal nature, they are helpful for their contributing increase to pay rolls and for the more cheerful outlook they give buyers in general."

Seen Hard to Distinguish.

"It is at times difficult to distinguish between good business news and bad," says Dun's review of the week. "A general wage cut unquestionably reduces the purchasing power of the portion of the population affected and so is usually construed adversely. The opposite interpretation may be placed upon such an occurrence when it is considered as a corrective move designed to bring about a better balance between the revenues and expenses of an essential industry.

"Similarly some commentators will call a series of interest rate reductions as a factor which makes commercial borrowing easier and strengthens the credit structure, while others will deplore the lack of demand and the plethora of money by which it is induced."

Necessitates Revisions.

"The decline in commodity prices, which has continued without interruption for a number of months, has necessitated drastic downward revisions of inventory and asset values on the part of many hundreds of business organizations. Corporate earnings have been reduced accordingly in even greater degree than would have been the case if a lower volume of business had been the sole element of major importance entering into the formulation of sales and budget plans.

"However, a philosophic view even of this movement is taken by some economists who envision it as a consequence of the readjustment of the years 1929 and 1931. They take the position that the deflation of that time was accomplished too rapidly to be effective and that, because of the quick rebound in the period, immediately following, further correction is necessary.

Sales Adjustments.

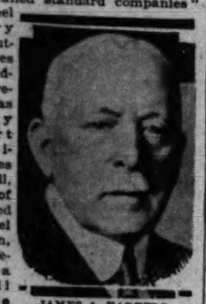
Bradstreet's reported that retail trade throughout the country showed little improvement. Business and buying are beginning to adjust themselves to the new conditions in most sections.

Fair weather in many cities helped retail trade and another cause for the better buying was the movement of seasonal merchandise, cotton dresses and other summer apparel, garden tools and sporting goods. Shoes were in particular demand. Wholesale and jobbing lines were still marking time.

Farrell Brands Wage Cuts "Cheap Sort of Business"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 22.—Charging that the "so called standard companies" in the steel industry were cutting wages and branding the reductions as "a pretty cheap sort of business," James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, threw something of a bombshell into the semi-anual meeting of the American Iron and Steel institute at the Hotel Commodore today.



JAMES A. FARRELL.

At the conclusion of Mr. Farrell's attack, which he told newspaper men was not intended for publication, the thousand representatives of steelmakers attending the conference left the room, giving little heed to the technical papers to be read, and gathered in small groups to discuss the unexpected declaration.

Blames "Comrades."

The remarks of the head of the country's biggest industrial concern were somewhat in the nature of a reply to a prepared address read by Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel corporation and president of the institute, who declared his belief that the industrial liquidation was about over and that the "rationing of steel on a starvation diet" would be remedied "before many months elapse."

Mr. Farrell had other pointed things to say. He doubted even preferred dividends could be met if the industry continued not to "sell" steel, but to give it to customers for whatever they wanted to pay.

Rather than continue to waste materials, he said, he favored running the risk of a general shutdown until conditions bettered.

Price reductions below costs could not be blamed on salesmen, he insisted.

"You have to blame the 'comrades' for this," he declared, "and they are sitting here in the front row."

The pungency of Mr. Farrell's remarks on conditions in the industry aside from the matter of salaries was likewise at variance with the tenor of Mr. Schwab's address, the latter having adhered throughout to his accustomed optimistic position.

Warns Audience.

"We are living in a fool's paradise," Mr. Farrell warned his audience. "Honeycombing and pinching and all sorts of things have gone on; the so-called big standard companies, the companies in the headlines, are not maintaining the standard rate of wages.

"It's a shame that when some of the large companies are trying to maintain wages, others are cutting them, even when they are affording only three-day-a-week employment.

"Every manufacturer has not maintained the current rate of wages. I am not going to give the names of all the companies represented in this room that have cut wages because I don't want to embarrass you, but I think it's a pretty cheap sort of business."

Sharply in contrast with Mr. Schwab's prediction that the "tide was coming in" also were Mr. Farrell's pronouncements on other phases of the industry.

"I said a year ago," he declared, "that if the price situation continued as it was then, most steel companies would not earn their dividends on the common stock. I tell you now that most steel companies will not earn their dividends on the preferred stock if the situation continues.

"We have to set up resistance against this move on the part of the buyer to ruin our business. You can't blame this price cutting on the salesmen. It is the big chiefs in the organization who are doing the cutting. When you get a $10 a ton slash in pipe you can't blame that on the salesmen. You have to blame the 'comrades' for this and they are sitting here in the front row.

"It is not honest for us to sell our steel below cost and knock off something from our dividends and reduce wages.

"I don't see any hope of better prices until the presidents of the companies stop the present diabolical situation. I am not seeking any alibis for myself except to say that the corporation I am connected with has been watching the price barometer."

Schwab Is Optimistic.

Optimistic as ever, Mr. Schwab had announced that "the tide was coming in" and that there was reason to believe liquidation was nearing an end, although the steel industry might slow down still further during the summer, and although the general business situation was complicated by general fear of wage cuts and instability of prices.

The steel industry, he said, had maintained its wage scale, but because of decreased production there had been less work for the employed, with the result that there has been a gross average decline of 25 per cent in the earnings of steel workers, yet, he asserted, this diminution of income had been offset, at least partially, by a drop in the cost of living.

"That I believe to be a very strong note of improvement in the general situation," he said.

As for the stock market, securities have been "much overliquidated."

"The security prices today are based in part on depleted dividends and earnings, but are further overliquidated by an unreasoning fear of the future."

Prices, he declared, canont be lowered to a point where they fail to bring a fair return to capital and labor.

Reduces Salaries.

New York, May 22.—(AP)—Paramount-Publix corporation has notified employés throughout the country of a reduction in salaries ranging from 5 to 25 per cent, according to the salary.

The notice said the cut affects employés from Adolph Zukor, president, down, and the reduction applies to executives under contract, who have voluntarily accepted. The new scale will remain in effect until at least Sept. 1, 1932, and is expected to effect a saving of from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 annually.

HOLDS CHEAP RIVER LINES NEEDED TO AID MIDDLE WEST TRADE

St. Louis, May 22.—(AP)—The development of exports to aid the middle west in business recovery was discussed by experts from this country and abroad at the fifth Central Mississippi valley foreign trade conference here today.

The conference was told by W. L. Richeson, president of the New Orleans board of port commissioners, that cheap river transportation is needed to place midwestern manufacturers on a competitive footing with the seaboards in foreign trade. George J. Eder, of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, said without our import trade, hardly a wheel would turn in industry.

C. D. Coldren, vice president of the Quaker Oats company in charge of exports, said export markets must be sought and studied, and exports fitted to meet foreign needs. A tariff "mania" in all countries, he said, is holding back export and import trade.

Richeson traced the growth of river transportation from its start to the present and related that in one season in the nineties, barges handled 13,000,000 and railroads 9,000,000 bushels of grain through New Orleans, until railroads reduced charges to the point where the river could no longer compete.

In 1918 and 1920, rail rates again rose, which he said, explains the fact that building of factories in the midwest has not increased but has in some places, dwindled, while there has been a marked increase in industrial plants along the seaboard.

"There seems to be but one answer to the foreign trade problem of the Mississippi valley," he concluded, "and this is the development to the utmost, of efficient, economical transportation on the Mississippi river and its tributaries."

Questions Rate Increases as Cure for Rail Troubles

BY SCRUTATOR.

The Association of Railway Executives is out to see if something can be done to increase railroad revenues. It has instructed rate groups to make a survey to determine how the entire freight rate structure of the country may be altered to provide more income.

The railroads can hardly be accused of exaggerating when they say that the decrease in their revenues is alarming and that they must boost their income in order to prevent impairment of their credit. They are confronted by a serious problem.

Whether they can solve it by a general rate increase is a question. Such a step may only open the door to increased competition by other carriers and ultimately result in a further reduction in the railroads' volume of business, although it would probably boost revenues temporarily.

Sees Too Much Regulation.

The railroads are suffering from too much regulation. When they constituted a practical monopoly of the nation's transportation they could stand regulation interference. But they are no longer a monopoly and regulation is stifling them.

Conditions in transportation have changed a great deal since the advent of the truck, the automobile, and modern river transportation. So must our poitn of view also change.

Steamship and barge lines make rates based on trainload lots, which can be made lower than carload lots. The railroads should be allowed to do likewise in order to get back some of their lost tonnage.

Water carriers can make rates from New York to San Francisco lower than the cost of transporting the same goods by rail. Freight can be shipped thus by water to San Francisco and thence back by rail to Idaho as cheaply as it can be transported by rail direct to Idaho.

The law provides that the rate for a shorter distance must not exceed the rate for a longer distance, the one being included within the other. The Interstate commerce commission, however, is empowered to make exceptions to this rule.

If railroads, for instanse, are allowed to lower their rates from New York to San Francisco to meet the water rates they can get additional business that is now going by water. By thus increasing their revenues they will become more prosperous and can afford to give lower rates to intermediate points, such as Idaho.

The rate to Idaho, however, must be higher than the rate to San Francisco, because the cars to San Francisco will be carried on the same train that goes to Idaho.

If by lowering freight rates to the west coast to compete with water carriers the railroads are forced to reduce accordingly rates to intermediate points where water competition is not a threat the additional revenue gained from business wrested from the boats would be dissipated.

Important to Small Shipper.

The prosperity of the railroads is highly important to little shippers who cannot afford their own boats and trucks. Nature favors them on the railroad because there is no advantage to the big shipper in owning cars which must be moved over the rails by the railroads. The owner cannot have individual movement of his own units, as on highroads and waterways. It is equally important to territories which have no alternate means of transportation.

Some of the sentimentalities now mitigating against the welfare of the railrads must be overcome or they will fail, and those most dependent on them will feel it most. They must be allowed more freedom to adjust themselves to changed conditions.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 22.—Today's share market was about as colorless as they make them. About the most that can be said in its favor is that it had some rather vicious looking hurdles to take and stood up under the ordeal rather impressively considering its worn out condition.

About the worst of the tests came in the form of some rather blunt talk from leaders of the steel industry on such barefaced matters as prices, earnings, and dividends present and prospective in the industry. United States Steel broke quite sharply immediately following the pessimistic remarks of James A. Farrell, president of the corporation, at the Steel institute meeting, but the flurry was short lived and the old leader recovered back to par, giving it a fractional gain on the day.

Incidentally, the sometime market leader had provided the boys with quite a thrill and aroused some fond memories shortly before the Farrell broadside by appearing on the ticker tape at 154. It was a mistake, of course, but it brought back a vivid picture of better days and raised a salvo of cheers from the floor.

Rails Continue to Gain.

With the move among eastern lines for an increase in freight rates to counterbalance another budget of disappointing April operating statements, the rails continued their slow climb from the abyss. New Haven, Northern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Erie, Southern, Lackawanna, and Chesapeake and Ohio finished the day showing gains of from 1⅛ to more than 2 points. Atchison, New York Central, and others moved ahead in more moderate fashion.

The firmness of the carrier group in the face of the sporadic periods of unsettlement which occur from time to time is one of the most heartening features of what some observers are pleased to call this "convalescent" market. In some quarters, indeed, talk is heard that the group is being groomed to lead the market on the recovery, which many believe and many more hope is just around the corner. Certainly they have had enough of a shakeout to be planted on a bottom sound enough for almost any kind of a comeback.

Pressure on Coppers.

Copper shares ran into a renewal of selling pressure and were the outstandingly weak group in the course of the day. Almost without exception the red metal issues were established at new low levels for the bear market, with losses of one to two points ruling in such prominent issues as American Smelting and Refining, Anaconda Copper, Calumet and Hecla, and Kennecott Copper. While there was no reported change in the actual metal market here during the day, copper was still available in fair volume from custom smelters at 8¾ cents. Fresh weakness in the metal at London, however, was perhaps a more important depressing influence than the status of conditions in the domestic market.

Case Threshing Machine put one over on the bears by recovering more than 4 points on the "surprise" announcement that its regular dividend had been declared. Obviously the stock had been heavily sold on reports that the dividend would either be cut or omitted.

BANKERS FAVOR PLAN TO RAISE FREIGHT RATES

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—Resolutions approving the efforts of railroads to increase their earnings through higher freight rates and favoring the privilege of membership in the federal reserve system for mutual savings banks were adopted today by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

The 600 banks in the association have approximately $1,250,000,000 invested in railroad securities, mostly in bonds. The railroad resolution was presented by Austin McClanahan of Baltimore.

It said the association was interested in every attempt to improve the present economic conditions, especially when such efforts "are directed to the betterment of the investment situation."

The association directed its federal legislative committee to seek an amendment to the federal reserve act to permit mutual savings banks to become members of the system, such membership to be optional with each bank.

It also adopted a resolution authorizing a "personal economy educational campaign" to increase thrift and savings throughout the country, particularly in the thirty-one states not having mutual savings banks.

At the final session of the three-day meeting Howard Biddulph of Newark, N. J., was installed as the new president.

OMIT DIVIDEND ON GULF STATES STEEL CO. PFD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 22.—Directors of the Gulf States Steel company voted today to omit the quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share due at this time on the preferred stock. The company stated that omission of the dividend was due to unsettled conditions and uncertainty of the outlook in the steel industry.

American Chicle company directors have declared the usual extra dividend of 25 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents. An extra dividend of 75 cents a share has been declared on the 7 per cent participating preferred stock of the Budd Wheel company in addition to regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 on the senior and 25 cents on the junior issues.

Great Northern Iron Ore properties omitted today the extra dividend of 50 cents paid six months ago on trustees' certificates of beneficial interest, but declared the regular semi-annual rate of $1.

PRINCE & WHITELY CREDITORS TO RECEIVE 25 PER CENT OF CLAIMS

Creditors of Prince & Whitney, New York and Chicago brokerage firm which failed last year, will receive 25 per cent of their claims in cash on or before June 21 under a final order entered yesterday in the federal District court of southern New York.

Creditors will receive certificates of indebtedness for the balance of their claims. The certificates which mature May 22, 1934, will entitle holders to share in the proceeds of the net liquidation.

Under the order securities owned outright and identifiable as property of customers whose accounts showed no debit balance on Oct. 9 will be returned to the customers. The creditors of the concern number 7,000.

Withdraw $50,000,000 India Loan Offering

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 22.—The $50,000,000 government of India loan which was offered to the public on Wednesday was withdrawn today. The announcement said that the underwriters were forced to take up 62 per cent of the amount. The bonds of 6 per cent are due to be repaid in 1933. The issue brings the total of India's borrowings in London during the last year to $205,000,000. The last issue of $60,000,000 in February has stood below par since.

Canadian Newsprint Exports Drop in April

Newsprint exports from Canada slumped in April. The total for the month was valued at $8,329,000 as against $11,200,000 in March. Pulpwood exported in April amounted to $2,168,000, as compared with $3,267,000 in March and $8,631,000 in April of last year.

REPORT EXCITING DAY ON SPAIN'S STOCK MARKETS

MADRID, May 22.—(AP)—A sharp break in stock and bond quotations on the Barcelona exchange caused great excitement on the Madrid bourse this afternoon and calm was restored only after Jose Pelaez, the presiding officer, had addressed the bourse.

Palaez insisted the country was fundamentally sound and the bourse closed quietly, although certain stocks sagged. Numerous stock and bond issues at Barcelona dropped from 20 to 30 points and recovered in various degrees. Norte railroads sagged 20 points but regained the loss, and Alicante railroad fell 30, part of which was recovered.

Compania Espanola de Petroleo, which is one of the sources of supply for the petroleum monopoly, dropped 15 points. Some banking circles indicated that the losses were caused by public nervousness over the government plans for a petroleum agrement with Russia. Pelaez and other financiers characterized this attitude as "sheer hysteria" and unfounded on economic logic.

Set Auto Replacement at 3,000,000 Each Year

Nearly 3,000,000 automobiles must be manufactured each year to take the place of the cars scrapped, according to figures made public by the National Association of Finance Companies.

The number required for replacement will increase annually for several years if the total number of vehicles in the United States remains the same, according to Milan V. Ayres, analyst for the association.

The 3,000,000 new cars manufactured last year were barely sufficient to replace those that went into the junk heap and there was a slight decrease in the number of passenger cars registered. This was offset by the increase of 102,000 trucks registered.

Stock Exchange Seat Is Sold for $230,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 22.—Negotiations have been completed for the sale of a seat on the New York Stock exchange at $230,000, a decrease of $5,000 as compared with the price involved in the previous transaction. The purchaser is William M. Duryea and the seller J. M. Townley. If elected, Mr. Duryea will act as a floor trader.

Colorado and Southern Income Drops Sharply

Directors of the Colorado and Southern Railway company were reelected at the 32d annual meeting of stockholders of the company. The directors' annual report showed a sharp drop in income for the last year. Net income for 1930 was $1,203,146.96, compared with $2,645,063.30 in 1929.

Replies to Request for Geo. Forman Co. Receiver

William G. Lodwick, president of the George M. Forman Realty Trust, in a statement issued yesterday declared that the group which is seeking a receiver for George M. Forman & Co. represents only 890 shares of stock out of a total of 491,250 shares outstanding. Stockholders of the company expressed their confidence in the management at the annual meeting.

As an indication of the progress made by the realty trust in working out the problems of the company he pointed out that $11,800,000 of the total of $14,500,000 bonds involved have been deposited by bondholders or placed under control of the officials of the trust. Four large properties have already been brought out of receivership, he stated. The company has no connection with the Foreman-State bank group.

Authorize Ill. Central to Issue $20,000,000 in Notes

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—Authorization for the Illinois Central railroad to issue $20,000,000 of its three year 4½ per cent gold notes was given today by the interstate commerce commission. The notes are to be sold at 98⅝ to Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and the proceeds used in retiring equipment trust notes maturing this year, and other purposes.

Stanolind Oil Quits Oil Buying in Eastern Texas

Tulsa, Okla., May 22.—(AP)—Withdrawal of the Stanolind Oil and Gas company as a purchaser of crude oil in eastern Texas was announced today by Frank Prior, president of the company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

"We are status quo in eastern Texas," Prior said. "We have filled our contracts and for the present will ship only crude oil from our own and our jointly owned producing leases."

Prior was unable to say whether the action would mean an increase in the company's purchases in Oklahoma or what the future course of the company would be in eastern Texas. The Standolind Crude Oil Purchasing company, another Standard of Indiana subsidiary, is not a purchaser in eastern Texas, R. S. Ellison, president, said.

Michigan Associated Telephone.

Please advise me if Michigan Associated Telephone company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, series A, due April 1, 1961, are speculative or sound? I await your investigation.—Mrs. H. A. H.

Michigan Associated Telephone company, formerly Michigan Home Telephone company, was incorporated in 1926 to consolidate United Home Telephone company and Grand Ledge company. It provides service to 36,255 telephones in 140 communities in Michigan. About 31 per cent of the telephones are fully automatic. The company is controlled by Associated Telephone Utilities company.

To retire outstanding bonds, to provide funds for the payment of properties that the company is acquiring and for other corporate purposes $2,500,000 of first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, series A, due April 1, 1961, were issued in April, 1931. These bonds constitute the only funded debt.

Net earnings available for interest for 1930 were $421,392, before depreciation, against $487,133 in 1929. Earnings for both years take into consideration properties to be acquired with the funds received from this issue. Such earnings for 1930 were 3.33 times annual interest requirements on this issue. After deducting depreciation of $89,153, earnings were more than 2.50 times annual interest requirements.

The bonds constitute a first mortgage on all fixed properties, rights and franchises of the company. Additional bonds may be issued only subject to certain provisions in the indenture. On completion of this financing there will be outstanding $2,500,000 bonds of this issue, $1,500,000 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock [par $100] and $1,718,400 common stock [par $100].

The bonds are a suitable investment for a business man's surplus funds.

Harroun Motors.

I have ten shares of Harroun Motors corporation, incorporated in Delaware, stock issued in 1917. I am anxious to know if the company is still in existence and if my stock is worth anything at the present time—P. J. V.

On May 8, 1923, the assets of Harroun Motors corporation of Michigan were disposed of at public sale under order of the referee in bankruptcy. The property had been appraised at approximately $1,100,000, but the only bid received was $10,100. There was outstanding a $1,000,000 bond issue and claims filed with the referee totaled $1,500,000.

Sufficient funds were not received to pay administration expenses and preferred claims. There were no funds available for distribution to either preferred or general creditors and, of course, nothing for the stockholders.

Stocks of the Michigan company and Delaware company are of no value.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 500; hogs, 7,000; sheep, 6,000.
*Short lambs; no wool lam's here.

It was a "catch as catch can" market for cattle and sheep yesterday, while hogs went tumbling to new low levels for recent years. The general average price of hogs yesterday at $6.30 showed losses since December, 1915, and only 15c above the lowest point since 1912. This price was below any corresponding day since 1911.

Activity was lacking during the first few rounds and uneven losses of 10@40c were recorded, the extreme top going down 20c at $6.80. Buyers were more willing to take on supplies after a 15@25c lower basis had been established and only 5,000 were left at the close.

Hog Futures Dull.

There was a fair number of offers to sell on the futures market yesterday, but not a bid was made, except 6c hogs for next Monday's delivery on the "to arrive" market. June light were offered at $7.50 and September offers were made at $8. Medfums for September were offered at $8.00. Lightweights for next Monday's delivery were bid $6.60 and heavy grades for the same day carried bids of $6.10.

The meager Friday supply of 2,000 cattle was fully equal to trade requirements and offerings were slow to sell at the recent sharp decline. Steers show losses of 50@75c, compared with last week's close, while most cows and heifers are off 50c for the week. Demand continued narrow, the demoralized condition of the market for dressed beef causing packers to buy sparingly.

Lamb Quality Is Poor.

Quality of lambs was poor yesterday and none were good enough to test the top quotations. Tendency ruled weaker, although most traders quoted the market steady, considering the kinds on sale.

A scattering of good native spring lambs reached $10.50, but the best California springers here went at $8.00, with culls at $5.00. Shorn lambs at $8.00 were of medium to good quality. Receipts were smallest of the year for Friday at Chicago, although some of the other points reported slightly larger totals.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 35,000 to 52,000. W. Garrett marked 35,000, H. Rattison 36,000, F. W. Young 38,000, H. S. Turner 40,000, G. Brittain 44,000, C. Southwick, R. H. Ellis, A. G. Welhener, G. Brittain, and H. Wolfe 45,000, E. S. Waterbury 46,000, J. M. Waters 47,000, J. T. Brown 48,000, F. M. Sherwood and F. Knutsen 50,000, and S. Lund and W. T. Rensker 52,000.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading quieted down on the Chicago exchange yesterday and the market held within a narrow price range. The selling in Cities Service, which had swelled the volume on the previous day to over 150,000, let up and the issue recovered to within a fraction of 12. The utility stock continued active, however, with about 22,000 shares changing hands.

There were few noteworthy price changes but the market's performance was considered an improvement over the action earlier this week. The developments at the steel executives' meeting had little appreciable influence on prices, although the statements on the labor question stirred up discussion among traders.

Vote Usual Dividend.

The motor shares made small gains and in the main showed a better tone than the rest of the list. The Borg Warner corporation directors at their regular meeting yesterday declared the usual quarterly dividends of $1.75 a share on preferred and 25 cents on common. Current assets of the company on April 30 were $16,781,788 and current liabilities were $3,619,943, which compared with $16,675,149 and $3,949,350, respectively, at the close of the preceding month.

President C. S. Davis said that earnings have shown consistent improvement since the first of the year, with April net profit amounting to about two and one-half times dividend requirements, May shipments are expected to equal those of April, he added.

Balaban & Katz Income.

Balaban & Katz preferred stock made one of its infrequent appearances on the tape yesterday simultaneously with the issuance of the firm's earnings report for the year ended Dec. 27, 1930. The stock was quoted at 92.

The corporation had net after all charges for 1930 of $2,289,263, which compared with $2,750,242 in the preceding twelve months. The earnings are equivalent to $7.89 a share on common, against $9.65 in 1929. Profit and loss surplus at the close of 1930 was $8,201,201, as compared with $6,126,578 at the close of the previous year.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP)—Early declines in coffee futures today under European selling and liquidation were followed by rallies on Brazilian and trade buying. No. 7 contracts closed 2 to 8 higher. FEDERAL WATER SERVICE.

In the year of March 31 earned $2.62 a class A share, as against $3.16 in the previous year.

OKLAHOMA GAS AND ELECTRIC.

Reported for the year 1930 balance of $2,571,403 available for amortization, common dividends, and surplus, compared with $3,213,687 for 1929. Gross totaled $14,284,675, against $14,162,361.

LOBLAW GROCETERIAS.

Reported for the four weeks to May 2 sales of $1,245,521, against $1,362,767 in the corresponding 1930 period, a decrease of only .8 of 1 per cent. For the forty-eight weeks to May 2 sales totaled $15,724,236, compared with $17,061,601 for the same period a year ago.

Boll weevil emergence in Texas exceeds last year's. "Conditions are not encouraging for a rapid recovery in the demand for cotton textiles," says T. A. Carter of James E. Bennett in an extended review of the cotton situation. "It seems logical to expect continued trade to prevail for some time. Nor is there much hope for a broad speculative demand for cotton, since the average man will not enter a market subject to arbitrary influences. It follows that prices may drop to lower levels before existing bearish factors are discounted." Prices follow:

LIQUIDATION IN COTTON

General selling of cotton, largely in the way of liquidation, met comparatively poor support yesterday, but there was not enough trading to keep prices on the down grade all day, and the net range of fluctuations was 11@16 points, with the close at nearly the lowest. Futures in Chicago being 16@34 points lower, with other markets mostly 3@6 points lower. Spots were 5 points lower in New York at 9.25c, with New Orleans off 10 points to 9c, Galveston 8.15c, and Houston 9.05c. Liverpool closed 6 points net higher, with spot sales of 6,000 bales. Changing operations from most to distant futures furnished considerable business, without changing the differences in any extent. Exports have increased 8,000 bales over last week. Shipments taking for the week were 213,000 bales, against 210,000 bales the previous week and 307,000 bales last year. Heavy rains fell in the eastern Carolinas, south Texas, and Oklahoma, with temperatures too low in the western area for satisfactory progress of the crop.

Boll weevil emergence in Texas exceeds last year's.

"Conditions are not encouraging for a rapid recovery in the demand for cotton textiles," says T. A. Carter of James E. Bennett in an extended review of the cotton situation. "It seems logical to expect continued trade to prevail for some time. Nor is there much hope for a broad speculative demand for cotton, since the average man will not enter a market subject to arbitrary influences. It follows that prices may drop to lower levels before existing bearish factors are discounted." Prices follow:

LONDON WHEAT PARLEY MAY END WITHOUT ACTION

U.S. Continues Objection to Quota Proposal.

LONDON, May 22.—(AP)—The international conference of wheat exporting nations tonight faced a possible failure over a solution for the world's current production difficulties.

After meeting since midafternoon and talking little progress the committee attempting to draft a compromise plan for presentation at today's plenary session recessed at 7 o'clock tonight.

Observers professed to see in the failure of events indication that the conference might close with tomorrow's session unless a realignment of the diverging views held by the various nations is accomplished.

The committee was reported to be trying to draft plans for an international bureau for exchange of wheat information, with a view of making a study of wheat problems.

Progress is admitted, however, that such a solution to the flooded wheat market problem would have little effect and would not even be assured of wholehearted support by the conference delegates.

Opposes Export Quotas.

The United States has taken a strong stand against any schemes looking to international wheat export quotas, a theory favored by many of the European conferees.

Although there was some pessimism evident in conference circles, the experts were working vigorously to arrive at a common agreement in time to present a report to the governments of the information bureau at the general hope that by dissemination of accurate figures to remove doubts concerning wheat production, consumption, it will be possible to get into the market only such normal purchases without fear of subsequent lowering of prices after they had loaded up.

The Brazilian countries sought to have their quota plan, but opposition from Canada and Australia, as well as the United States, forced abandonment of this scheme. Russia's attitude favoring the Danubian proposal was described as unchanged. The soviet union's insistence on crediting its fencing wheat held off the market, however, fell upon barren ears.

Officers United States.

MOSCOW, May 22.—(AP)—The newspaper Izvestia, official government organ, commenting today on the London wheat conference, denounces the United States as not only refusing to agree to a "scheme" for solving the world's grain surplus problem but actually preparing plans for huge buying operations on the world market.

"The only possible method of finding effective results in the problem of regulating the world wheat market is to decrease competition between exporting countries by means of setting a quota for each country," the newspaper declares. "This proposal is agreed to by the union of soviet socialist republicans, which, however, is decidedly against projects for price fixing.

"The United States disagrees with the quota plan which shows that it never came to the conference after making a long time, not with the aim of yielding in an agreement, but with the aim of undermining the work of the conference."

STUDEBAKER

Studebaker Sales Co. is the biggest and most reliable dealer handling used cars in this city. We built up our great following by maintaining the lowest price scale in the merchandising of used cars in Chicago. It will be worth your while to personally inspect our buys before going any place else. 5 days' free driving trial goes with each sale.

OLDSMOBILE SEDAN. Late model that's exceptionally clean throughout. Examine this car from bumper to bumper and you'll find that every detail is in wonderful condition. The motor is A1 and the price is out of keeping with its high quality. $395.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT. 1927 Big Six 7 Pass. Sedan. It was traded in at a very favorable price, so we'll pass on the saving to you. The finish has not a mar on it and the upholstery is luxurious. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $395.

CADILLAC SEDAN. 7 pass. that will make an ideal car for a large family. Has pullman car comfort and very smooth performance. Appearance is very attractive. Equipment includes 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, two rear tires, shatter proof, spotlight, etc. $295.

MARMON SEDAN. 1929 eight that looks and runs as though it had never been driven a mile. Every detail of the interior and exterior is in the original new condition and the motor could not be improved. Has a wealth of extras. $545.

STUDEBAKER COUPE. 1928 4 pass. Commander finished an attractive tan. Has expensive whipcord upholstery and many valuable extras. It will give new car satisfaction. $395.

WILLYS KNIGHT ROADSTER. This is a sporty six with a spacious rumble seat. Has spirited performance, practically new tires, and it will not remain long at our disposal. $195.

PIERCE-ARROW SEDAN. Model 80, seven pass. that was chauffeur driven and given very careful attention. Exterior finish, upholstery and tires are in dandy all around condition, and the motor is A1. 4 wheel brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $495.

NASH COUPE. 1929. This car is a real beauty. It was oiled and greased every 500 miles by the original owner, so now it's in topnotch condition throughout. $465.

LINCOLN SEDAN. This 7 pass. was in storage for 17 months, so now it's practically 100% throughout. Will not remain long at our bargain price. Of $295.

BUICK COACH. This Std. 6 is a quality car in every respect. The appearance is attractive and we carefully inspected the motor and made adjustments wherever necessary. Has many extras. $345.

PACKARD SEDAN. 1928 six that we recommend as one of our best buys. The upholstery is luxurious and the finish is decked a handsome color. Equipped with whool steering, rumble seat, spare tire, etc. Reduced to $785 for quick sale.

HUPMOBILE 8 SEDAN. Was checked over by our expert mechanics and found in topnotch condition. The appearance is beautiful and the tires have little mileage. Must attract. $225.

PLYMOUTH SEDAN. One of the very latest models that was only driven a few thousand miles. It's in wonderful condition, beautiful appearance and sparkling performance. A remarkable value at $395.
